Tories Triumph in Ontario

Davis

Liberals, NDP Mauled

TORONTO (CP) — Premier William Davis turned the Ontario general election into a run-away triumph for the Progressive Conservative party Thursday night, but late-night snags in returning offices left one riding in doubt and reversed two others.

The result was never in doubt, however, as the Conservatives, backed by a $4 million advertising campaign, started quickly in the east and rolled across the province.

The Canadian Press reported victory for the Tories at 8:39 p.m. EDT, 39 minutes after polls closed in the eastern time zones.

With one riding to come, the Conservatives had 78 seats of the 117-seat house, easily fattening their majority in the 1967 election.

The Liberals had 20 seats late Thursday night and the New Democratic Party 18. But results were fouled by close races and missing ballot boxes.

In Nipissing, returning officers reported Conservative Merle Dickerson the winner, but a late-night check showed the Liberal, Richard Smith, won the riding.

A similar foulup occurred in Toronto Dovercourt where NDP Steve Penner was originally declared the winner. But votes from a missing ballot box gave the riding to Conservative George Nixon.

The missing riding was Ottawa Centre where NDP allegations of irregularities have necessitated a recount. The Tory candidate was leading.

At dissolution Sept. 13, the Conservatives had 68 seats, the Liberals 28 and the NDP 21. There was one independent.

The two late-night changes meant the Liberals retained their position as official opposition. Earlier, it appeared there might be a tie between Liberal and NDP, something believed unprecedented in Canada.

The victory was a personal triumph for Davis, a boyish 42-year-old Brampton lawyer fighting his first election as party leader. He based his campaign on a something-for-

MPs Picket White House For Amchitka Test Halt

WASHINGTON (CP) — Two Canadian MPs and a United States senator picketed the White House Thursday, calling on President Nixon to cancel a proposed nuclear explosion on Amchitka Island in Alaska.

For 20 minutes, bearing protest placards, the three legislators and a small group of protesters paraded in front of the presidential mansion as television and news cameras recorded the unusual event.

Mark Rose (NDP—Fraser Valley West), Lionel Beaudoin (Cred.—Richmond) and Senator Mike Gravel, Democrat from Alaska, carried signs saying "Canada Opposes Cannikin" and "Cannikin a Threat to Alaska and Canada."

The five-megaton device — equivalent to five million tons of TNT — was originally scheduled to be detonated early in October but has been delayed by court action.

The three legislators said it was the first time they had carried a picket sign in their lives.

The Canadian government has formally protested the planned explosion, and conservationists in the U.S. and abroad have opposed it because of fears it could set off an earthquake or damage wildlife.

Rose told reporters the two MPs had come at the invitation of Gravel, "otherwise I wouldn't have come." He explained that he would not be pleased to see U.S. congressmen picketing the prime minister's residence in Ottawa without being invited by a Canadian counterpart.

The NDP member said he had tried to enlist an all-party Canadian delegation to make the trip because all parties had supported the govern-

Weather Satellite Plunges to Earth

SANTA BARBARA, Calif. (AP) — A satellite designed to forecast weather for the entire world failed to go into orbit Thursday and plunged to Earth 90 minutes after its launch, officials here said.

It represented a $10-million failure. The 686-pound satellite carried four television cameras, two scanning radiometres and its two-stage Delta rocket.

The space agency said the satellite veered out of control moments after the second-stage burn of its big Delta rocket and fell blazing into Earth's atmosphere.

The satellite had been expected to circle Earth in a 900-mile-high polar orbit.

Vandals Hit Soviet Mission

From UPI, AP

NEW YORK — Two teenagers slipped into the Soviet Mission to the United Nations Thursday and committed acts of vandalism and two men saying they belonged to the Jewish Defence League tried to haul down the Soviet flag outside the United Nations.

The incident at the mission took place a few hours after Soviet Ambassador Jacob Malik blamed a Wednesday night shooting incident at the Mission on a lack of security measures by U.S. authorities.

A boy and a girl, both 15, apparently entered the mission on Manhattan's East Side without difficulty, smashed the plate glass door and sprayed black paint inside the reception room. The two, who were not identified, were captured by a patrolman stationed outside the mission. They were ordered released in custody of their parents.

Two men trying to rip down the Russian flag from the row of 131 flagpoles outside the UN were taken into custody. About a dozen other demonstrators had chained themselves to the fence along First Avenue. Police clipped the chains and arrested the demonstrators.

At the UN, several delegates expressed anger over the Wednesday night attack on the mission by a rifleman and expressed concern for the safety of all diplomats in New York.

The shooting situation halted the China representation debate in the assembly for some hours.

It started when Malik interrupted the debate on a point of order and expressed out-

13 Killed, 100 Injured In Glasgow Holocaust

GLASGOW (CP) — A mid-afternoon explosion tore through a busy shopping centre Thursday, killing at least 13 persons and injuring at least 100.

Cars from a rooftop parking lot toppled into the debris, hampering hundreds of police and firemen who clawed at the rubble to reach screaming victims.

The blast wrecked 15 stores on newly-built Busby Street in the prosperous Clarkston Toll district.

Police said first indications were that a gas main had exploded. Workmen had been in the area for two days trying to trace a leak.

A woman witness said the street was "littered with bodies."

"It is an absolute holocaust."

Thursday is pay day for many Glasgow families and Busby Street was at its busiest when the blast erupted.

One man was decapitated and his body thrown across the road.

Hours after the 3 p.m. blast, rescuers still were tearing at the rubble, calling time after time for teams of doctors and nurses to help trapped victims.

Nurses and physicians ran to the disaster scene from a health centre less than 100 yards away.

One of the nurses said: "I've never heard anything like it — just a 'whoom.' Then there were clouds of smoke and dust and I could hear people crying."

Two Named By Nixon For Court

WASHINGTON (AP) — Lewis Powell, a Richmond, Va., lawyer and former president of the American Bar Association, and William Rehnquist, an assistant attorney-general, were named by President Nixon Thursday night for the Supreme Court.

If confirmed by the Senate, the two will succeed Justices Hugo Black and John Harlan and bring the court up to full strength.

Nixon described both men as "conservatives, but only in a judicial, not a political sense."

Kosygin Pledges To Help Red Migrants to Canada

- Ethnic groups dominate Kosygin protest. Page 7.

OTTAWA (CP) — Soviet Premier Alexei Kosygin has promised to intervene personnally to hasten the reunification of willing Soviet citizens with families in Canada.

Prime Minister told the Commons Thursday:

"He assured me that the names were in the works now, that he would see to it personally, and that substantial advance would be made on this subject."

The prime minister was replying to questions following his talks with Kosygin in Ottawa this week.

Indications were that delays were caused by red tape rather than political considerations, Trudeau said, although the Soviet premier had added that some candidates for migration to Canada did not wish to leave, despite applications on their behalf by relatives in Canada.

Record Sale Forecast

MONTREAL (CP)—The Gazette says Canada and the Soviet Union are believed to be on the verge of signing a record wheat deal and are also negotiating for sales of several Canadian manufactured items.

Quebecer Cites 'Sell-Out' Similarities

'B.C. Needs Revolution'

VANCOUVER (CP) — British Columbia needs a revolution as much as Quebec does, Separatist leader Pierre Bourgault told 300 University of B.C. students Thursday.

"You have been defeated just as much as we have been defeated in Quebec," he said.

"You don't own your own resources and industries any more than the ordinary people in Quebec do."

Bourgault, founder of the Rassemblement Pour L'Independance Nationale, and since 1969 one of the leaders of the Parti Quebecois, was one of a series of speakers participating in "Quebec Week" on the UBC campus.

He told students that in Quebec 82 per cent of the people, the French-speaking people, own or control only 12 per cent of the economy. He said Quebec's standard of living is 28 per cent lower than in Ontario and 50 per cent lower than in the United States.

"These are the 'benefits' of collaborating with the U.S.," he said.

Bourgault said natural resources of B.C. have been "literally swallowed" by speculators.

He said Premier Bennett "sells you and yours for almost nothing — sometimes he will even pay the Americans to help them take over."

He said Canadians help Americans buy them out with Canadian money.

"On a $20 million deal, the Americans can sometimes put up $2 million in U.S. money, get some federal grants, get tax concessions and borrow the rest from Canadian banks. Then the Americans end up with control, decision-making and all the profits."

Bourgault said the Parti Quebecois is not radical enough, but that a new manifesto is being drawn up which "will go much further than people expect."

"But what would help us in Quebec more than anything else is if you start your own revolution here in B.C. Then it would be much easier for us to collaborate with you."

Jailbird's Lament

THE MAN'S name is Lou Torok but at this writing he is a number — number 129,606, Chillicothe Correctional Institute, Ohio.

He is presently paying for a life of crime — a life, incidentally, which he obviously regrets, if you'll follow on and read his letter to his son.

He wrote to the editor of The Cincinnati Enquirer, but let him tell it in his own words.

"I am an inmate at Chillicothe Correctional Institute. Since I have a young son, more than anything else in the world I would like to let him know what an utter waste of human life imprisonment really is.

"Recently I put my thoughts on paper in a letter to him. I hope you will publish it in the hopes it will do some good for other boys."

I think Torok's letter is applicable anywhere in the civilized world.

"DEAR SON:

"When I broke the law and ended up in prison I didn't know that it would hurt you and your mother so much. I wish I could stand beside you now and help you when the kids at school call you a jailbird's kid. But since I am in prison, I am unable to help you. You must help yourself. That's why I am writing this.

"There are some things you should know. This is not the first time I have broken the law. I started my life of crime when I was your age.

"I started by stealing candy bars from the grocery store near our house. I got away with it. It was fun and it was easy.

"Soon I began to steal larger things. Then, one day I found out how easy it was to go into houses when the owners were away. I was heading for the big time and didn't know it.

"ONE DAY I got caught stealing in the grocery store. I told the grocer I had 'forgot' to pay for the stuff — he let me go. I wish now that he had called my parents or the police.

"I think this grocer actually started me on my life of crime by showing me how easy it was to 'con' a sympathetic bleeding-heart adult.

"I thought the cops were a bunch of fools and I was the one with the brains.

"The world I lived in as a teenager was made for pleasure. I tried everything. If there had been drugs in those days I would have tried them.

"There will be many times when you will hate me for what I have done. Please don't waste your hate on me. Learn to hate the cruelty and indifference in this world that hide behind the mask of ordinary people's faces. Learn to hate the poverty that makes so many persons turn to crime to fill their basic needs.

"LEARN to hate the ignorance that allows a child to drop out of school before he is properly prepared to earn a living for himself. Learn to hate the prejudice in everyone that makes people suspicious of anyone who does not think like them, dress like them, talk like them, or go to the same denomination church as they so righteously do. Learn to hate those who preach hatred.

"Son, I don't want you to end up like me in prison. But remember, if you break the law, any law and get away with it, you may eventually end up like your father spending many years behind bars. Don't risk it.

"You may be looking for a thrill to pass the time, but that thrill can cost you a lifetime of imprisonment.

"PLEASE think about it. Do yourself and Mom a favor. Stay out of prison."

Torok is not likely to win any raves for Pulitzer-calibre writing, but in his own earnest prose he might be the catalyst to save many young lives from the despair of the terrible drudgery of prison life.

IF INDEED his son is spared such an ignominious fate because of this letter, then the value of the letter would be incalcuable. And if other youngsters read and heed the obvious truths it proclaims, then Torok will have, to some extent, cleared the slate against himself. He will have done a service, a favor.

I hope Lou Torok's letter to his son will be read by many sons—and digested thoroughly. ly.

YOUR GOOD HEALTH

Low Platelet Count

By G. T. THOSTESON, M.D.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: An infant born last month is said by the pediatrician to have a low count of "platelets." In all my 80 years this is the first time I have heard of platelets.

The child has the appearance of a perfect child in coloring and general behavior. He is being kept in the intensive-care section in hopes that the platelet count will build up to normal.

Can you enlighten us about platelets and what the lack of normal quantity portends? — H.C.H.

As is true with all sorts of topics, there are lots of things in health and medicine you may not hear about until you become directly involved with them.

To explain platelets, you know that when there is bleeding the blood automatically forms clots to stop the bleeding. This is done by certain types of particles in the blood stream — and one type of particle, the platelet, is the one that initiates this clotting action.

Insufficient platelets means slower clotting. An example of this is when there is trivial bleeding below the surface of the body. Ordinarily it would be stopped so quickly it wouldn't be noticed. But with a deficiency of platelets, there is a greater seepage of blood, and a red or purplish spot appears, resembling a bruise. This deficiency is called thrombocytopenia. Platelets are also klled thrombocytes.

Deficiency can occur because the bone marrow does not proudce enough platelets. Alternatively, enough may be formed but an excessive number are being destroyed by the spleen.

In older children deficiency can follow an infection, or be related to allergy or drug sensitivity. There is also a hereditary or congenital form of thrombocytopenia — in which case other members of the family also have a platelet deficinecy. This, however, is rare.

Apparently the infant you write about (a grandchild, perhaps? has some unusual bleeding problem, or exhibited the "bruising" phenomenon, so a study was made of the blood, revealing the lack of enough platelets.

Platelets can be extracted from blood and given in the form of transfusions. In the case of the baby we're talking about today, I would assume that further studies will be made to determine whether the deficiency is caused by excessive destruction in the spleen.

the-people theme and the party was known as the Bill Davie Party in advertising.

It was a big gamble that worked.

"I think the win indicated very clearly that the people of this province are looking for leadership," said Davis, who easily won his own riding of Peel North by 19,061 votes.

"And I feel very humble, very gratified at the confidence that has been expressed by all the people of Ontario in me, in my colleagues. And I can only assure them that in the years that lie ahead we will make every effort to justify the confidence they have placed in us."

NDP Leader Stephen Lewis, 33, who squeaked to victory in his riding of Scarborough West by only 415 votes, conceded defeat provincially early and admitted he learned a bitter lesson about media advertising.

"People will buy the product even if they say they don't like it, if it's being sold often enough."

Liberal Leader Robert Nixon, 43, swept to victory in Brant riding by 2,744 votes. He was philosophical in defeat.

"I have no regrets at all. But I feel Ontario will not be well served by a smaller opposition in the house."

With the two seats doubtful, the Conservatives gained seven seats from the NDP and five from the Liberals. They dropped two seats to the Liberals and one to the NDP.

Geza Matrai, the Toronto man charged with committing common assault on Soviet Premier Alexei Kosygin, received only 230 votes in the election.

Matrai, a former Edmonton resident, ran in Toronto High Park riding under the Social Credit banner, although he has been repudiated by the national party.

Election day dawned bright and clear throughout most of the province and voters flocked to the polls in record numbers. With nearly 16,000 of the 18,575 polls reported by late Thursday night, the turnout was 2,840,162, or 86 per cent.

This election, about 4.4 million were eligible to cast ballots compared with 3,685,755 in 1967, when 2,419,710 voted for a turnout of more than 65 per cent.

Davis carried his entire 24-member cabinet back into the legislature and there were no major upsets for the Conservatives.

Among the prominents, one of the major surprises was the defeat of Bruce Kidd, former Olympic and Commonwealth Games runner, who was standing for the NDP in the Toronto riding of Beaches-Woodbine.

Phil Givens, former MP and former mayor of Toronto, won for the Liberals in the Toronto riding of York Forest-Hill but the Liberals' other prime candidate, True Davidson, former mayor of East York, failed to win in Toronto York East.

A total of 383 candidates entered the election, with all three parties fielding full slates. In addition there were 22 independents, five Communists and five Social Credit candidates.

rage at the shooting into the mission by a rifleman situated on the roof of Hunter College across the street.

United States Ambassador George Bush expressed regret and condemned the act as cowardly and hostile.

But later, Malik rose to speak again and gave an arm-waving impassioned denunciation of the radical Jewish Defence League — which he blamed for the attack — Rabbi Meir Kahane, leader of the JDL, Zionism in the U.S., and Israel.

While Malik even managed to criticize Britain's Conservative government, he made no reference to the demonstrations against or an attack on Soviet Premier Alexei Kosygin during his Ottawa visit.

Bush seemed to be referring to Canada when he said at one point that the ew York police were doing their best to protect the Soviet mission, but that "all would agree that the hidden coward cowering on some rooftop is tough to protect against in New York or any other capital of the world."

As he said that he raised his hand in the general direction of the Canadian delegation.

Malik took a swing at the British government for its "provocative act," a reference to the expulsion of 90 Soviets in Britain on charges of espionage.

But he saved most of his invective for Kahane, whom he described as a "fascist and a racist."

Kahane was refused entry into Canada this week when he attempted to reach Ottawa to demonstrate against Kosygin. He got no farther than Montreal.

Malik accused Israel of giving instructions to Kahane and the JDL and of fomenting a compaign of slander against the Soviet Union on behalf of Soviet Jews.

He said that Israeli statements to the contrary, Jews in the Soviet Union receive equal treatment with other Russian citizens.

Israeli Ambassador Josef Tekoah accused Malik of using "anti-semitic terms reminiscent of the darkest czarist days."

He said petitions he had transmitted to various UN officials on behalf of Jews in the Soviet Union belied Malik's statements.

MPs Picket

ment resolution in Parliament last Friday opposing Cannikin — code name for the Amchitka blast — and all other nuclear testing.

The Conservatives had planned to send someone but the plan had fallen through, he said. He said he "has it on fairly good authority" that Liberal MPs were discouraged by the government from taking part "because picketing was somehow undignified or something."

Gravel said he "still thinks the chances are 50-50" that Nixon will cancel the test, although no word has leaked from the White House about the president's views. Nixon has not replied to a recent Gravel request that the senator be allowed to present the anti-Cannikin case to him personally.

Gravel suggested jokingly to the MPs that, since Canada has "done all the peaceful things" to protest the detonation, "the next possibility is maybe to go to war."

Second Firm in Island Gas Race

Pipeline Challenge

VANCOUVER (CP) — A formal fight for the right to serve Vancouver Island with natural gas is indicated with an announcement this week by Centennial Natural Gas Pipeline Ltd. of Vancouver that it would take its proposal before the Public Utilities Commission.

Centennial plans to challenge Malaspina Gas Pipeline Ltd. which was chosen Sept. 30 by the provincial government as the most appropriate company to seek PUC approval to serve the island

Centennial and Malaspina both submitted proposals to build a pipeline from Williams Lake overland to Powell River and underwater to Vancouver Island.

It is also possible that British Columbia Hydro, which submitted a plan to build across the southern end of Georgia Strait, may enter the fight.

Dr. Gordon Shrum, Hydro chairman, said Wednesday that the matter of the pipeline will be placed before the directors of the crown utility company next Monday.

"We have been advised unofficially that we can make our own submission," he said.

Charles Bailey, president of Centennial, said that the application is made at the invitation and with the approval of commercial transport minister Frank Richter.

In Victoria, Richter Thursday denied any knowledge of cabinet ministers encouraging other companies besides Malaspina to apply for PUC approval.

The minister said it was up to the commission to decide whether any other company may apply for a certificate of convenience and necessity.

Malaspina, Richter said, "more clearly" than any other applicant met the government's specifications for the job but "as far as Centennial, Hydro or any of the others are concerned they can intervene and question any proposals put forward (by Malaspina)."

He added that if the PUC finds more than one company has met the specifications laid down by the government, it will make its decision on technical grounds.

Informants Surface

Lawrence Goff, 30-year-old California gunsmith, holds M-1 rifle during testimony before House Internal Security Committee Thursday in Washington. Goff and wife Betty Sue, right, said they had been undercover informants for FBI and told committee that Maoist militants organized violent San Jose demonstration against Nixon last year.

Canadian Route 'Superior'

VANCOUVER (CP) — A pipeline across Canada to carry Alaskan oil to mainland United States markets was described Thursday night as "vastly superior" to a cross-Alaska pipeline by a former scientific adviser to President Nixon.

David Freeman told a University of British Columbia audience that Nixon and Prime Minister Trudeau should name representatives "at once" to discuss the trans-Canada pipeline alternative before any decision is made which commits the U.S. to the heavily-favored trans-Alaska route.

"If we go our separate ways in marketing the petroleum resources in Alaska and the Canadian North, the best interests of both nations will suffer in the process," he added.

Bank Pair Sentenced

SUMMERSIDE, P.E.I. (CP) — Two young bank accountants were sentenced Thursday to two-year terms in penitentiary for theft of $414,747 from the local Canadian Imperial Bank of Commerce branch.

Archibald MacLeod, 28, and William Angus MacDonald, 29, showed no emotion.

Memphis Mayhem

Cruiser in Rush Kills Black Boy

MEMPHIS, Tenn. (UPI) — Racial turmoil continued for the third night in a row in Memphis Thursday and a three-year-old black boy was struck and killed by a police cruiser on way to a firebombing.

The incident came as street violence appeared to be waning. Police said incidents of arson, looting and vandalism were tailing off and tactical police units were removed from many predominantly black areas.

"There was nothing that could be done," said chief traffic Insp. W. O. Crumby about the fatality. "The child darted in front of the car and was dead on arrival at a hospital."

The child's mother was standing about 50 feet away in a yard, he said. A four-car unit had been dispatched to investigate the firebombing, he said, and the child ran in front of the second car.

Earlier, arson, panic and bomb threats forced the closing of three schools in another act stemming from the alleged beating death of a Negro youth following a police chase.

Lawyer Third Hopeful For Tory Leadership

VANCOUVER (CP) — Lawyer Derril Warren, 32, announced Thursday his intentions of running for the provincial leadership of the Progressive Conservative party at its convention here Nov. 19-20.

He joins John Green, publisher of a weekly newspaper at Agassiz and a renowned Sasquatch hunter, in challenging present leader John de Wolf.

The party's B.C. headquarters also said Thursday that Reg Grandison, 32, plans to announce his candidacy formally next week.

"It's time for a change and I really believe I have something to offer," Warren said at a news conference.

He said de Wolf had encouraged him to run for the leadership, although he didn't personally support his candidacy.

De Wolf had brought the party through some troubled times, said Warren, but now the situation required a "vigorous, youthful insurgent" as leader.

Cortinas Recalled For Fault

OAKVILLE, Ont. (CP) — Ford Motor Co. of Canada Ltd. said Thursday it is recalling 5,193 of its 1970-model Cortinas for repairs because of a possible fault in the steering mechanism.

The parent company in the United States is recalling 12,810 Capris and Cortinas — primarily Capris — for the same reason.

The cars being recalled were built between December, 1969, and July, 1970, at Ford plants in the United Kingdom. Cortinas were also built in Germany.

A Ford Canada spokesman said there had been two reported incidents of breakage of the steering mechanism in the U.S. but neither resulted in an accident. There have been no reported incidents in Canada.

The Ford spokesman said failure of the steering assembly was possible.

25 years! You've come a long way Stan and Henry.

Toyota adds its congratulations to Stan Hitchman and Henry Saunders on their 25 years of solid partnership. Their's is the kind of business relationship we can all admire. And Toyota is proud to have been associated with them both these past six and a half years. Early in 1965 Stan and Henry opened the first Toyota dealership in Victoria. They were then and are now the solid type of dealers we like to have with us.

A Question of Morality

THE UNITED NATIONS was created as an instrument for peace out of the chaos and terror of war. It was a splendid conception, encouraging the hope that at last the nations had found a formula to make recourse to arms impossible. It was a hope short-lived.

Unhappily, by its very composition, and rule of veto built into it, the organization would fail in its first purpose. Without unanimity in the Security Council its policing powers could never be universally effective.

As long as the victor nations of the Second World War were allies with similar aims, and without serious differences, their peacekeeping machine could function. But the moment they fell out it would no longer be operative.

The constitution made no provision for the upheaval which was shortly to throw Chiang Kai-shek's Nationalist government off the China mainland and into a very inferior role on Taiwan.

Neither did the constitution contain any provision for the expulsion of a member nation, and a member of the permanent council at that, without cause. The only possible excuse for such an action where the Chinese Nationalists are concerned would seem to be their usurpation of power on Taiwan.

It is true they set up their government there; but they were not resisted by the people in this province of old China, so recently under Japanese rule.

Now, however, Canada has joined the chorus of socialist and communist nations demanding the expulsion of the Nationalists so that the People's Republic of China can more readily accept an invitation to membership. That the end may sometimes justify the means, does not make this proposition any more palatable.

Japan has warned in the United Nations that the expulsion of the Nationalists would result in an abrupt change "in the international situation prevailing in the Far East." Kiichi Aichi, former foreign minister, was not specific.

But if the Japanese warning is not likely to be taken too seriously, unjustifiable penalization of a member-nation in good standing nevertheless could be a dangerous precedent. It certainly puts in question the virtue of the world organization. It is an action from which could stem the rapid deterioration of the United Nations and extinction of the high hopes raised by its creation. The government of Canada has made itself a party to this very questionable course.

Synthetic-Foods Control

WITH THE B.C. GOVERNMENT'S ban on liquor and cigarette advertising in the spotlight, another power-to-ban with which it armed itself at the last session of the legislature probably has been all but forgotten by most British Columbians. We are indebted to the provincial president of the Consumers Association of Canada, Mrs. Barbara Rolls, for reminding us of it.

This is the Synthetic Foods Act, passed but not yet proclaimed. It gives the government authority to bar all synthetic food products from sale in the province. It also requires that food must not be misleadingly labelled, which is all to the good, although new federal regulations may make this provision unnecessary.

But it leaves to the provincial government and its bureaucracy the decisions on which synthetiic products may be sold or banned, and many citizens will share with Mrs. Rolls her concern that special-diet or low-cost foods might be kept off the market by the roundabout method of not granting them exemptions under the regulations of the new act.

Mrs. Rolls cites for instance meat substitutes made from soy or fish meal, nutritious but much cheaper than meat, or synthetic foods needed by some people to replace natural foods to which they are allergic. Consumers are surely in no need of "protection" from such products. All they need is to be told exactly what they are buying, and not to have—in the usual example—"apple" flavored drinks masquerading as being manufactured from real apples.

The act is intended, it must be recalled, to protect the B.C. producers of natural food products as well as the consumers but the producers have some protection in general preferences as long as there is no misleading pretence.

If the federal regulations adequately take care of misrepresentation of products, therefore, the provincial government might sensibly divest itself of its too-sweeping power to bar any "synthetic" food from the market — even, though this today is politically unimagineable, margarine.

And Then . . .

IF THE FEDERAL tax reform bill becomes law by the end of the year, as the government wishes, it will be a law that many Canadians don't fully understand. In fact, they may never understand it all.

As an example of its complexity, one MP read this part of a subclause into the Commons record:

"—Where the employer owned the automobile at any time in the year, an amount in respect of its capital cost to the employer equal to the percentage thereof obtained when 1 per cent is multiplied by the quotient obtained when such of the aggregate number of days hereinbefore referred to as were days during which the employer owned the automobile is divided by 30 (except that if the quotient so obtained is not a full number it shall be taken to the nearest full number or, if there is no nearest full number, then to the full number next below it)—"

A Limited Choice of Courses

By LUBOR J. ZINK from Ottawa

WHEN he first hinted at the "fundamental reassessment" of economic relations with the United States that is now underway in official Ottawa, Prime Minister Trudeau spoke of "all kinds of solutions" ranging from complete common market integration to complete disengagement and trade war. In between these extremes, he said last month, "there are all kinds of choices that the Canadians will have to make."

As is his custom, Mr. Trudeau was throwing out a theoretical proposition. In theory, everything is possible. But does Canada really have "all kinds of choices" in practice?

I don't think it has.

The whole range of options from trade war to a formalized common market with the United States would be open to us if we could deal from a position of economic strength. By that I mean a position of virtual economic self-sufficiency with full employment supporting our high cost-price structure and our pattern and level of public services.

Every Canadian knows, and the government readily admits, that we are not in such a position.

Our economy is not and cannot be self-sufficient with its relatively small internal market. We have currently a high level of unemployment and the cost of the level of public services we insist on having is partly covered by deficit financing.

Moreover, at least one quarter of our Gross National Product is generated by exports. And three quarters of the goods we export are sold on the U.S. market.

These are facts which cannot be argued away by the most ingenious sophistry. Any realistic reassessment of economic relations with the United States, fundamental or otherwise, must be conducted within the framework provided by the combination of these facts. And one does not have to be an economic expert to see the limits this framework of facts imposes on the options open to Canada in the given circumstances.

It certainly eliminates the one extreme in Mr. Trudeau's range of choices — namely economic disengagement and trade war with the United States. For if we were to undertake this pet project of the "economic nationalists" and the ideological or emotional anti-Americans, we would cut ourselves off from the U.S. market.

Such a course, though inherently insane, could be contemplated only if there were readily available alternative markets for the $12 billion worth of export goods we now sell to the Americans.

It's no secret there are no readily available alternative markets, for most of the products we sell in the United States are too expensive for the Europeans, Asians, Africans, and everybody else. Who but the Americans can buy the gas-gulping cars, the big refrigerators and other North American "necessities" we produce?

To switch three-quarters of our exports (in finished manufactured goods it is actually around 85 per cent) to overseas markets we would have to completely restructure our secondary industries and lower our cost-price level. Would organized labor accept the drastic cuts in wages this would entail?

Certainly not voluntarily. Which means this particular "option" would necessitate a brutally coercive totalitarian regime which, as is amply documented by such once free and prosperous states as Czechoslovakia, would both shackle and pauperize the country.

This is what the "independent socialist Canada" slogan really is about, although many of its starry-eyed propagators apparently don't realize it. I am certain that no freely elected Canadian government can seriously contemplate this guaranteed road to disaster.

The next option, which is advocated by the less extreme "nationalists" and which may appeal to some of the Trudeaucrats, is substantial reduction of trade with the United States.

Since we now buy almost as much from the Americans as we sell to them, proponents of the retrenchment course argue that we are in fact exchanging goods. And since we import more finished products than we export, paying for the balance in raw materials, why don't we simply process more of our natural resources into consumer goods ourselves?

It's an alluring proposition. But it overlooks the economics of production for a small market. To make it work, the consumer would have to be willing to pay higher prices for many of the goods we import because their production for domestic market only would be too costly.

Moreover, a determined push toward economic self-sufficiency would require much more research in the technology of production than we are now doing. That, too, would greatly increase consumer prices unless, again, we were content with substantially lower wage levels.

Since this is unlikely on a voluntary "patriotic" basis, and since a realistic examination of all the disengagement or retrenchment options ends with some variation of the cost-price problem, one comes to the conclusion that to prosper, Canada must have access to a large and economically congenial external market.

Such a market exists only in the United States. Solution of our economic difficulties should therefore be sought in free access to that market. I don't think the Americans would want to explore this option with a government in Ottawa that has been systematically poisoning Canada-U.S. relations.

North Atlantic Assembly

Canada's 'Social Membership'

By ROBERT CAMERON

LATE in September about 200 elected politicians from NATO nations decended on Ottawa for a week-long series of committee and parliamentary debates. The occasion was the annual session of the North Atlantic Assembly. It is the only political forum where MPs from North America and Europe can exchange views, discuss common problems and make joint recommendations in furtherance of Atlantic co-operation.

To anyone listening for the first time, the proceedings in Ottawa could hardly have been reassuring as a productive activity. However, the assembly is well established (this was its 17th session) and by virtue of the educational spin-off, it is developing an increasingly important lobby in national parliaments. It is therefore worth noting some of the ideas which were tossed about by this collection of parliamentarians who embraced a wide spectrum of political beliefs.

As anticipated, much of the debate developed in the shadow of the new U.S. economic policy. But what took many people by surprise was the sharpness of Canada's attack on its closest neighbor and best friend. In contrast with Canada's sometime role as peacemaker in big power confrontations, here we saw the spectacle of the British and Germans almost pleading a distasteful U.S. program in an effort to keep Canada from its throat.

Our secretary of state for external affairs set the tone at the first plenary session, using what seemed unnecessary bluntness for a host country with Canada's recent record in NATO. A Briton described the language, with less euphemism, as "quite a clout." But Mr. Sharp's words paled in significance when compared with the broadside from C. T. Murphy, leader of the Canadian delegation. Speaking so late in the day that his remarks received little publicity, he paraphrased the U.S. dictum in roughly this fashion: "We want a swing in the balance of trade totalling $13 billion so we can be strong again and run the world as we see fit. We want your raw materials. And you must take our products at greatly inflated prices. We want you to work whether we do or not . . ." And more of same.

Not exactly tea party language, to be sure. Nevertheless Senator Javits, leader of the U.S. delegation, evidently took it in stride for I heard that after the session he greeted Murphy with a slap on the back saying, "Nice going Murph! That's the way to get in and fight for the boss!" Though not so peevish as Canada's contribution, there were other emotional outbursts. Iceland, for instance, used the platform to plug her justification for a larger fishing sanctuary, a proposal which drew crossfire from the British. Portugal came in for some brickbats because of her suspected use of NATO-provided support, in Africa. She responded with the usual assurance of guiltlessness — even though NATO support in Portugal probably allows her to shift a high percentage of her own resources elsewhere. And the Greek colonels (who incidentally weren't represented) also collected some abuse from one or two left wingers in the group.

Turning to parts of the debate which didn't centre on well known hobby horses, it was interesting to find the Dutch delegation so strongly against NATO activity on environmental problems. Their plea was that several other agencies had much better facilities to dabble in this field, so why dilute NATO's effort where it is unique? On the other hand, there was considerable talk about NATO doing more things not specifically connected with defence, the general idea being to help sell the alliance to younger generations.

In this connction, one German made a pitch for a NATO response to national catastrophes anywhere in the world. However, a Hollander objected to a recommendation that NATO become involved with drug suppression. He claimed that this would really sabotage his country's effort to sell NATO to the young, for its essential defence benefits.

The French spoke sparingly, but one of the delegation made a most interesting intervention on nuclear power. He first offered kind words about NATO's strategy of flexible response, which France has long opposed — no doubt reflecting the fact that with small nuclear weapons coming into France's armory, she will soon have the capability for something other than massive retaliation. He then repeated the French thesis that there can never be delegation of authority to use national nuclear weapons. But subsequently he appeared to endorse the idea of a European nuclear force by saying, "This would be feasible only with Western European union."

For an ex-member of de Gaulle's team, all this sounded rather realistic, even though European union with the necessary central authority to make nuclear decisions is a long, long way in the future.

With a few exceptions, the recommendations adopted by the assembly and which will be passed to the secretary-general of NATO, as well as national governments, weren't very impressive in concept. Nor could they be easily translated into good action programs. One of the better ones was a military proposal advanced by the Dutch.

Pointing to the increasing cost of maintaining small, national air forces, navies and armies, the proposal was that NATO undertake a study to see what integration of effort might be possible. Since this is a need which many people in Belgium, Holland and Denmark frankly recognize, NATO may well be able to give the idea a push and get something going.

One might assume that by hosting the assembly this year, and by our abundant (if slightly uninspired) hospitality, Canada was still an enthusiastic member of NATO as the government insists. However, if you noted the expertise on other delegations (particularly the British, Dutch and German), and considered the lack of it on our own, you would agree that "social membership" is a much more realistic way to describe our participation. I, of course, can't be for pushing new MPs around the world to lift their interests above a new post office in the local riding, then object to a lot of unknown faces in our delegation to the assembly. But there's a happy medium to most things and the mix we provided for this 17th session certainly wasn't it.

Happily there may be improvement next year. By a quirk of the rotational system, our Mr. Murphy was elected president of the assembly for 1972. He is already on record as noting the lack of talent in our delegation at the recent session and has promised to do something about it. It won't be easy for him to make good in the present atmosphere. Nevertheless, since even "political leaders are known to behave wisely after all other alternatives have been exposed for what they are," he just may succeed in having Canada pull her weight at the next session.

I Beg to Differ

Life in 2000

By FRANK LOWE

IT seems that suddenly everybody is entranced with the year 2000, and is busily predicting what life will be like when we hit that magic date.

And frankly, if these soothsayers are anywhere near correct, I am quite happy to know that with any luck I won't be around to greet the year 2000.

I mean, who needs it?

This rather sour summation is based on several recent brushes with people who have a penchant to tell me, whether I want to listen or not, what is in store.

The other day, for instance, a very brainy boy from the U.S. space project told me that by the year 2000 "only the top 5 per cent, intelligence-wise, will be employable. The other 95 per cent will not be able to cope with the jobs available."

See what I mean? If I do struggle through to the year 2000, I will be sure to starve to death. Because it has been impressed on me by a variety of people, particularly a variety of bosses, that when it comes to intelligence I do not belong in the top 5 per cent.

It has even been suggested that perhaps I do not even belong in the top 50 per cent.

I remember vividly the one time I took an intelligence test. At the end of the testing period I was told that I had come out ahead of everybody else.

But before my chest had a chance to expand more than half-an-inch the instructor added:

"Of course, that was to be expected. After all, you were the only person in the room who could read and write."

That was bad enough. But only yesterday I tripped over an even more ominous omen.

I was innocently reading the newspaper when I stumbled across an item about Graham Kerr, better known as the Galloping Gourmet.

The famed Galloper was also talking about the year 2000. Naturally, he was relating this magic date to his pet subject — food.

He said:

"I predict that by the turn of this century 60 per cent of the people will be living on pills and a milky substance obtained from roots."

After reading that it occurred to me that while I might not be smart enough to survive in the year 2000, I was at least smart enough not to want to survive until then.

A diet of pills, washed down with a milky substance obtained from roots, is not exactly my idea of the good life.

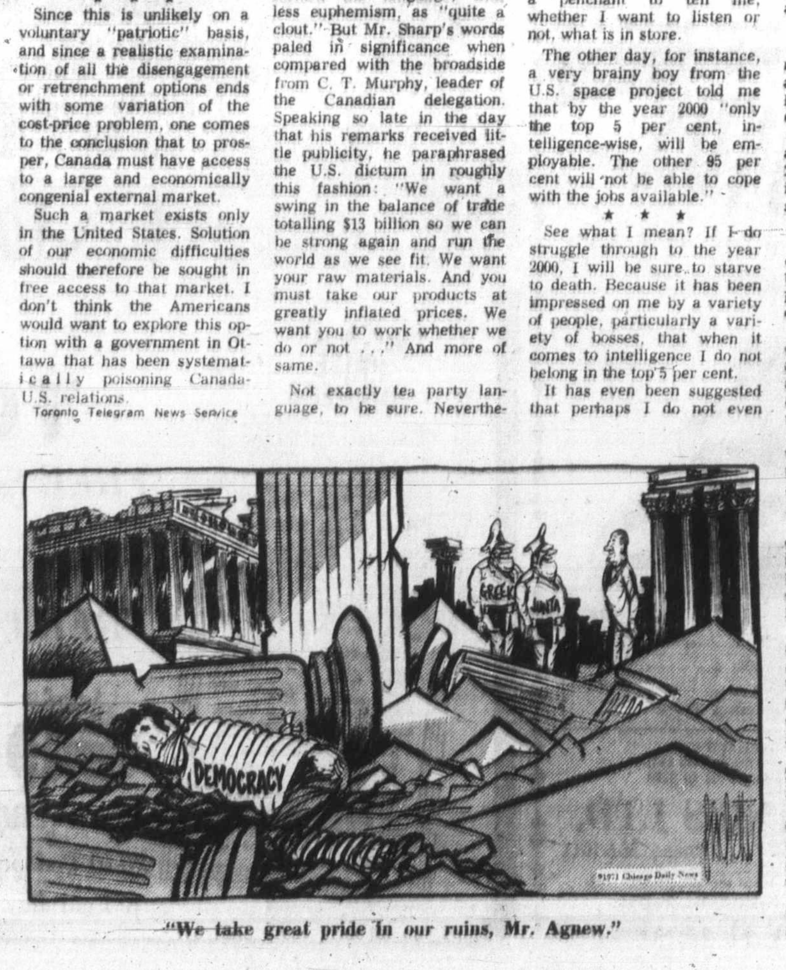
Mind you, as a practicing optimist, I have tried very hard to find some prognosticator who might paint a cheerier picture of the year 2000.

It was a non-rewarding search. The closest I got to any good news was a forecast that in about 30 years time most of us would not be living on a diet of pills and root juices.

No sir. Instead, most of the people would be living on pizza.

But, while this bit of information might be considered cheerful by some of my younger friends, it did not exactly send me into raptures.

To know there is nothing but a pizza in my future does not enthrall me.



"We take great pride in our ruins, Mr. Agnew."

Murder Not News

By PETER SCHNEIDER, from New York

I wish to report that my brother has been murdered.

On the afternoon of Sept. 2, 1971 — a few days short of his 49th birthday — my brother, Seymour Schneider, who in his lifetime had never raised a hand in violence against another, was shot in the head twice and robbed in his auto sales office on Bruckner Boulevard in the Bronx.

The lives of many will be diminished because of his death — his wife to whom he was devoted, his children to whom he was dedicated, his brothers and sisters to whom he was loyal, his relatives and friends to whom he brought a lightness of spirit, a measure of joy and a manner that was carefree, though his life was not.

But, from all the rest of the world he slipped silently away, in spite of the sound of the bullets that shattered his skull, for his murder was not deemed worthy of note in the New York newspapers.

A man is killed in broad daylight in his street-floor office on a main roadway in the city, and compounding the horror of the homicide is that, outside of his family and friends, the event is unnoticed.

Murder has become commonplace. It has joined the crimes of mugging and rape in occurring with such frequency that newspapers seldom report them. When I went to the medical examiner's office to identify his body, I was given a number to await my turn.

Fifteen hundred such murders a year, many thousands of vicious muggings on our streets and in the lobbies of our houses, and with it all we go through the routine of daily existence.

How long can people survive in this jungle of violence, terror and fear? How many more casualties must we suffer before we recognize that we cannot live this way?

Two of my three sisters have been mugged and assaulted, and now one of my brothers has been murdered and robbed. Who is next in this game of New York roulette?

And where shall we seek a solution, when with a clearance rate of only 10 per cent of our felonies — that is, one out of 10 serious crimes results in an arrest.

Our courts are overwhelmed and overburdened; our jails are overcrowded and ineffectual, with reformatories that do not reform, correction institututes that do not correct, prisons that are schools for advanced criminal techniques and that graduate tough, embittered enemies of society who are paroled because there is no room to keep them.

There is a word that everyone has used to describe my brother's death — senseless. It was senseless in that the murderer could have achieved his robbery without having committed this savage murder.

But from the view that the act fits a pattern of conduct that we have begun to see repeatedly, a pattern of insane fury, of maddened violence by subhuman creatures, it had the sense of patterned conduct.

For the grotesque, the monstrous, the aberrant, the perverted, have become the common and the commonplace, the usual and — God help us! — the expected.

My brother was one more victim. Who among us is next?

Peter Schneider is a New York lawyer.

By DENIS WARNER
From Canberra

In northeastern Burma, southern China, northern Thailand, northwestern North Vietnam and Laos the poppy season is coming round again and the hill tribes are out on their slash-and-burn plots, preparing the ground for another opium crop.

At the beginning of the 1960s I tried to get an informed guesstimate of the total opium crop of the region and came up with a figure, which may have been much too low, of 75 tons. Last year the same sort of sources put the figure at 1,050 tons.

It helped to destroy the American army in South Vietnam and to cause more than 300,000 heroin addicts in the United States alone. A thousand people a year now die of addiction in New York. Countries like Australia, which used to be more or less immune, are beginning to suffer.

Traffic in opium in Southeast Asia crosses state borders and ideologies. The Laotian village of Ban Houei Sai on the left bank of the Mekong and conveniently situated across the river from Thailand and close to northern Burma and Yunnan is one trading centre. Merchants from all neighboring countries meet here to buy and sell their wares.

Xieng Khouang on the Plain of Jars used to be another before it was demolished by the war. And the Meo tribesmen, whose centre it is, are among the principal growers.

The remnants of Chiang Kai-shek's armies, who sought sanctuary in northern Burma and northwestern Thailand more than 20 years ago and have now settled along the borders as an immigrant community, are heavily involved in the trade.

In the hill country opium is a "hard currency" and is used freely for paying bills. In the market place, only gold or silver are acceptable for the opium crop, and because of their high silver content Burmese and Indian rupees are in high demand.

The Thai government has banned trade in opium, but one does not need to travel very far beyond Chiengmai to discover that the area under cultivation is increasing.

Gravely concerned now at the extent of the opium trade as it affects the United States, the Nixon administration has created a new office within the Bureau of Narcotics to deal with the problem. Bangkok will be the centre for Southeast Asia.

George M. Belk, who heads the new program, has warned: "Internationally, our actions will include, if necessary, a reassessment of our foreign policy and economic relationships with those countries which intentionally or inadvertently facilitate the traffic."

With the best will in the world, at least four governments in Southeast Asia friendly to the United States could not stamp out the traffic with the resources they have available. It is difficult therefore to know how to assess this threat other than in relation to the continuing American disengagement.

What seems less than probable, however, is that the traffic will be controlled in the predictable future. Neither the Pathet Lao nor the North Vietnamese has shown any inclination to stamp out opium cultivation in areas under their control. As they are well aware, they would lose the support of the tribesmen — and a vital source of foreign exchange — if they did.

While the demand continues to grow, we can only expect that the supply will increase to meet it.

British Resent Kennedy Speech

By CY FOX
From London

Kennedy

Senator Edward Kennedy's speech urging withdrawal of British troops from embattled Ulster has aroused a rare degree of bitterness among the British, who are normally tolerant of criticisms.

Some reactions disputed the senator's description of the Ulster crisis as Britain's Vietnam.

But the Kennedy speech was by no means the first critical assessment of the Northers Ireland tragedy to mention this comparison.

Even within Britain, left-wing opponents of the Conservative government's Ulster policy have been insisting that the Northern Ireland conflict may be luring London into the same kind of interminable conflict that resulted from Washington's at-first-limited efforts to keep South Vietnam non-communist.

Unless strategy on Ulster is changed, "we shall be unable to extricate ourselves from an unwinnable civil war which corrupts our political morals and destroys our army as a fighting force," argues the leftist New Statesman in the latest reiteration of the Vietnam analogy.

But such similarities between the lines taken by critics on both sides of the Atlantic don't account for the intensity of the resentment with which Kennedy's remarks were received in Britain.

What seems to have made the speech particularly insufferable for many Britons was its alleged status as — in the words of a typical hostile comment — "a gross interference in the internal affairs of a friendly nation."

The resentment ranged unusually far back in time — even to the point of promoting one journalistic commentator to recall the skeptical assessment of Britain's victory chances offered by the senator's father, then American ambassador to London, in the early stages of the Second World War.

The Daily Mail's Ferdinand Mount observed that the younger Kennedy is similarly skeptical of British capabilities, this time in the matter of preventing an Ulster civil war.

Even more provocative was Edward Kennedy's statement that the Northern Ireland crisis "transcends the traditional feelings of those who believe America ought not to interfere in the affairs of another nation."

The view was swiftly expressed in Britain that this thesis smacked of the arguments used by Soviet chief Leonid Brazhnev to justify possible Russian intervention in the domestic affairs of such "fraternal" states as Czechoslovakia.

The Kennedy argument also prompted scornful suggestions that ethnic ties might also be construed as giving the U.S. the right to meddle in the domestic problems of countries like Italy and West Germany.

If nothing else, the Kennedy controversy — involving as it does the contention that the man from Massachusetts was cynically endangering Ulster lives for purposes of gaining Irish-American votes — may serve to reduce the high esteem in which most of the late president's frequently-affiliated family is held in Britain.

Midsummer Night's Dream Tampering Creates Tempest

By DENNIS EISENBERG
From London

Although The Times does not have a wide circulation, the controversies which sometimes rage on its famous Letters To The Editor page serve to entertain, amuse and infuriate a very wide circle of Britons.

The subjects which arouse the passions of readers are usually political, or they touch on some traditional aspect of the English way of life.

Recently, however, it was one of Shakespeare's plays (A Midsummer Night's Dream) which sparked a prolonged and heated debate. It is the Peter Brook production which is outraging the purists and arousing the enthusiasm of many, including schoolgirls who normally do not bother to write to The Times.

Brook has dispensed with tradition and instead of having his characters leap about in a leafy wood, he has placed them on swings like trapeze artists playing out the action on a blazing white set.

"Commercialization of the worst sort" and "giving Shakespeare a bad name" are the indignant comments of some scholars. "Nonsense," reply enthusiastic supporters of the play, including a party of 30 schoolgirls who neatly wrote out their own views.

The girls admitted to The Times that they were dragged "unenthusiastically" to see the play, but at the end of the evening they were enchanted and "jumping for joy. The play provided a topic of conversation for months," they said, adding: "We have been influenced for the rest of our lives."

Canadian Envoy Speaks Out

CP, from Dallas, Texas

Cadieux

Canadian Ambassador Marcel Cadieux says a basic question in the wake of the United States import surcharge "is whether Canada can continue to depend on trading access to the U.S. on mutually acceptable terms."

"If we cannot," he told a meeting of the Dallas Chamber of Commerce "then we must reconsider our whole industrial and commercial policies."

Saying the Aug. 15 announcement of the 10-per-cent additional levy on dutiable imports has a "profound impact on Canada," Cadieux recited a number of statistics to demonstrate the interdependence of Canada-U.S. trade and economics.

"Like the earth and the moon, the economic gravity pulls in both directions." However, "the bigger body exerts the bigger pull and you are 10 times as big as we are.

"When we make an economic move it affects the United States; but when you make one it affects us 10 times over."

He cited a recent survey of 1,300 Canadian firms that suggests that if the surcharge continues for a year, 150 companies would be in danger of going under.

"The survey suggests that 40,000 jobs would be lost in three months, 70,000 in six, 90,000 in a year.

In this context, he noted that while Texas was a blend of Spanish and English-speaking nations, "we are principally a blend of the French and the settlers from the British Isles."

The blend made life richer "but such blending is not always easy." Canada had felt the strains particularly a year ago this month in Quebec — a reference to the kidnap-murder of provincial Labor Minister Pierre Laporte. He added:

"In Quebec, the unemployment rate is between nine and 10 per cent. This severe economic fact makes the resolution of delicate issues involving the unity and identity of Canada much more difficult.

"It is a distressing fact that one of the provinces most severely affected by the U.S. surcharge is Quebec."

He concluded:

"To be frank, Canadians feel there seems no justification for the application of the surcharge to Canada.

"We could not avoid it by conforming to President Nixon's standards for we already conformed.

"We tried, I assure you, friendly persuasion."

Provincial COURT

Rehabilitation of a convicted person is important, Judge William Ostler said Thursday in Victoria Provincial Court, "but in spite of views that are expressed in other quarters . . . the principal duty of the court is the protection of the public."

He spoke just before ordering a six-month jail term for Mark Graham Murray, 23, of 650 Dunedin, who pleaded guilty Oct. 14 to a Saanich charge of breaking and entering and theft at the Burnside Texaco Service, 110 Burnside East, "on or about" June 29, when $110 was taken.

Defence lawyer Dermod Owen-Flood urged adoption of a probation officer's recommendaion of a suspended sentence. But prosecutor John Macintyre opposed the recommendation and the judge said he was "unable to either understand or concur" with it.

He said the "protection of society must transcend" all other aspects in choosing a sentence in such a case.

Grant Andrew Reed, 20, of 527 Esquimalt, was sentenced to 18 months in jail following his plea of guilty Oct. 15 to a Saanich charge of theft involving more than $50.

The charge concerned a total of $2,270 in cash and cheques which were in a bank deposit bag taken by Reed in the noon hour Oct, 9 from McDonald's Bakery, 524 Culduthel in Saanich, where he had a part-time job.

A detective testified Oct. 15 Reed helped Saanich police recover the $608 in cheques that were stolen, along with $528 in cash which he had hidden and a cache of 46 capsules of heroin which he had bought with some of the stolen money.

Ross Clarence Gooderham, 44, of 341 Island Highway, was remanded to Nov. 3 for a presentence report and sentence after pleading guilty to two Victoria charges — false pretences involving more than $50 and obtaining lodgings by fraud.

A Victoria detective said Gooderham made 16 gasoline purchases between June 26 and Aug. 9 in various parts of B.C. by using a credit card which belonged to his former employer in Victoria and which he kept after being fired June 15.

The other charge concerned a $29.40 bill for two days at a Victoria motel late in August.

In traffic court, a $250 fine and a partial three-month driving ban were set by Judge E. F. N. Robinson for Malden Danial Harry, 31, Mill Bay, who pleaded guilty to a charge of driving Sept. 24 in Saanich with a blood-alcohol reading over .08 per cent.

Vandals Remove Waterline Hoops

Greater Victoria water commissioner Ron Upward urged the public Thursday to help stop vandalism at the water district's wooden waterline near Charter's Creek in Sooke.

Upward said in an interview vandals stripped 40 steel hoops from a 125-foot wooden pipeline recently.

"Fortunately, whoever did it only took every other hoop; this caused some leakage. If he had taken every one of the hoops, the whole pipeline would have fallen apart," Upward said.

"I would ask the public to report any suspicious activity in that area," Upward said.

He also said the water district has been losing up to three or four warning blinkers every night for the past three weeks. The blinkers are placed at work sites, especially excavations.

"It's pretty dangerous to have no warning blinkers at some of the sites. Sooner or later, a motorist is going to drive into one of the holes," Upward said.

RH Positive, O Group Needed by Red Cross

Red Cross officials in Victoria said Thursday that a crisis exists in the provincial blood bank in Vancouver covering one blood group.

A Red Cross official said now there are only seven pints of O group RH positive in the central bank, and that a patient in a Victoria hospital required 16 pints of that group Thursday alone, to keep him alive.

The 16 pints were sent, the spokesman said, from the blood donor clinic held at the Student Union Building, University of Victoria. The clinic there attracted 198 donors and will be held at the same location, 9:30 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. again today.

The spokesman said that all donors with O group RH positive, "who are in good health and who haven't donated in the past 90 days," to attend the clinic today, to help ease the crisis.

Brezhnev Doctrine for U.S.?

● Kennedy criticism angers British, Page 5

U.S. Senator Edward Kennedy's call Wednesday for withdrawal of British troops from Northern Ireland gives rise to speculation that the U.S. has "embraced the Brezhnev Doctrine," David Anderson, Liberal MP for Esquimalt-Saanich, told the Colonist Thursday.

"If a U.S. politician, who is considered a prime contender in the next U.S. presidential elections, decides to interfere so blandly in the affairs of another country, I must ask myself whether or not this means the U.S. is in the process of adopting the Brezhnev Doctrine," Anderson said in an interview from Ottawa.

The Brezhnev Doctrine was formulated following the invasion of Czechoslovakia in 1968. According to the doctrine, Communist countries are justified in interfering with the affairs of other countries where socialist governments are threatened.

Anderson said he had asked Prime Minister Trudeau in the Commons earlier Thursday whether the government interpreted Kennedy's statements as an indication of the U.S. adopting the doctrine.

"The prime minister scratched his head for a few moments, and then said he found it somewhat difficult to read my assumption into the senator's remarks," Anderson said.

"Of course, it's a bit far-fetched, but nevertheless, I ask myself whether the U.S. will, from now on, interfere with the affairs of other countries in a manner for which we condemn the Russians," he said.

Kennedy's statement has aroused bitter feelings in Britain and Ulster.

Bargains Aid Firmer Prices

NEW YORK (AP) — Stock market prices, which had declined in each of the six previous sessions, finally became stable Thursday.

Analysts said bargain-hunting that began around mid-session helped to firm prices. In the early part of the session there was a continuation of the downward momentum shown Wednesday.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrials dipped 0.80 to finish at 854.85.

Golds Ahead

TORONTO (CP) — Gold issues moved moderately higher, while prices in all other sectors of the Toronto stock market closed sharply lower in slow trading Thursday. It was the market's fourth consecutive losing session.

Southam was up ⅜ to $63½. The company's board of directors announced a four-for-one stock split on the company's shares, subject to shareholder approval. The directors also increased the regular quarterly dividend to 36 cents from 30 cents a share and declared an extra dividend of 24 cents a share.

Prices Mixed

VANCOUVER (CP) Prices were mixed in light trading on the Vancouver Stock Exchange Thursday with a volume of 1,565,997 shares.

Albany was the most active oil trader, unchanged at .28 on a turnover of 9,500 shares. Peace River dropped .02 to .14, Midland was down .01 to .06 and Embassy declined .05 to .43.

In the mines, Great Northern was the leader. It added .09 at $1.12 on 172,275 shares. Pinex dropped .05 to .74, Afton was down .02 at .37, Calta declined .02 to .32, Norex added .04 at .30 and Gibraltar was up .05 at $4.75.

Sag Continues

MONTREAL (CP) — Prices continued to sag in all sectors in slow trading on the Montreal stock market Thursday.

Long live the Watneys Red Revolution!
New Watneys RED

—AP

Revolution Brewing

Three posters bearing look-alikes of Nikita Khrushchev, Mao Tse-tung and Fidel Castro—all clutching tankards of foaming beer—are part of British ad campaign launched by Watney Mann brewers. Company produces ale called Red Barrel and uses political connotations of color for sales drive under slogan "Long Live the Red Revolution."

Ontario Stockyards Busy, Profitable

Excitement Moos Along

TORONTO (CP) — Each day farmers and representatives of packing houses across the province gather at the Ontario public stockyards to participate in Canada's largest daily auction.

During the past 60 years, an average 4,000 head of cattle have been sold daily. Worth about $300 each, more than $1 million changes hands every day.

"Often another farmer will buy calves to fatten them up and sell them later at a healthy profit," said Ed Garhouse, an agent for one of the five firms which sell livestock for the farmers.

The agents charge a commission on each sale, depending on how many head the farmer has sent to be sold at the stockyard.

The Ontario government, which runs the stockyards, charges for upkeep of pens and for feed and staff needed to operate the yard. This is deducted by the commission agent before payment is sent to the farmer.

Cattle are herded into a ring, where their total combined weight is announced. Bidding for the lot is on a per-pound price.

In another building smaller stock, such as calves and sheep, are auctioned individually.

A large clock-like device is set at a price indicated by the agent conducting the sale and the dial begins to spin rapidly backwards showing a decreasing price by fractions of a cent.

Buyers press a button — there is one wired to each buyer's seat — when they wish to make a bid and the "clock" automatically stops, registering the price and the first bidder's number.

"We usually start with a price a little higher than we expect to get, Garhouse said. "I sell a calf about every 90 seconds and on a good day we'll spin about 800 calves."

Seven Named to Surcharge Board

OTTAWA (CP) — The government has appointed four deputy ministers, two businessmen and a labor consultant to the board that will hand out the $80 million in the government fund to aid industries hurt by the additional U.S. tariff charges.

Industry Minister Jean-Luc Pepin told the Commons Thursday the board's chairman will be Raymond Lavoie, 57, of Montreal, vice-president and managing director of Credit Foncier Franco-Canadien.

The second businessman on the board is C. S. Richardson of Calgary, financial vice-president of ATCO Industries Ltd.

The deputy ministers are James Grandy of the industry department, Simon Reisman of the finance department, L. E. Couillard of the manpower department and J. D. Love of the regional expansion department.

Cleve Kidd, a Toronto labor-relations consultant and a former executive secretary of the Canadian Airline Pilots Association, is the board's seventh member.

Under the employment-support act passed by Parliament and given royal assent last week, the board is empowered to distribute the $80 million to manufacturing plants that normally export at least one-fifth of their production to the U.S. and whose output and employment are in jeopardy.

The fund is intended to cover the period from Aug. 16 — when the higher tariffs took effect — to the end of the current fiscal year next March 31. But Pepin has said the fund might be augmented or the period extended if needed.

Pepin said that "several hundred" applications have already been received from plants seeking aid. Officials had stimated that 1,300 applications would flood in once the board starts operation.

Freeze Urged For Half-Year

TORONTO (CP) — Canada should have a six-month wage and price freeze similar to that imposed recently in the United States and the power of unions should be reduced, a Massey-Ferguson executive said Thursday.

John Belford, vice-president of personnel and industrial relations, told the national conference of the American Compensation Association that during the freeze government should revise manpower costs according to national productivity trends and link wages to the cost of living.

"Actual purchasing power bears no relation to skyrocketing wages, and the rest of society is paying for the concessions won by organized labor," he said.

Belford called for new approaches to industrial relations and "a radical revision of the wage-making process" to battle inflation.

There were two alternatives: revise collective bargaining to collect the "imbalance of power between unions and employers," or make fundamental changes that would "divest unions and management of their traditional roles of collective bargaining."

Meanwhile, as U.S. Treasury Secretary John Connally was telling American bankers Wednesday that the 10-per-cent U.S. surcharge on imports may continue for more than a year, Canadian Ambassador Marcel Cadieux warned American businessmen that 150 Canadian businesses are in danger of going under if it does.

Connally told the American Bankers Association convention Wednesday that the surcharge is "going to stay on for a while because frankly it's to our economic interest."

"It will come off when this nation has some assurance that our balance-of-payments deficit will be rectified. And we know we can't do it in a year . . . ."

Keenleyside Tells Rotarians:

UN Faces Three Big Problems Plus Crisis in Administration

The United Nations is in a great administrative crisis, Dr. Hugh Keenleyside told Victoria Rotary Club members Thursday.

Speaking at the Empress Hotel, Keenleyside, director-general of UN technical assistance administration from 1950-59 and on the Canadian delegation to the General Assembly last year, said there were three basic problems confronting the UN.

One was the question of China's admission to the UN, which is difficult because the U.S. supports a two-China policy (UN seats for Taiwan and China), while the charter only allows for one.

Keenleyside predicted that it was most likely that China would get the seat in the UN, thus removing Taiwan.

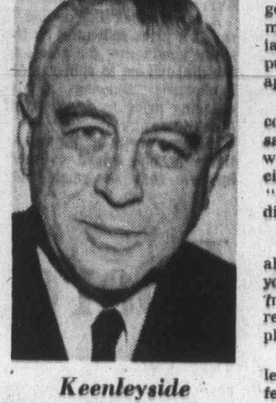
The second problem facing the UN is the selection of a new secretary-general. France is pushing for U Thant, present secretary-general, to continue but it is unlikely, said Keenleyside, that he would reconsider leaving.

Other possible choices are Max Jakobson of Finland, Prince Sadruddin Aga Khan, who is high commissioner for refugees, Lee Kuan Yew, prime minister of Singapore, Endelkachen Makonnen, Ethiopian minister of communications, and Kurt Waldheim of Austria.

In an interview later, Keenleyside said he thought it would be "a great mistake" if Canadian Maurice Strong was appointed as an interim secretary-general.

"It would be an awful waste if he were hired as an interim secretary-general, because he is in charge of organizing the world conference on environment to be held in Stockholm next year. But premanently, that's another thing," he explained.

The third problem, and perhaps the greatest the UN has, Keenleyside said in his speech, is the lack of morale and competence in the UN secretariat.



Keenleyside

"What most impressed me when I visited the UN last year was the terrible deterioration in the operation and attitude of people in the secretariat," he said.

The problem is that each government wants one or more people on the secretariat and in senior positions, putting pressure on the UN to appoint their own people.

Also, Keenleyside, former co-chairman of B.C. Hydro, said many governments don't want competent objective civil servants, they want "people who will do their bidding."

"This means there is general incompetence and talented young people are blocked and frustrated in following a career in the UN," he explained.

There are also salary problems which brought the professional staff of the UN to the brink of a strike last year, he added.

Keenleyside said that the salary problems were very complicated and it was becoming increasingly difficult to determine salaries because New York was such an expensive place to live.

There had been suggestions that the UN move out of New York as attacks on diplomats had increased in recent years but Keenleyside said he doubted these would be heeded, "it would be such a tremendous problem to move the organization."

Keenleyside said the situation of governments pushing for their own people to be appointed to senior positions in the UN could be solved "if the governments would start living up to their undertakings," and would not attempt to influence members of the secretariat of their choice.

Keenleyside said Canada lives up to its pledges.

Business Asked To Fight Advent of Welfare State

Canada may be heading toward a welfare state unless employers assist governments in creating new jobs, Minister without Portfolio Grace McCarthy warned Thursday.

She told a businessman's breakfast sponsored by the government's job opportunities committee that welfare recipients are banding together like trade unionists in a bid for higher benefits.

This kind of pressure in some areas has produced benefits which make it economically sensible for low-paid workers to go on social assistance. Mrs. McCarthy indicated this trend toward a welfare state will continue unless businessmen start hiring more people.

Business has traditionally left the problem of caring for the jobless to government, she said, but the total social costs of unemployment hurts the whole community and business must act directly to help reduce these costs.

Committee chairman, Municipal Affairs Minister Dan Campbell, told the gathering attended by 50 local businessmen in the Empress Hotel, the provincial economy has created 55,000 new jobs in the past year.

But he added there are still between 10,000 and 15,000 employable persons on welfare in B.C.

Ottawa Seeks Air Control

OTTAWA (CP) — Environment Minister Jack Davis took Thursday what he called a first major step towards implementing air pollution standards by announcing proposed national air quality objectives.

The objectives, establishing mid- and long-term goals for the reduction of five major pollutants across Canada, "outline the quality of the air — the big air — we're trying to maintain, to preserve," Davis told a news conference after tabling the proposals in the Commons.

The objectives won't become incorporated into the Clean Air Act, which itself won't become law for a few more days, until the government consults with citizen groups and industries on them. Sixty days will be allowed for the public to make their comments, Davis said.

But then, maximum acceptable and maximum desirable levels of sulphur dioxide, particulate matter, carbon monoxide, photo-chemical oxidants and hydrocarbons will be established as objectives.

Objectives for nitrogen oxide will be set later, as will maximum-tolerable objectives.

The objectives won't have the force of law, Davis explained, but will provide a framework within which standards will be set.

An environment department news release said the objectives also would provide a uniform yardstick for determining air quality throughout Canada, as well as a basis for preventing pollution in unpolluted parts of the country.

Under the proposed objectives, an acceptable level of air pollution would protect the living environment and provide "visibility, personal comfort and well-being."

Canada, Mexico Confer

OTTAWA (UPI) — Canadian and Mexican cabinet ministers met here Thursday in an effort to increase and diversify trade with each other so as to be less dependent on the United States.

The meeting, which is the first to be held between cabinet ministers from the two countries, was supposed "to explore ways and means of improving bilateral relations between Canada and Mexico," External Affairs Minister Mitchell Sharp told Parliament.

When Sharp visited Mexico in 1969 it was decided that a Canadian-Mexican ministerial committee should be set up to improve relations between the two countries. However, this was the first meeting.

"Mexico is one of our most important trading partners and many of us visit there from time to time. I regret that until now we have not had this meeting. But in 1969 we were engaged in trying to decide our policy on Latin America and in 1970 they were having an election in Mexico," Sharp said.

Chico Maki (16) dumps one of Sabres, goes after Gil Perreault

Sabres Run Into Hulls Kings Discover Clout

Thursday in the National Hockey League proved quite a night for the Hull brothers and Los Angeles Kings.

The Hulls scored the last three goals of the game and Buffalo Sabres, 7-2 winners in Toronto Wednesday night, were brought out of the clouds, 5-2, by Chicago Black Hawks.

And the Kings, walloped by 8-1 in Pittsburgh Wednesday night and blanked in the two games before that, broke loose to stun Philadelphia Flyers, 7-0, in a second complete turnabout.

BREAKS TIE

Bobby Hull poked in a rebound from the edge of the crease to break a 2-2 tie at 19:38 of the second period and brother Dennis scored his first two goals of the season late in the third period, the first one coming on a power play.

Hawks enjoyed a wide first-period edge but had trouble with Roger Crozier, who missed on only two of 13 shots. Pit Martin beat him on a breakaway at 8:10 and Jim Pappin later banged in a rebound.

Tonight's game between Montreal and Vancouver will be broadcast on radio station CKNW (980) starting at 8 p.m.

Sabres fought back in the middle 20 minutes and pulled even on scoring shots by Gerry Meehan and Don Luce.

POWER-PLAY GOAL

Meehan, who leads Sabres with nine points, got his fourth goal of the season only 18 seconds after Chico Maki of the Hawks had been penalized. Then Luce, who was also assisted by rookie-star Rick Martin, clicked from the short side less than four minutes later.

A crowd of 15,451, largest in Buffalo hockey history, watched as the Hawks regained control behind the scoring of the Hulls.

Victory broke a first-place tie with the Penguins in the West Division.

GAIN MOMENTUM

The goal-starved Kings gained momentum as the game went along in Philadelphia, scoring once in the first period, twice in the second and then winding it up with a four-goal flourish in the final 20 minutes.

Flyers, who had rested since last Saturday, when they scored a 1-0 win in Los Angeles, held their own territorially but found rookie Gary Edwards quite a problem.

Edwards successfully negotiated 34 scoring thrusts to play a big part in handing the Flyers their first defeat in a home opener.

Veteran Ralph Backstrom got the Kings started with a power-play goal in the seventh minute.

Juda Widing and Bob Berry scored in antagonistic second-period action and it was Eddie Joyal, Berry and Real Lemieux, who clicked twice, who turned it into a rout in the third period.

Second-period action brought two fights and two threatening situations. Blows were struck first by Flyers' Bob Kelly and Gilles Marotte, then Mike Byers of the Kings had a skirmish with Rick MacLeish which also drew major penalties.

Result boosted the Kings past Flyers into fourth place in the West Division.

Pro Leagues Endangered If Act Passes—Campbell

MONTREAL (CP) — Clarence Campbell, president of the National Hockey League, said Thursday that proposed federal legislation, if passed in its current form, "would lead to the dissolution of all professional leagues in Canada."

Campbell used a speaking engagement to the Kiwanis Club for his first public examination of impending legislation introduced by Ron Basford, consumer affairs minister, and labelled "The Competition Act."

The legislation, with wide-sweeping powers that would include amateur and professional sports, would supplant the Combines and Investigation Act of 1889.

Section 19 proposes that no person be allowed to conspire to limit unduly the opportunity of any one to deal with another team for his services.

"This legislation, if passed in its present form, would lead to the dissolution of all professional leagues in Canada," Campbell said. "But, this subject doesn't justify a trip to the 'Wailing Wall' yet."

He said the federal government has no lawful jurisdiction in this matter under the British North America Act, that legal jurisdiction rests with the provincial governments.

Campbell also answered a query about the World Hockey Association's announcement Wednesday that the newborn league does not intend to include a reserve clause in its player contracts.

"The NHL will not abandon the reserve clause under any circumstances," Campbell said.

"It's the keystone to any pro sports organization. If they (the WHA) follow this course, I predict a short life for them."

Memories To Get Stirring At Gala Centennial Reunion

By MAX LOW

A wealth of rugby talent both past and present will be in town this weekend for the Victoria Rugby Union's gala Centennial Reunion.

The real old-timers will get their chance to relive memories of the days of former greatness and to share their recollections with younger players tonight at the centennial reunion dinner at the Empress Hotel.

MORE MOBILE TO PLAY

Then the semi-veterans and some of today's top players in Canada will put on a display Saturday with two special centennial exhibition matches at Macdonald Park, the home of rugby in Victoria since the early days.

More than 170 former and present day players — some coming from various parts of Canada and a few from the United States — will attend the banquet.

Two of the real oldsters attending will be Errol Gillespie, one of the founder members of the Union and a member of Victoria's most famous rugby family in the early days, and lawyer Berkley Monteith, who as an articled law student purchased the now famous Barnard Cup.

GIANTS OF THEIR TIME

James Bay Athletic Association, Victoria's oldest rugby club, will have former team greats Barley Humber, Art Webster and Doug Bray at the dinner and from Oak Bay Wanderers, the city's second oldest club, there will be Campbell Forbes, Bill Gornall and Ron McConnan, to name just a few.

Biggest contingents, however, will come from two famous teams of the 1930s, the Scottish and the Fifth Regiment.

Sid Gaunt, Bert Buller and Harold Engleson of the Fifth Regiment will attend and Bob Travis, founder of the Scottish, will be there, along with Reg Wenman and Ted Colgate.

Many other rugby greats of the 1930s, such as George Warnock, Doug Peden and Frank Doheny, will also attend.

IT SHOULD BE GOOD

A powerful Canadian Presidents XV made up of Vancouver area players, eight of whom played for Canada in the national team's recent tour of Wales, will play the Victoria Crimson Tide rep team in the main game Saturday at 3:15 p.m.

Fullback Barry Burnham, wing Spence McTavish, centres Doug Schick and Barry Leigh, standoff-half T. K. Kariya and forwards Gary Hendrickson, Bob Jackson and Gary Fumano are the national team players in the President's XV.

Other members will be Jim Ryan, Jack Morita, Keith Nicholson, Bryan McAvity, Andy Spray, Bruce Cornwall and Charlie Lefevre.

Selected for the Crimson Tide are Cliff Yorath, Gillie Greigh, Tom Browne, Dave Slater, Ken Wilkie, Bill Ross (Castaways); John Wenman, Bob Iverson, Mike Morgan, Gordie Hawkins (Oak Bay); Mick Eckhardt, Rob Hindson, Tom Carsons, Reg Houle (UVic Vikings); and Barry Greenhaulgh (Cowichan).

In a preliminary match at 2 p.m., Internationals, a squad of semi-retired and present-day players who once played international rugby, will meet the Vancouver Island Junior Reps.

Included in the Internationals lineup are Graeme Budge (Scotland), Lin Paterson (Canada), Ed Bryans (Ireland), Jan Curnow (England), Ian Greig (Scotland, Pat McLachlin (South Africa), Bob Large (England), Ivor Ford (Canada), Don Burgess (Canada), Dave MacKenzie (Scotland), Barry Stubbs (Canada, Tim Cummings (Canada), Ray Calton (Canada), John Newton (Canada), Don Sloan (Ireland) and Max Howell (Australia and Canada).

Hunsperger Needs Surgery

Lions Get More Bad News

VANCOUVER — B.C. Lions announced Thursday that defence-tackle Garrett Hunsperger, their candidate for the outstanding lineman in the Canadian Football League, is through for the season.

Injured last Saturday in a game against Edmonton Eskimos, Hunsperger had been rated a doubtful starter for Sunday's game against Saskatchewan Roughriders but surgery on his bunged-up knee is necessary.

NEVER-ENDING

It was also disclosed Thursday that fullback Jim Evenson, who also has knee troubles, may be among those whose season has ended. The Lions knew he wouldn't be ready for the game in Regina but had been hoping he would be able to play in their last game, here against Calgary Stampeders on Saturday, Oct. 30.

Their problems are worsened by the doubtful status of halfback Larry Highbaugh and handicapping injuries to defence-back Dave Easley, end Lefty Hendrickson and halfback Jim Young.

Three newcomers are attending workouts, two of them defence tackles and the other a defence back.

The two new linemen are Doug Kriewald, 255 pounds, and 250-pound Rick Stepanek.

Harold Phillips, drafted sixth by Denver Broncos after completing his college career with Michigan State, will be signed if Highbaugh is unable to play. In that event, Wayne Matherne will move to offence and Phillips will take Matherne's spot in the defence backfield.

Best news in two weeks for the Lions, who must win at least once more to have a playoff chance, is that guard Ted Wheeler will be able to start Sunday.

Hotel Douglas, who indicated Wednesday night that they will be the team to beat in the Victoria Senior "B" Men's Basketball League, left no doubt Thursday night, hammering Drake Hotel, 119-68, at Cedar Hill Junior High School.

The defending champions were again led by Pete Simmonds, who had his second straight 22-point effort.

Simmonds, who hit on 10 of 14 free throws Wednesday night in an 84-46 triumph over Robertson's Men's Wear, got only four chances from the foul line and made good on two of them.

Corky Jossul and John Lauvaas had 17 and 15 points, respectively, for the winners, who led, 63-32, at the half.

Dan Wade scored 20 points for Drakes, who had the minimum five players at the start of the game.

No Doubts Would Be Left If Tyees Hit 10 Tonight

One of the hottest soccer teams around at the moment is Victoria High School's Tyees.

Undefeated in nine matches, the Tyees are favorites to take the Victoria Senior High School Soccer League title and the Colonist Cup and are already being tipped as the next British Columbia high school champions.

Major stumbling block for the Tyees has been — and still is — the Mount View Hornets, and Victoria gets a chance to virtually sew up the league title when they meet their arch rivals tonight at 8 at Royal Athletic Park.

A top or second-place finish in the league assures a berth in the Colonist Cup final on Friday, Nov. 12, and automatic inclusion in this year's expanded B.C. tournament, scheduled in Victoria on Nov. 18, 19, and 20.

Last season, Mount View took the league championship, finishing two points ahead of Victoria, and then edged the Tyees, 2-1, to win the Colonist Cup.

This year, the boot could well be on the other foot.

GREAT RECORD

Under the guidance of new-coach Ash Valdal, who played with Victoria Royals in the Western Canada Soccer League, and manager Keith Newell, the Tyees have scored an incredible 66 goals and have let in only five goals.

The victories include a 3-1 decision over Mount View in the first round. Hornets later tied, 2-2, with Belmont to slip three points behind the leaders.

In previous years, the "B.C. high school soccer championship" consisted of a final between the Island champion and the top school on the Mainland.

EXPANDED LAST YEAR

Last year, the B.C. tournament was established and included eight schools, two from the Island, including the winner of the Colonist Cup and the north Island survivor. Most of the schools were from the Lower Mainland and the tournament, held in Victoria, was won by Burnaby North.

This season's championship has been expanded to 12 teams, including four from Vancouver Island, two from the Greater Vancouver area, one from Burnaby-New Westminster, two from the Fraser Valley, and one each from the Okanagan, the West Kootenays and Northwest B.C. (Prince Rupert).

The winner and runner-up in the Colonist Cup final will go into the B.C. tournament, along with one team from the north Island and one from mid-Island.

B.C. tournament matches during the day will be played at Centennial Stadium but the action will switch to Royal Athletic Park in the evenings.

Right now, Valdal said, the Tyees were more concerned with winning the league championship and "the icing on the cake" — the Colonist Cup.

"The points we can win from the league championship go toward the Colonist Shield for inter-school athletics, and this is the most important thing for us," he said.

Coast-Bound Tigers Given Sad Send-Off

Medicine Hat Tigers, hoping to bolster their position before visiting Vancouver and Victoria this weekend, dropped a 5-4 overtime decision to Winnipeg Jets in Western Canada Hockey League play Thursday.

Tigers, whose only win this season was over the Cougars, open a three-game coastal swing on Friday against Vancouver Nats, meet the Cougars in Victoria Saturday, and return to Vancouver for a Sunday game.

Trailing 4-3 in the final period, Medicine Hat scored with less than three minutes remaining to force the overtime.

FORD GETS THREE

Mike Ford's third goal ended the game at 6:28 of overtime as Medicine Hat was attempting to kill a five-minute penalty assessed defenceman Ira Ross early in the extra period.

Bob Thomson and Lyle Knudson each scored once for the Jets, who remained in fifth place.

Derek Kuntz, Jeff Ablett, Stan Weir and Tom Lysiak scored for the Tigers, who took four major and two misconduct penalties.

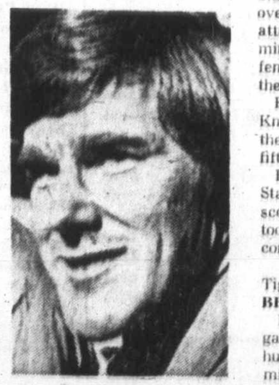
Winnipeg outshot the Tigers, 43-27.

BRUINS TRAMPLED

In another interlocking game, Brandon Wheat Kings humiliated visiting New Westminster Bruins, 9-2, before 1634 fans.

Robbie Neale paced the Wheat Kings with three goals and Ron Chipperfield scored twice.

Neil Melnyk, Bob Murdock, Brian Coates and Randy Penner added single goals for the winners while Ken Ireland scored both goals for the Bruins.



For Six Weeks

Tim Horton, 41-year-old defence veteran who helped get Pittsburgh Penguins off to good start this season, has been lost to the National Hockey League club for about six weeks. The club reported Thursday that Horton had broken his right ankle in Wednesday's game against Los Angeles Kings.

Canada Conquers Britain in Commonwealth Golf

AUCKLAND, N.Z. (CP) — Canada upset Britain's highly-rated team of Australia defeated New Zealand in the first day of play in the Commonwealth amateur golf tournament today.

The Canadian amateurs defeated the Britons 6-3 after taking the foursomes 2-1.

Doug Roxburgh, 19-year-old player from Vancouver, contributed to Canada's triumph with an unexpected win against experienced British player Rodney Foster.

A strong overnight wind helped dry out the greens following Wednesday's heavy rain which restricted play in the opening matches to only two hours.

Australia, after losing the foursomes to New Zealand 2½ to ½, struck back in the afternoon to win the singles 4½ to 1½ and take the match 5-4.

Canada and Australia lead the round-robin tournament with two points each. Britain and New Zealand have no points.

Canada's biggest singles victory was recorded by Gary Cowan of Kitchener, Ont., the U.S. amateur king, playing at No. 5 in the team order.

Cowan made a brilliant start against Britain's George MacGregor with birdies on the first three holes and went on to win 4 and 3.

But Roxburgh's 1 up win over Foster, a veteran of three Walker Cup competitions, was the day's biggest surprise. Roxburgh went round the Middlemore course in 82 — 11 over par.

British team captain Michael Bonallack was in devastating form, firing a two-under-par 69 to beat Doug Silverberg of Calgary 6 and 5.

Friday, Canada meets New Zealand and Britain plays Australia.

In other singles matches, Stuart Hamilton of Brampton, Ont., defeated Britain's Michael King 2 and 1; veteran Nick Weslock of Burlington, Ont., lost to Hugh Stuart 4 and 2; and Keith Alexander of Calgary beat Charles Green 1 up.

Playing on greens which recovered well after the downpour which washed out most of Wednesday's play, Cowan and Roxburgh—level with Green and MacGregor after six holes—slumped today to a surprise 3 and 2 defeat in the foursomes.

Weslock, 54, oldest player of the tournament and partnering Alexander, started 5 up after eight holes and lost the ninth with one over.

Then the Canadians won the 10th and 11th at par and halved the next two, also par, for an untroubled victory.

Hamilton and Silverberg scored Canada's second win after starting 1 down on the eighth.

Bonnallack and Stuart were no match for them and went under four and three.

Vancouver thoroughbred owner and trainer David Robert Baxter will face trial in a higher court on a Sidney RCMP charge of fraud.

Baxter was committed Wednesday afternoon by Judge William Ostler to a higher court for trial following a preliminary hearing which took up most of five sittings of Victoria Provincial Court over three days.

Bail was set at $3,000 by Ostler pending the higher-court trail. Baxter had been free on $5,000 bail before and during the hearing but defence lawyer Paul Delaney asked for a reduction and prosecutor Brian Smith did not oppose the bid.

The charge was laid in conform, would lead to the dissolution of all professional leagues in Canada," Campbell said. "But, this subject doesn't justify a trip to the 'Wailing Wall' yet."

He said the federal government has no lawful jurisdiction in this matter under the British North America Act, that legal jurisdiction rests with the provincial governments.

Campbell also answered a query about the World Hockey Association's announcement Wednesday that the newborn league does not intend to include a reserve clause in its player contracts.

"The NHL will not abandon the reserve clause under any circumstances," Campbell said.

"It's the keystone to any pro sports organization. If they (the WHA) follow this course, I predict a short life for them."

scheduled in Victoria on Nov. 18, 19, and 20.

Last season, Mount View took the league championship, finishing two points ahead of Victoria, and then edged the Tyees, 2-1, to win the Colonist Cup.

This year, the boot could well be on the other foot.

GREAT RECORD

Under the guidance of new-coach Ash Valdal, who played with Victoria Royals in the Western Canada Soccer League, and manager Keith Newell, the Tyees have scored an incredible 66 goals and have let in only five goals.

The victories include a 3-1 decision over Mount View in the first round. Hornets later tied, 2-2, with Belmont to slip three points behind the leaders.

In previous years, the "B.C. high school soccer championship" consisted of a final between the Island champion and the top school on the Mainland.

EXPANDED LAST YEAR

Last year, the B.C. tournament was established and included eight schools, two from the Island, including the winner of the Colonist Cup and the north Island survivor. Most of the schools were from the Lower Mainland and the tournament, held in Victoria, was won by Burnaby North.

This season's championship has been expanded to 12 teams, including four from Vancouver Island, two from the Greater Vancouver area, one from Burnaby-New Westminster, two from the Fraser Valley, and one each from the Okanagan, the West Kootenays and Northwest B.C. (Prince Rupert).

The winner and runner-up in the Colonist Cup final will go into the B.C. tournament, along with one team from the north Island and one from mid-Island.

B.C. tournament matches during the day will be played at Centennial Stadium but the action will switch to Royal Athletic Park in the evenings.

Right now, Valdal said, the Tyees were more concerned with winning the league championship and "the icing on the cake" — the Colonist Cup.

"The points we can win from the league championship go toward the Colonist Shield for inter-school athletics, and this is the most important thing for us," he said.

This is one of the best times of the year for trout fishing in the lakes.

Nanaimo area lakes have been good. Great Central and Sproat Lakes are still producing well, but most of the fish have been on the smallish side.

Cowichan Lake is still one of the best bets, with Gibbs or Tom Mack spoons best producers, even better than gang trolls. The rainbows are starting to take better, but the catches are still predominantly cutthroat trout. Shaw Creek and Nixon Creek areas of Cowichan Lake have been giving up cutthroats to six pounds on spoons.

West Bay in Victoria Harbor has been giving up searun cutthroats and now is the time to look for these sporty trout in the Gorge and in Sooke Basin, off Jackson's (Billing's) Spit.

Cowichan River has been good for jack coho and jacksprings and trout on small spinners, but the river is still closed from the Silver Bridge to the mouth. Anglers should watch for closures on many of the salmon rivers, like the Sooke, where all fishing is banned; the Nanaimo, where salmon is banned, and the Nitinat, where salmon fishing is banned.

Salmon netters have stopped fishing Juan de Fuca Strait but sports anglers in the Sooke to Oak Bay waters are still picking up some coho and some smaller chinooks. But, most of the action now is closer to the rivers where the salmon are homing in on their spawning grounds.

Sunday was the most productive fishing day of the year at Cowichan Bay, but the action is still mainly at the entrance to the bay.

Best spot for bucktailers has been between Separation Point and Burial Island. There has been a good-sized school off Salt Spring Island's Cape Keppel. Mornings have been best. Cherry Point waters have been spotty.

Chinooks are being taken deep in Sansum Narrows and Crofton, Thetis, Tent and Kuper Island waters have been giving up both coho and chinooks.

Rains have sent the big school that was concentrated in French Creek area scurrying for the rivers, but those waters are still a good bet.

Saratoga-Miracle Beach waters have been producing for Buzz Bombers.

Halibut season in these waters closes at 6 a.m. Nov. 1 and anyone caught with halibut in their possession after that date is liable to a minimum fine of $100.

Fisheries officials are encouraged by the arrival at Sooke Potholes of coho which presumably were transplanted there as salvaged fry from Demamiel Creek three years ago. This is the second year in a row that salmon from Demamiel transplants have arrived back at the foot of the falls. But these coho were transplanted to the Leech River, above the falls and that is where they apparently want to go to spawn. If a passqge could be provided over the falls a new run could be started in the Leech.

This is the problem with well-intentioned experiments. They stop when money and engineering problems are reached. Now is the time for Fisheries Minister Davis to prove that he is really serious about a program to rebuild salmon runs.

Here is a spot where the salmon are almost pleading with him to help them, but no help appears forthcoming. This summer the Opportunities For Youth workers, along with fisheries officials, transplanted another 50,000 fry from parched Demamiel to the Leech.

Fisheries officials are also keeping a sharp lookout for coho returns to Shawnigan (Millstream) Creek in Saanich Inlet where three years ago fisheries guardian Stan Ratcliffe transplanted coho fry from the parched Goldstream in a big salvage effort. But Ratcliffe was let go during an economy period and isn't around to follow through on his experiment. This is the year adult coho could be expected to return to Shawnigan Creek, which had been a barren river as far as coho were concerned.

Irresponsible hunters are always a source of concern, and they have been at it again at Sooke. As hunters are well aware, they have been almost driven from Sooke waters by irate residents. Only a part of Whiffen Spit and a small section around the mouth of Sooke River remain open to waterfowl hunters in the Sooke Harbor. But on opening weekend a party of hunters showed a great lack of concern and a lot of silliness when they staked out at the end of Whiffen Spit and banged away at sea ducks with no means of retrieving their birds. They even kept popping away when fishing boats were going by, and shot came close enough to the passing anglers to cause them considerable alarm.

Next thing you know, hunters will also be banned from Whiffen Spit, just about the last remaining local hunting spot for waterfowl shooters.

Fraud Case Sent To Higher Court

Vancouver thoroughbred owner and trainer David Robert Baxter will face trial in a higher court on a Sidney RCMP charge of fraud.

Baxter was committed Wednesday afternoon by Judge William Ostler to a higher court for trial following a preliminary hearing which took up most of five sittings of Victoria Provincial Court over three days.

Bail was set at $3,000 by Ostler pending the higher-court trail. Baxter had been free on $5,000 bail before and during the hearing but defence lawyer Paul Delaney asked for a reduction and prosecutor Brian Smith did not oppose the bid.

The charge was laid in connection with alleged substitution of a horse in the seventh race at Sandown Park Aug. 21. When the hearing began Tuesday, Ostler issued an order banning publication or broadcast of the evidence and proceedings.

Orioles Blanked in All-Star Voting

NEW YORK (AP) — Outfielder Willie Stargell and catcher Manny Sanguillen of World Series champion Pittsburgh Pirates were named today to the 1971 Associated Press All-Star baseball team.

Righthanded pitcher Ferguson Jenkins and second baseman Glenn Beckert of Chicago Cubs were also chosen by sports writers and sportscasters.

Only the Pirates and the Cubs were represented by more than one player and no member of the American League champion Baltimore Orioles made the first team although third baseman Brooks Robinson and outfielder Frank Robinson were runners-up in the voting.

Others chosen on the first team were first-baseman Lee May, Cincinnati Reds; third-baseman Joe Torre, St. Louis Cardinals; shortstop Maury Wills, Los Angeles Dodgers; outfielders Hank Aaron of Atlanta Braves and Tony Oliva of Minnesota Twins, and left-handed pitcher Mickey Lolich of Detroit Tigers.

AARON LEADS

Aaron received the most votes, 230, but Stargell was a close second in the outfield balloting with 208. Oliva was a distant third wits 130.

Aaron batted .327, hit 47 homers and drove in 118 runs. Stargell topped the majors in home runs with 48 and Oliva won the American League batting title with a .337 average.

Roberto Clemente of the Pirates, the outstanding performer in the world series, ranked fourth in outfield voting with 92. Bobby Murcer of New York Yankees was the fifth outfielder with 56, followed by Frank Robinson with 36.

Sanguillen, another Pittsburgh hitting mainstay in the Series, beat Johnny Bench of the Reds, 180-51. The hustling Pirate batted .319 during the season.

PATEK CLOSE

The closest balloting was at shortstop, where Wills edged Fred Patek of Kansas City Royals, 66-53.

Beckert, a .342 hitter, posted the biggest margin with 223 votes compared to 15 for runnerup Cookie Rojas of the Royals.

Other runnersup included first-baseman Norm Cash of Detroit Tigers, lefthander Vida Blue of Oakland Athletics and righthander Tom Seaver of New York Mets.

At first base May outpolled Cash, 88-51.

Torre, the National League's leading batter at .363 and its runs-batted-in leader with 137, collected 212 votes compared with 57 for Brooks Robinson.

Lolich and Blue were close in the voting for southpaw pitching honors with Lolich winning, 143-123. The Tigers' lefty, in compiling a 25-14 won-lost record, led the American League in strike-outs with 308. His earned run average was 2.92.

Blue, a sensation before the all-star game, also finished with impressive credentials. He was 24-8 with 301 strikeouts and his ERA of 1.82 was best in the league.

Jenkins, who won 20 or more games for the fifth straight season, was named on 127 ballots compared with 84 for Seaver. The Cubs' standout was 24-13 with 263 strikeouts, second to Seaver's league-leading 289. Seaver, 20-10, had the lowest ERA, 1.76, while Jenkins was 2.80.

Par Proves Easy In Napa Tourney

NAPA, Calif. (AP) — Tom Aaron and Hugh Royer matched six-under-par 66s Thursday and shared the first-round lead in the $150,000 Kaiser international open golf tournament.

Billy Casper headed a group of five at 67 as the touring pros took advantage of ideal conditions to make a mockery of par 72.

Tied with Casper were J. C. Snead, the standout on the recent U.S. Ryder Cup victory, Al Geiberger, Mike Hill and Jim Colbert.

Eight players, including Wilf Homenuik of Winnipeg were at 68 and Lee Trevino was one of about two dozen at 69.

More than half the field was at par or better.

George Knudson of Toronto was among 23 players deadlocked at 71 while Ken Fulton of Montreal was well down the pack with an 80.

Of the leaders, only Geiberger, a former PGA champ, played on the 6570-yard, par 35-37—72 North course at the Silvarado Country Club course.

All the others worked over the 6633-yard, par 36-36—72 South course. They'll shift around for today's second round in their chase for a $30,000 first prize.

Arnold Palmer, Jack Nicklaus and South African Gary Player are not competing.

Referees May Balk At Distaff Booter

PAYSANDU, Uruguay (Reuter) — A tall 19-year-old brunette has become the first woman in the world authorized to play soccer in a men's league.

But Claudia Vidal, who was given the nod by the Paysandu regional league to play for the local Sud America club, may still face a boycott by referees.

The local league agreed that there is nothing in the rules which excluded women from hitherto all-male teams.

It authorized Sud America to include Miss Vidal as centre-forward in its lineup. But several referees have announced they will boycott any match in which Miss Vidal, or any other women, is included in a lineup.

Schools Play 10-10 Draw At Brentwood

Shawnigan Lake Boys' School came from behind to tie Brentwood College, 10-10, Thursday in a B.C. Independent Schools Rugby League match at Brentwood College.

Alan Mason's try and Doug Anderson's convert gave Shawnigan the deadlock about 10 minutes from full time.

Roland Borsato scored a try for Shawnigan in the opening half and Jock Osler kicked a penalty goal for Brentwood to give Shawnigan a 4-3 halftime lead. In the second half, David Hawksworth got Brentwood's only try and Osler booted a drop goal to give them a 10-4 lead.

Brentwood scored three shutouts against Shawnigan Lake in other matches, 36-0 in the seconds, 26-0 in the thirds and 57-0 in the fourths. Shawnigan blanked Brentwood, 19-0, in colt play, 42-7 in colt "B" action, and 27-3 in junior colt competition.

Junior Bays Grab Off Area Honors

Oak Bay, beaten twice in league play by the defending champions, Wednesday won the girls Greater Victoria junior high school field hockey championship by dethroning Lansdowne in a scoreless game at Lansdowne. The championship was decided on corners, Oak Bay having a 10-5 edge.

The two finalists and Colquitz, 1-0 winner over Reynolds Wednesday in the game which decided the third Victoria-area representative, will all play in the Vancouver Island championship in Duncan on Saturday.

Dunsmuir, the Sooke-Saanich champion, will be the other south Island team in the 10-school playoff for the title being defended by Oak Bay.

Mt. Prevost, the host school, and Queen Margaret of Duncan and George Bonner of Mill Bay are the mid-Island representatives. Woodlands and John Barsby of Nanaimo and Campbell River will represent the north Island.

Rojas Files Huge Damage Suit

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Former California Angels' pitcher Minnie Rojas has filed a $12.4-million damage suit in connection with an automobile accident that killed two of his children and left him paralysed from the neck down.

The suit was filed in United States District Court against State Farm Mutual Automobile Insurance Co. A lawyer for Rojas and his wife, who also was seriously hurt in the crash, contends the company tried to coerce them into accepting much less money than they were entitled.

Rojas maintains his car was sideswiped by a truck in Florida in April 1970. The insurance company has asserted no other vehicle was involved.

The former relief pitcher was granted $21,630 arbitration award against the company earlier this month.

Union Solidarity Fights Unemployment

Fewer available jobs for men in building trades are the main motivating force behind the start of a concentrated organizing drive by building trade unions, spokesman John Schibli said Thursday.

Schibli, secretary of the Vancouver Island Building and Construction Trades Council, told the Colonist the drive was aimed at both mixed union and non-union building sites, as well as non-union sites.

Building union members, he said, have the right in collective agreements to refuse to work with non-union workers.

"We're looking out for the welfare of our members," he said. "We don't seek to create jobs, but to help our members to the ones that are there."

"We can seek to replace non-union people with union members on jobs," he said. "However, if a man on a site wants to become a union member, by our law he must be allowed to join."

Schibli said building unions are asking members to assert their rights and refuse to work with non-union members.

There is no problem, however, he said, on sites where there is a general contractor who is unionized, because he subcontracts to union shops.

'Rise in Workers Threat to Patient'

Registered nurses consider the increasing number of paramedical workers is a threat to patient care, says Dr. Embert Van Tilburg, executive director of St. Joseph's Hospital.

Chairman of the B.C. Hospital Association's patient care committee, he made the comment in an annual report given Thursday to the organization's annual meeting in Vancouver.

The committee had invited comments from each employee group on what they consider necessary for patient care.

Among them were the nurses, who complained about the decreasing ratio of registered nurses to the increased number of practical nurses, orderlies, operating room technicians, ward clerks and others.

Van Tilburg also said the nurses noted that doctors have to deal with a larger number of hospital workers.

"Although the doctor is the leader of the health team, he must experience great difficulty in actual supervision. He has no direct control over the selection and employment of personnel, over the purchase and maintenance of equipment, over the formulation of policies or of education."

The nurses, said Van Tilburg, addressed themselves to the safety aspects of caring for sick persons.

Tina Livanos
. . . Weds again

PANAMA CITY, Fla. — A United States Air Force master sergeant in military intelligence was accused Thursday of espionage in connection with national air defence secrets and Pentagon sources indicated there was some Russian involvement.

The Pentagon would not elaborate.

Sgt. Walter Perkins, 36, a 19-year air force veteran, was arrested and held at the guard house of nearby Tyndall Air Force Base.

Perkins, married and the father of four, was specifically charged with intent to pass classified information to unauthorized persons. The air force said the information was taken from the air defence weapons centre, the place where the air force develops and checks its national air defences.

Chuck 'em Out

In my time, I have met quite a few women who were constitutionally unable to throw anything out. No matter how useless an article, nor how outmoded a garment, they are saved, tucked away in trunks or attics or basement cupboards against the day when they might just possibly come in useful.

We gardeners have more than a little of this packrat instinct in us. Many is the time I have had to do battle with myself, after digging up a weedy, inferior perennial, before I could bring myself to heave it over the back fence.

Our gardens could be so much more attractive if we could be a bit more ruthless — if we could steel ourselves to discard a lot of the older and less attractive varieties of plants — and replace them with the modern products of the plant breeder's magic touch. It is difficult to realize what remarkable changes have taken place in our plants until you actually see the old and the new side by side.

Take the case, for instance, of the Shasta daisy. Autumn wouldn't be autumn without this grand flower in the perennial border, and I imagine about nine out of ten local gardens feature the old reliable variety Esther Reid.

Now, Esther was quite the belle of the ball when she made her debut back in 1935, but the old girl is getting a bit long in the tooth now, and I don't think you would give her a second look alongside some of her grandchildren.

There is Cobham Gold, with creamy guard petals and a pale yellow centre. Mount Shasta has fully double white flowers almost twice the size of Esther Reid, Marconi, a white semi-double flower, is unique in that it blooms twice a year; in June and July, and again in the fall. Wirral Supreme stands three feet tall with fine double flowers fully four inches across.

The Oriental Poppy is a flamboyant, eye-catching flower, but the one most commonly seen in our gardens blooms in a rather harsh brick-red shade which, to my mind, should be given the boot, for there are so many attractive colors available nowadays.

Gold of Phir, for instance, is a rich golden orange. Helen Elizabeth blooms in a pure salmon pink, while Suzanna is a glistening silvery pink. Beauty of Livermere blooms in dark crimson with black blotches, while Salmon Glow is a double poppy in orange salmon. Red Flame lights up the garden like a torch, with shining, burnished petals in bright Chinese red. None of these varieties is expensive, running around $1.50 each.

I have always had a soft spot in my heart for the foxglove, for to my mind it is by far the most attractive of the tall plants which can be grown in the shaded portions of the garden. Only too often, though, the plants have selfseeded and deteriorated, with smallish florets and wishy-washy colors.

Here again, the older kinds are completely outclassed by the Excelsior hybrids. These are fine, upstanding plants with stems almost as thick as your thumb, glowing colors, and florets all the way around the stem rather than all facing the one way.

Plyanthus primroses have a habit of backsliding over the years if you just keep on lifting and dividing them every year. The ones with the biggest florets and the best colors seem to pass quietly out of the picture while the more weedy ones multiply and take over.

The trick here is to feed a few superb new plants into your collection every year — either plants purchased with a discriminating eye from local nurseries, or the best of a batch grown yourself from really first-class seed. At the same time, a program of rigorous selection should be instituted at flowering time, giving the old heave-ho to all the inferior specimens.

The Worst Addiction

WASHINGTON — It is no coincidence that the crime rate in recent years has been rising in direct proporation to the growing number of addicts in the country. Conservative estimates say that 62.3 per cent of the nation's burglaries are now committed by "junkies," as they are called, to support their habits.

And what is the first item a junkie steals when he enters a home? It is, of course, the television set.

For it is the television set, and it alone, that can give the relief so desperately needed by these poor unfortunates addicted to the junk now being shown on television.

The soaring incidence of television addiction has become such a grave national problem that it can no longer be swept under the rug. Already, television addicts outnumber heroin addicts 10 to one, while alcoholism has become a secondary social problem.

What this has come to mean in terms of broken homes, ruined careers and destroyed lives will never be known. Suffice it to say the very survival of our society may well be at stake.

Typical, perhaps, is the case of Mr. Name Withheld of Plainfield, S.D. A year ago, Withheld was a decent husband, a good provider and a fine father to his two children, whom he took on outings every weekend.

Then one Sunday morning, a neighbor named, Joe, called. "Pssst, Name," whispered Joe. "C'mon over. I got the real thing. Wide screen in living color!"

Well, "just to try it," Withheld slipped over to his neighbor's to "watch only a few minutes" of the Packers-Jets game. Which was followed by the Lions-Tigers game. Which was followed by . . . .

Anyway, Withheld finally stumbled home at 2 a.m. bleary-eyed and stupefied. Worse yet, the following weekend he did it again.

At first, Mrs. Withheld tried to be tolerant. "Please, dear," she would say, "I don't mind an occasional binge with the boys, but these 48-hour orgies . . . Think of your children. Think of me."

"Shut up!" Withheld would snap. "I think the highlights of the Cobra-Mongoose game are on."

The beginning of the end came when Withheld stayed home from work one Tuesday to catch some videotape replays on This Morning Show.

Within a month, he'd lost his job, his wife and children had left him; and he'd sold all the furntiure except the television set in order to support his 18-hour-a-day habit.

Name Withheld had become a junkie.

Multiply the case of Name Withheld by millions and you begin to grasp the scope of the problem. Before it's too late, the public must be alerted to the dangers inherent in this electronic escape from reality.

For thus far, there is no cure, Some temporary success has been achieved by plying addicts with alcohol until they are too drunk to turn the knobs. But more promising is "Method One."

This consists of injecting heroin into the junkie's veins until he becomes hooked on it rather than television.

"At least with heroin addicts," as one expert points out, "there's a chance that some day they may return to leading useful, productive lives."

Marilyn Beck

Youth Saluted

Melvyn Douglas, now 71, has recently completed work on Death Takes a Holiday, an ABC Movie of the Weekend for October 23 airing, and talked of sharing credits with Yvette Mimieux and Monte Markham, comparing them and the rest of the crop of current-day actors and actresses with some of the old-timers he knew. "If anything, these young people are more talented than ever. And, with some obvious exceptions, more dedicated to their craft, and much more disciplined. A lot of us certainly didn't have a reputation for discipline back in the old days. My goodness, when I think of some of the stories! Jack Barrymore, for instance." As far as comparing the approach of today's film offering with those of yesteryear, the veteran actor said, "Yes, language, sex, are more explicit now, but what's wrong with that if it's for the cause of valid drama?" And then he came up with a shocker as he made a point, "What's so different now? I think those old Andy Hardy movies were as close to disguised pornography as anything could be. Not explicit, of course, but highly suggestive as I recall, and just because a bunch of adolescents were doing it didn't make it less suggestive."

The papparazzi corps is pouting. Those photo fellows claim all that talk about both Ethel Kennedy and Claudine Longet planning to show at Andy Williams' Caesar's Palace opening was a phony from the very beginning. They found that out too late, and that the chatter was started to create some publicity for the event, with photographers charging up to Vegas in hopes of grabbing shots of Andy's estranged wife and Ethel, his current interest. Claudine, the word later came out, was in South America with a boy friend, and never had any intention of attending. And neither did Ethel.

Los Angeles High School is holding its reunion for the class of '46 on November 13, at the Beverly Hills Hotel and the committee is finding it fascinating from the forms they've received that out of that group of 1,000 students not one went on to become an actor or an actress. It does seem to prove the point that the best way to get discovered by Hollywood is to live somewhere else.

Sydney Harris

On Man and Weather

Over the last two decades, a great deal of research has been done on "allergic" reactions to food, dust, pollen and other substances. Indeed, the word "allergy" has become wildly overworked in modern parlance.

As yet, however, little research has been done on individual sensitivity to weather. I am convinced that people are as "alergic" to different kinds of weather as they are to foods, flowers or furs.

I have friends who flourish on hot and humid days, when I want to collapse into a basket. Not only physically, but also emotionally, I go to pieces when the atmosphere is oppressive and watery.

Conversely, I know many people who are abnormally sensitive to cold weather: they shake and shrivel and turn purple all over. And their whole mental outlook changes from cheerfulness to surliness.

Primitive societies were much more aware of the delicate relationship between weather and mood. They intuitively selected certain times of the year, or the month, for special activities; they made sacrifices to the weather gods, and lived on intimate terms with the vagaries of climate.

In years to come, I feel sure, people will be classified as "weather types," just as they are now classified as blood types. They will recognize that in certain weather they must not make important decisions or undertake arduous duties.

There is no doubt, of course, that some persons are more sensitive to weather changes than others — exactly as some are more sensitive to foods or liquors.

My own moods of depression or elation are a direct consequence of the physical atmosphere; I have learned that, on certain days, I must temper my activities until the wind turns or the rains come.

Doubtless this sounds superstitious and barbaric to modern ears, but we are not entirely the creatures of civilization we like to think.

There are certain shimmering hot nights in summer when the blood is stirred, when one can hear the rumble of trouble in the air, when long-repressed passions are straining to break loose and run amok.

Man's physical climate is an essential component of his emotional life. Mountain dwellers and desert dwellers and seaside dwellers develop distinctive personalities and approaches to life, based on temperature and sea level and surrounding foliage.

The investigation of climate, and its impact on human temperament, would give us a deeper understanding of diverse cultures, as well as a more controlled awareness of our own individual weather chart.

Housing Tenders Set Back

Deadline for tenders on a 60-unit, dispersed low-income rental housing project in Saanich has been moved back a month to Thursday, Nov. 18.

The project, said to be unique in the province, calls for 75 per cent of capital funding from the federal government, and 25 from the province. Operating costs will be shared by the federal, provincial and municipal (Saanich) agencies on a 75-12½-12½ basis.

"It is a new approach," Saanich deputy planner Gil Laurenson told the Colonist Thursday in a telephone interview.

"I think the federal government is starting to see the folly of large projects ... most of which are destined to wind up as ghettoes," Laurenson said.

The tender specifications call for 60 dwellings of two and three bedroom units, detached, semi-detached or row housing, in groups of 20 or less.

"Ideally, developers and builders should look to urban areas in the southern and western parts of the municipality," Laurenson said.

Rents for the units will be fixed by the B.C. Housing Management Commission, which will operate the units, when completed.

Mount Rainier Nearing Blow?

TACOMA, Wash. (AP) — Is Mount Rainier heating up, perhaps preparing to blow its top?

On clear days and with the right wind conditions, steam is visible at several points on the mountain. But Thursday morning the mountain seemed to be working up an unusually large head of steam. Mount Rainier, one of a chain of former active volcanoes along the West Coast of the continent, has been dormant for years.

Old-Age Pension Urged at 60

OTTAWA (CP) — Old-age pensions for workers who retire at age 60 were proposed by the Social Credit party in the Commons Thursday as one way to ease Canada's unemployment problems.

Thomson Profit Down Sharply

LONDON (CP) — The Thomson Organization Ltd., headed by Canadian-born Lord Thomson, showed net profits after taxes of £874,000 during the first half of 1971, down sharply from 1.6 million in the corresponding period of 1970.

Student Head 'Re-Elected' At Camosun

Camosun College student Wayne McStravick was elected student body president by a 205-177 majority in a re-run vote Wednesday against Roberta Colli.

The re-run was made necessary due to a technicality in the first vote but all other student officers remained elected on the basis of the first vote, a college official said.

McStravick also won the first election.

The election of McStravick completes the roster of student-officers at the college, including the student Academic Advisory Committee, which has ⅓ student, ⅓ faculty and ⅓ administrative personnel.

Jobless Pay: Frontal Attack

Members of the highways council of the B.C. Government Employees Union are planning a frontal attack on Premier Bennett over unemployment insurance, the Victoria Labor Council was told Wednesday.

"If Bennett thinks he is going to opt out of unemployment insurance, he has another think coming," a BCGEU delegate told the council.

The delegate said, "Jobs are too uncertain today for a person to be without unemployment insurance."

He told the council the highways section of the BCGEU was mapping a strategy to persuade Premier Bennett that government employees should remain in the unemployment insurance program.

In other business the council:

- Voted unanimously to "publicly deplore the attack on Soviet Premier Kosygin during his official visit ... Canada might well aspire to be a centre for harmonizing the actions of nations in the attainment of international co-operation."
- Cancelled the council meeting of Wednesday, Nov. 27, to permit attendance at the B.C. Federation of Labor convention in Vancouver.
- Gave first reading to a bylaw change to grant members the right to appeal to an ombudsman appointed by the Canadian Labor Congress.
- Moved to support any group opposing highrise development on Victoria's Inner Harbor waterfront, support a suggested provincial capital beautification committee, and poll civic candidates on attitude toward highrises.

Mahalia Jackson 'Much Improved'

Singer Flies Home Today

FRANKFURT, Germany (UPI) — American gospel singer Mahalia Jackson will be flown home to Chicago today aboard a U.S. military medical evacuation plane, an army spokesman announced Thursday.

In preparation for the flight, the army flew Miss Jackson Thursday from Munich, where she has been in hospital since Sept. 25, to Frankfurt. She was to spend the night in the army's 97th general hospital in Frankfurt.

Miss Jackson, 60, suffered severe chest pains in the middle of a six-week concert tour of Europe. She entered a U.S. Army hospital in Munich Sept. 25 and military doctors diagnosed coronary disease with angina.

The hospital said the singer had a history of heart disease.

She had to be transported on a stretcher Thursday and will be flown home that way. But the army spokesman said her condition was "very much improved."

In Chicago, Miss Jackson will be taken to the private Billings general hospital under care of her private physician, the spokesman said. The singer's home is in south Chicago.

Petrosian Pained By Losses

By RAY KERR
Colonist Staff

The way Bobby Fischer plays chess is enough to make you sick — just ask his opponents.

The latest to have to postpone a match against the Los Angeles chess wizard is former world champion Tigran Petrosian of the Soviet Union, who had to beg off their world semi-final match in Buenos Aires, Argentina, because of illness.

Fischer, 28, currently leads the match 4½-2½ and needs only two wins or four draws to qualify for the world championship final against Boris Spasskay of the Soviet Union, the current titleholder.

The eighth game of the match now is scheduled for Sunday as Dr. Cecilio Sklair, official physician of the tourney, said Petrosian "needed some rest." He said the 42-year-old Russian was suffering from "stomach pains."

Petrosian was perfectly healthy until Fischer won two games in a row to put Petrosian in an almost-untenable position of having to win three of the remaining five games to take the match. So far he's only won once, Fischer three times.

The postponement gives Fischer's playoff opponents a perfect score in that regard.

Soviet Union's Mark Taimanov fell behind Fischer 3-0 in their challengers' quarter-final match . . . and promptly delayed it by begging off a scheduled game or two. He still lost 6-0.

In the next round, Denmark's Bent Larsen also fell behind 3-0, and the procedure was repeated. He, too, lost 6-0.

Money Issue Vital to Raiding War

IWA Factions May Lock Horns Today

By DON COLLINS
Colonist Reporter

VANCOUVER — Rival forces within the International Woodworkers of America are expected to lock horns today over a money issue that is vital to the union's plan to conduct a raiding war against the Pulp and Paper Workers of Canada.

Delegates to the Western Canada region convention of the IWA here are to be faced with a resolution that would raise dues from $1.05 a month to $1.30.

But by Thursday night it wasn't known whether they would be asked to back the proposal or vote non-concurrence. Even the constitution committee which is bringing it forward is reportedly split on the question.

But, in order to created a program for its intended raiding on the membership of the smaller union, the IWA figures it would have to hire at least three additional organizers and two evaluators.

The suggested dues increase would just about cover this. The regional council is also in the red after overspending by about $19,000 last year.

In a badly split voice vote Wednesday, delegates authorized a policy under which the IWA would try and win jurisdiction of the eight B.C. mills now represented by the 5,000-member PPWC.

The reasoning is that the PPWC is outside the regular house of labor, is looked on as a "rebel" organization and is accused of conducting continuous raids on the IWA.

Some of the objection to the raiding policy comes from delegates who sincerely want to avoid inter-union warfare and concentrate on the serious matter of negotiations that face the industry early next year.

Those in the camp of regional president Jack Moore feel this bloc will try and stand in the way of a dues increase as a means of further embarrassing Moore and his executive.

The first embarrassment came earlier in the convention when the opposition managed to wipe out the executive's appointment of regional first vice-president Wyman Trineer to the international executive board.

Alternate Bill Schumacher of Kelowna was moved up in Trineer's place and when it came time to elect another alternate Thursday, it was another victory for Moore's political foes.

Doug Evans, financial secretary of the 7,000 member Vancouver local, was elected in a battle with John Squire, financial secretary from the Port Alberni local.

William Head Inmate Knifed in Prison Fracas

Colwood RCMP and officials at the William Head minimum-security institution in the Metchosin area Thursday were investigating an early morning incident in which an inmate received severe knife wounds.

Prison officials said the 30-year-old inmate, identified only as being an Alberta man, was cut so badly on the left arm a bone was broken and also received cuts on his right hand. He was reported in fair condition at Veterans' Hospital in Victoria. Police said no arrests had been made.

'Why No Museum Profit?'

Victoria Mayor Courtney Haddock brought up a favorite topic Thursday at the city's finance committee meeting — the inability of cultural or artistic institutions to pay their own way.

This time, the mayor said there was no reason why the Maritime Museum couldn't be self-supporting, or even make a profit.

"This is what bothers me; why can't they get into the black? They should look around for someone to put the operation into the black;" Haddock said.

His remarks came in connection with a request from the Maritime Museum, Bastion Square, for property tax exemption in 1972 which was recommended by the committee to the incoming council's budget committee.

They mayor said taxpayers shouldn't have to support the museum.

'Mainly a Matter of Conscience'

Citizenship in Youthful Eyes

By GEORGE INGLIS
Colonist Reporter

Thirty-five slightly bemused high school students sat through citizenship ceremonies for 24 new Canadians Thursday, conducted by Judge Norman Oreck, President of the courts of Canadian Citizenship for B.C.

The students, the second such group to witness the monthly citizenship proceedings, were Grade XI social studies students from Victoria high school — there by mutual agreement of the Victoria Citizenship Council, Men's Canadian Club, and the school board.

Their impressions were candid:

"The speech was long and hard to understand," Alan Bisson, 17, said of Oreck's address on the civil liberties the new citizens would enjoy.

Stephen Rithwell, 16, said he thought the speech was good, getting across the basic ideas of what the new citizens would be entitled to, "but I am not sure whether they really understood it," he said, referring to the fact many of the new citizens spoke broken English.

Danny St. Pierre, 16, a native Victorian, said he felt the government should begin to look toward placing restrictions on skilled labor import and should stop unskilled laborers from coming to Canada, "the way unemployment is now."

St. Pierre approved of Oreck's speech saying, "He didn't say too much, or too little."

Wendy McCaughey, 17, said she would be interested in learning more of the mechanics of immigration, "I don't know what the screening process is, how they decide whether they should become citizens or not."

Robert Holliston, 16, said he felt the ceremony was impressive to the individual. A native Victorian, he said proudly, "I wouldn't take any other citizenship."

Dugald Nasmith, 16, said he liked the personal touch employed by Oreck (in relating personal circumstances in connection with some of the candidates), and added he felt Canada should get tougher on immigrant selection and should stress the importance of those living in the country taking up citizenship.

'He didn't say too much or too little'

'Speech was long and hard to understand'

"Look at all those people from the U.S. living here," Nasmith said. "When the crunch comes between us and the U.S., which side will they choose?"

Oreck had cautioned the new citizens against becoming disillusioned if they did not find some of the freedoms available in actual practice.

"These are ideals," he said, "and citizens must work to maintain them.

"Mainly, however, citizenship is a matter of conscience," Oreck told the new citizens, "and most Canadians take their rights for granted, because they have known nothing else."

Oreck's preamble included the information that two candidates who should have been processed at Courtenay, Mr. and Mrs. John Colter, formerly from the U.S., had joined the 22 candidates originally scheduled for the ceremony so they could go through with their son Craig, a student at University of Victoria, who plans to become a teacher.

The senior citizen in the ceremony was Mrs. Rhoda Oliver, 81, from the U.S., whose chief interest was in hospitals, of which she said, "The nice thing about hospitals, they take anyone regardless or race, creed or color."

The most unusual occupation among the new Canadians was that of Scottish immigrant Mrs. Elsie Power, who helps her husband construct crossword puzzles.

Aside from those mentioned above, the countries and citizens were:

China, Mrs. Gim Hoy Mar, Mrs. Thick May Ng, Mrs. Joan King Wong, Mrs. Chun Kam Yee.

Czechoslovakia, Rudolph Eberle and his wife Susanna from Poland; Greece, Ioannis Kalliakoudas; Hungary, Istvan Kovacs; U.S., Paul Olson, and Philippines, Ninfa Batilaran.

Recreational Centre

Saanich Groups Eye Work Plan

A federal make-work plan to boost construction of multi-purpose exhibition buildings has spurred hope for a Saanich peninsula recreation centre.

Two separate organizations expressed interest in the plan Thursday night after details were released in Ottawa by the agriculture department.

One, the Saanich Peninsula Agricultural and Recreational Association, has been working for some time to obtain a recreational and athletic centre for the peninsula.

The other, the North and South Saanich Agricultural Society, is mainly concerned with the exhibition side of the plan but a spokesman said any building the society built could well be a multi-purpose one.

Under the terms of the plan a total of $10 million now and about $90 million more within 15 years will be made available to exhibition boards and commissions for building construction and improvements.

But the department noted that although the buildings will be associated with exhibition activities, they must be the type that can be used for "community meetings, entertainment, sports and so on" to qualify for loans.

This multi-purpose building is exactly the sort which SPARA has been seeking throughout the year.

And for that reason, spokesman Al Storey told the Colonist Thursday night, as soon as the outline of the plan was announced by Finance Minister Edgar Benson last week, the organization sent a telegram to its MP, David Anderson, asking how it could apply for some of the money.

SPARA's difficulty in obtaining the money will likely be that it is not an exhibition board and basically, according to Storey, has no interest in running exhibitions. However, the group is officially an agricultural association.

The organization hoped the centre could also be used for community meetings, for entertainment, and even for small conventions, he said.

The North and South Saanich Agricultural Society's main concern is in running the Saanichton fairgrounds, and in holding a large agricultural fair on the Labor Day weekend each year.

It has never been concerned with the problem of obtaining more recreation facilities for the peninsula.

But president Bud Michell said in a separate interview Thursday that if the sort of building required was a multi-purpose one, then the society might well be able to build one.

Informed of the program by the Colonist, he said he was certain the society would try to obtain some of the federal money, possibly for this winter's program.

Exact details of the application, including the amount to be asked for and what sort of structure would be built, would have to be worked out by the society board, he said.

Storey said he saw no possibility of the two societies combining to construct a building under the plan.

He said their aims were too divergent for them to co-operate in such a venture.

But for the same reason, he said, he did not think the two would be in competition for the funds.

"We want a recreation centre, but we don't want to tread on anyone's toes to get one," he said.

Breathalyser Accuracy Court Test

The Borkenstein Breathalyser machine which has become part of Canada's system of justice since laws against drinking drivers were toughened in 1969 is coming under severe attack in a case that is due to continue Nov. 12 in Victoria Provincial Court.

Dermod Owen-Flood, defence lawyer for Ralph Pashley, 51, of 3946 Cedar Hill Cross Road, is claiming the machine is inadequate for its present purpose — to give an accurate reading of the alcohol content in the blood of an accused person.

Many sittings of the court's traffic section Wednesday and Thursday were occupied by the trial of Pashley on a Victoria charge of impaired driving April 2.

Highlight of the testimony to date has been evidence by Dr. Kenneth Thornton, a leading B.C. pathologist and head of pathology at Royal Jubilee Hospital.

In brief, Thornton said the Breathalyser was subject to certain "random errors" and the medical condition of an accused person could also affect the machine — in Pashley's case, a diabetic condition.

He said one reading alone from the machine was "useless," from a scientific view, and Owen-Flood explained both the law and police practice growing out of it contain no provision for a second reading.

The trial, before Judge E. F. N. Robinson, was adjourned Thursday to Nov. 12 when prosecutor Peter Birkett will call Victoria police identification officer Bernard Brennan in rebuttal to Thornton's testimony.

Owen-Flood also said he will conduct the defence in another impaired-driving case due the same day, in which the conditions were "almost the same" and the Breathalyser would be under attack again.

University Elections On Again

On-again, off-again student elections at the University of Victoria are on again.

A special meeting of the student Representative Assembly held Wednesday night ratified a decision taken at a Sunday meeting of the RA to invalidate the Oct. 12 elections and hold new ones Nov. 1.

Wednesday's special meeting was called by student president Ian McKinnon who had claimed a quorum of 16 was not present at Sunday's meeting and therefore the decision taken was not binding.

A quorum of 16 plus three was reached at Wednesday's meeting.

Increasing Reforestation Key to Shrinking Stands

Williston

Resources Minister Ray Williston said Thursday the increasing alienation of B.C. forest lands for recreational and wilderness uses means foresters will have to work harder at maintaining their industry's productivity.

He spoke at a luncheon at the closing session of the Canadian Institute of Foresters' annual meeting at the Empress.

Williston said the provincial government's environment and land use committee, of which he is chairman, has noted that the demand for other uses of forest land is growing.

"Some of the strongest and most persistent demands are coming from large segments of the public which want to see major areas of forest land set aside for recreational use and wilderness areas.

"The B.C. Forest Service is working diligently to make a concurrent recreational and industrial use feasible but it is obvious there must be a diminution of the land available to industry," said Williston.

He added that he does not expect such a process will be as drastic as some fear but persons involved in forest management will have to make serious efforts to offset the losses.

In addition, said Williston, increased productivity would help solve some of the forest industry's problems with respect to labor costs, pollution control and general environmental protection.

Recognizing the need to increase the industry's productivity, the B.C. Forest Service has set up a committee to provide guidelines and leadership in intensifying forest management practices.

Williston said the province's forest industry mainly has been harvesting natural stands, or "old growth."

"Now, however, in the areas of better sites the old growth is disappearing, which means that it is imperative that we properly manage the new growth stands," he said, adding that industry is encouraged to create more managed timber stands through government incentives such as increased allowable cut and forestry cost allowances.

"This means that, on a long-term basis as natural stands are logged out, the committee is responsible for developing managed stand yield tables which will complement the natural stand yield tables we now have."

Williston also pointed out that a committee has been appointed to co-ordinate forestry research, now being done by the provincial and federal governments, the University of B.C. and industry.

At Highest Level

Federal-Provincial Parley Urged on Forest Policy

A federal-provincial conference on forest policy, possibly at the level of the 10 premiers and the prime minister, was advocated here Thursday by a forestry authority from Nova Scotia.

Hans Akesson, who manages the 3,700,000 acres that are in Nova Scotia Pulp Ltd's wood procurement area, made the comment in an interview after he had given a paper at the annual meeting of the Canadian Institute of Forestry.

He said a federal forest policy would be the only instrument that could regulate the entry of new producers and production areas into markets. This is a principle of the national oil policy.

Until such policy is arrived at and enforced at a federal level, it is possible that one province might suddenly allow an expansion of its pulp and paper industry. The resulting avalanche of products forces down the prices for all producers.

Low world market prices might not only force closure of some mills but they could result in producers abandoning forest management programs because of cost.

In his paper to the CIF, Akesson noted the industries exploiting the primeval forest — and this appeared to be a reference to those in B.C. — enjoy a cost advantage in comparison with those harvesting second growth.

"Let us hope that governments in areas where there is an abundance of primeval forest do not give away those forests," he added.

Another threat to silviculture is "the manipulators of general opinion who could convince the public that clear-cutting is always an ecologically detrimental practice."

(Clear-cutting involves removal of all standing timber, including rotting and dying trees before the site is replanted?)

Helen

Child Injured In Accident

A two-year-old Langford girl, Charyl Bryce, of 2818 Leigh Road, was reported in fairly good condition in St. Joseph's Hospital Thursday night after she was run over by a car in the parking lot of the Langford Lake Store. Colwood RCMP identified the driver of the car as Mrs. Loretta Brighton, of 2849 Lake End Road, and said the girl was apparently lying behind the Brighton car when the accident occurred.

Triple Crash Injures One

Jack Rossiter, 46, of 2392 Mount St. Michael Drive, Central Saanich, was released from St. Joseph's Hospital Monday night. He had been treated for minor injuries received earlier in the evening when the car he was driving was involved in a three-car crash at 4967 Patricia Bay Highway, Saanich police reported. Police said drivers of the other two cars were Mark Aitken, 25, of 2603 Prior and Peter Caleb, 38, of 1950 Nicholas, Central Saanich.

Island Host

The Vancouver Island division of the B.C. Honey Producers Association will host the 1971 meeting of the central executive of the provincial association Oct. 29 and 30 at the Imperial Inn.

Ontario Indians Seek Status Decision Swap

BRANTFORD, Ont. (AP) — Representatives of about 20,000 Ontario Indians want the Supreme Court of Canada to overrule a Federal Court of Canada decision allowing Indian women who marry non-Indians to retain their Indian status.

Norman Lickers, president of the Association of Iroquois and Allied Indians, said this week his group has asked Indian Affairs Minister Jean Chretien to appeal the judgment in the Jeannette Corbier Lavell case delivered Oct. 8.

The Federal Court ruled that the Indian Act, under which Mrs. Lavell, 28, lost her status as a member of the Wikwemikong band, "offends the right of such an Indian woman to equality before the law."

Mrs. Lavell, an Ojibwa from Manitoulin Island, married a non-Indian student April 1, 1970.

Lickers said that under the court decision, an Indian woman who marries a non-Indian may retain her status but her children whose father is non-Indian may not reside on the reserve or have Indian status.

"It would mean that if she wanted to live on the reserve her husband and children could visit her but would have to get band-council permission to stay on the reserve," Lickers said. "They would not belong to the band."

An Indian affairs department directive last week ended the removal of women's names from the Indian register if they marry non-Indians. The decision was taken pending a department study of whether those already removed should be reinstated.

As many as 5,000 women may be involved, a department spokesman said.

Island Bands Won't Fight

Vancouver Island Indians have no plans for opposing the federal court ruling, according to Gordon Elliott, president of the Vancouver Island Tribal Federation.

He said he can see difficulties in re-assimilating the women into band life, but that he feels the effort should be made.

He pointed out that when a woman loses her Indian status by marrying a non-Indian she is given her share of any band funds.

"It would be nice," he said, "if there was a possibility of getting some of that money back."

However, for the sake of the women who are left alone he felt that efforts should be made to solve the problems and to get them back in the bands.

I personally can't see anything wrong with trying to make this ruling work, not only for the benefit of the ladies who have lost their status, but also because a lot of them would be able to help the cause of Indians if they were able to come back into our community," he said.

"This could be a big problem for the individual bands, and I think its a problem that will have to be solved by the individual bands, but it is possible to do something about it," said Elliott.

Woman Keeps Prices Down

PICTON, Ont. (CP) — Mrs. Clinton Baumhour of Picton is doing her part to keep living costs down. She collects used clothing and after washing and mending it sells it to those who can use it. Most things are priced from five cents to $1, or just enough to cover the expense of cleaning and mending.

Golden Wedding

Mr. and Mrs. G. N. V. Davis of 265 Superior, Victoria, will mark their golden wedding anniversary Saturday by receiving friends and relatives at home of their son, Douglas Davis of 2951 Altamont Crescent, West Vancouver, from 2 to 6 p.m. Mr. and Mrs. Davis were married 50 years ago in Golden. They have also lived in Calgary and Moose Jaw.

Birth Controllers Take Petitions Into Schools

Petitions seeking support for the Birth Control Rights Committee are being circulated this week in a number of Greater Victoria junior and senior high schools, and the committee is actively seeking endorsement for its program from teachers, parents and groups.

The committee proposes a mobile birth control clinic be set up with trained personnel to dispense information, devices and counselling to junior high and high school students in the schools, chairman Barbara Dunderdale told a meeting Wednesday night.

The committee, mostly high school students, was formed in July. They say sex education courses in the schools are inadequate, and students, especially girls, have little opportunity to obtain adequate methods of birth control.

One Reynolds junior high girl told the meeting that that school's family life program consisted of three one-hour sessions that did not cover conception, birth control or abortion.

However, Sam Dumka, vice-principal at Reynolds, said in a telephone interview that "Conception, birth control and abortion are dealt with in the lectures, and students are allowed to ask questions."

Grade 8 gets four lectures in Reynolds, Dumka said.

In the past week, leaflets about the committee have been distributed to junior highs, and the petitions now in circulation will eventually be presented to the school board.

In the meantime, information committees of interested students are being set up in the schools.

Advertising Code Pressure Result

TORONTO (CP) — Government and consumer pressure forced the Canadian Advertising Advisory Board to draw up its recent code of ethics in relation to broadcast advertising for children, the board president said Wednesday.

Robert Oliver told the Association of Canadian Advertisers the self-imposed controls on the industry were necessary to avoid government controls.

He promised the board will "move rapidly" where there are inadvertent or deliberate violations of the code which is responsible to children 12 years of age and under.

Requirements of the code:

- Products not intended for use by children must not be advertised to children;
- No single commercial nor segments of it should be presented more than once in any regularly scheduled program, specials excepted;
- Written, sound, photographic and other visual presentations must not exaggerate service, product or premium characteristics;
- Results of the construction or use of a product should be depicted as they might be achieved by an average child;
- Personalities or characters on children's programs will not be used to promote products on their own programs;
- Nationally known persons other than professional actors or announcers will not be used in advertising directed at children;
- Price should not be used as a source of undue pressure to purchase;
- Toy advertisements will not make direct comparisons with previous year's models of competitive makes;
- Messages must not reflect disdain for parents or parental judgment or casually portray undesirable family living habits;
- Advertising must not imply that possession of a product makes the owner superior.

Family Faced With Eviction

SOUTH SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — Mrs. Jacqueline Collum and her three fatally-diseased children are being evicted from their home.

The owner of the modest suburban house wants the Collums out so his daughter can live there.

Mrs. Collum, a 34-year-old divorcee, has received more than $7,000 in spontaneous contributions from throughout the world for her three living children, ages six, seven and 12, who have Batten's disease, a rare nervous disorder which blinds, cripples and brings on death at an early age.

The family's plight came to public notice when the oldest child, Patty, 13, died of the disease and there was a dispute over a county burial allowance.

Now the woman says she has received notice from her landlord that he wants her to move out because his daughter and her husband, for whom he built the house, want to move in.

County welfare officials, who pay most of the rent, say it is going to be difficult to find suitable quarters for the family.

Harry Lynds, the landlord, said: "No one has more sympathy for Mrs. Collum than I, but I simply want to make use of my own property."

Ann Landers

Dear Ann Landers: Me writing to YOU. I can't believe it, but here I am — ashamed because I can't handle this problem myself.

My mother came to live with us over a year ago. She was very sick and needed care. In June she had surgery, made a remarkable recovery and now looks and feels better than I do. Mother is 68 years old, financially independent, owns two lovely homes and has many friends — 2,000 miles away.

Since she has regained her health I feel like a prisoner in my own home. She includes herself in all our social activities, just assumes she is invited. Wherever we go, she goes. Every day she says, "I'm so happy here. I'll never live alone again."

Mother may be happy but I am miserable. I used to look forward to her visits and we even enjoyed taking her on vacations, but to have her with me 24 hours a day is driving me crazy. I find myself hiding in my room.

I'd never ask her to move. I don't want to hurt her, yet I feel gutless for not being able to free myself. Am I a bad daughter because I can't openhandedly share my home with my mother? I am boxed in on all sides. You are my only hope. She reads your column every day. Maybe she'll recognize herself.— Anonymous, Of Course.

Dear An: She won't recognize herself. She'll think she's the exception — and there Are exceptions, but they are as scarce as hen's teeth. Gallery Pulls Gaze to Arctic Arctic Day, work by contemporary Canadian artist Joyce Wieland on display at National Gallery in Ottawa, draws examination from Lyudmilla Gvishiani, daughter of Soviet Premier Alexei Kosygin, right, and Margaret Trudeau, wife of prime minister. Arctic Day consists of colored drawings of animals and flowers on small cloth cushions. Mrs. Gvishiani is on eight-day visit to Canada with her father.

'So-Called Sales' Oversold

Eaton's Fined For False Ad

TORONTO (CP) — The T. Eaton Co. was found guilty Thursday of false advertising and fined $200 by Provincial Judge Robert Dnieper.

Dnieper also warned the department store company that if it is convicted of the same offence again, "there will be an unlimited fine, at the discretion of the judge." He also warned the retail trade generally to clean up practices of holding "so-called sales" of merchandise.

The Eaton company pleaded not guilty to the charge under the Combines Investigation Act, which arose out of an advertisement Aug. 8, 1970, which said mink coats ordinarily priced from $1.200 to $1.300 were on sale for $897.

Evidence during the trial showed that the firm has sales on 114 days of the year, with 186 days for regular price selling.

Dnieper said "the number of days out of a year on which there are sales leads the court to the enescapable conclusion that the word 'sale' is misapplied."

"I do not attach any moral culpability to the T. Eaton Co., but must state this is a custom of the trade . . . that cannot continue," he said.

"If retailers wish to continue in this practice, they are at liberty to use words such as 'event,' or 'special purchase.' or some other words. But, the word 'sale' in this context means something special where the store is lowering prices for the purpose of getting rid of merchandise."

"In any case, a sale that goes on for at least 114 days a year is not a sale, and prices charged on other days cannot be described as ordinary prices, he said.

Consumer Aides Pursue Equity

By SUSAN BECKER

OTTAWA (CP) — A group of enthusiastic consumer consultants capped a week of briefings here recently by a session with the top man himself, Consumer Affairs Minister Ron Basford.

Each year since the first consultants were appointed in 1969, they converge to talk with departmental officials about new or planned consumer protection legislation and trade information on consumer problems and programs in their regions.

Department spokesmen say they are informed and interesting and contend many consumers could benefit by talking to them, given enough time.

But since there are relatively few consultants for a vast land, they have to direct most of their information about such things as the federal government's consumer protection legislation at larger audiences. They speak to groups of consumers and retailers, and give radio and television talks.

They keep in touch with consumer and retail organizations and help consumers with complaints, although the consumer may take these direct to the department by writing The Consumer, Box 99, Ottawa.

There are consultants for the Atlantic region, Quebec, Ontario, the Prairies and British Columbia. Regional managers are in Halifax, Montreal, Toronto, Winnipeg and Vancouver, with consultants working out of each of these cities and assistant consultants in St. John's, Nfld., Fredericton, Regina and Edmonton.

The consultants' jobs vary somewhat by regional needs. In Vancouver, for instance, they handle a heavy load of complaints. This doesn't leave them time to do as much work with retailers as the Winnipeg consultant, Tannis Yankewicz.

She holds sessions with buyers and administrators of large department stores. She tells them what concerns consumers have and in turn learns about their problems.

"Whatever we do, the basic intent is to create just a little more equity in the marketplace," says Sally Merchant, an assistant consultant in Edmonton.

Nancy Downing, Montreal, says much of a consultant's work is trying to help consumers help themselves.

"A well-informed consumer is his own best protection in the marketplace," adds Lois Smith of Vancouver.

The government could legislate to provide warning labels on hazardous products, she says. But unless consumers read them, they could not fully benefit.

Nancy Downing says that it helps a consultant follow up a consumer complaint properly when the consumer is able to document it. But she notes: "We are not offering legal advice.

"When something is referred to us that is under provincial jurisdiction, we pass it on to the provinces and they handle it."

The consultants, who generally travel frequently in their areas, are able to draw on the experience of the department's regionally based inspection staff. It is concerned with such things as electricity and gas meters, weights and measures.

"If a consumer brings in a matter falling clearly under the department's jurisdiction and which needs investigation, the inspectors look into it," Nancy Downing says. "But once an investigation begins, we can't tell the consumer about it."

Expansion Set For Victoria

Eaton's is planning a "definite growth program" across Canada, T. Eaton Co. president Robert Butler told Victorias store management personnel at a private dinner this week.

Butler, the head of retail operations of the department store chain, and Donald Hudson, general manager of B.C. stores for Eaton's, were on a swing through Vancouver Island stores in Courtenay, Nanaimo and Duncan, as well as Victoria.

The operating heads were accompanied by J. Craig Eaton, chairman of the board of Eaton's of Canada, which is the holding company for the stores, and Frederik Eaton, president of the holding company.

Victoria store manager Reg Hinds said he was most enthusiastic about the program, which included some major additions to Eaton's downtown Victoria.

"We are going to stay downtown," Hinds told the Colonist, "and we are thriving."

Retarded Gain Little Response

OWEN SOUND, Ont. (CP) — Mrs. M. H. Keeling, home care chairman for the Owen Sound and District Association for the Mentally Retarded, reports little interest in a pre-school program for mentally retarded children in the area. A newspaper advertisement drew only one response, and Mrs. Keeling says she knows one other family interested in the program. Three children is the minimum number required before a program can be set up.

'Not There When Kids Need Them'

Parents Raise Teachers' Ire

By PATRICIA McCORMACK

NEW YORK (UPI) — Nearly 3,000 teachers participating in a poll told their attitudes toward parents, students and schools.

Parents didn't fare so well in the poll sponsored by the American College Testing (ACT) program of Iowa City, Iowa, one of the major testing programs for high schoolers nationwide.

On a confidential basis, the teachers from every state responded to 62 statements on an "agree" or "disagree" basis.

The majority agreed that the "main thing many parents want is for the schools to be responsible for the behavior of their children."

The teachers also agreed that "parents pressure their children too much to go to college."

Other things the teachers agreed on:

- "My job calls on me to be more of a parent, counsellor, policeman, and psychiatrist than teacher."
- "Parents of my students are not there when the kids need them."

The survey showed that teachers feel teaching is getting more difficult all the time but that it's preferable to be an effective teacher who is not liked rather than an ineffective one who is liked.

If the teachers surveyed could run the nation's high schools both sex and drug education, taught by competent persons, would be required.

The teachers also would, if they had the chance, abolish automatic promotion of students.

Parents got it again when the teachers were asked what one group most misunderstands them. They named parents, closely followed by legislators and non-parent taxpayers.

Other majority opinions in the national survey, the results of which will appear in greater detail in a book to be published by ACT:

- The teachers do not think that their schools worry too much about student appearance or behavior, or treat students too strictly, or that students should have more say in the schools' decision-making processes than they now have.
- They do think that there is more negative criticism of schools and teachers than there used to be, but in spite of this the public school system of today is good.

Teachers participating in the poll had from one to 55 years of experience and came from 85 school systems. Fifty-three per cent were men; 74 per cent, married; 29 per cent under 30 and 41 per cent over 45. Forty-six per cent taught in schools in cities of 100,000 or more population.

Community Group Likely To Get Financial Support from Victoria

A group of Victoria West residents who have successfully operated a neighborhood centre on Craigflower Road for the past 12 months, received moral support and indications of increased financial help from the city of Victoria Thursday.

The Victoria West Community Development Association got permission from the city last year to operate a neighborhood centre in a city-owned house at 519 Craigflower Road, part of Banfield Park, on a 12-month trial basis.

Since then, the premises, which were leased to the group for $1 a year, have been used for meetings of groups, including youth and senior citizen organizations.

The city's Group A committee recommended to council Thursday the association be given a five-year lease and be exempted from municipal property taxes.

Committee was told annual property taxes for the house are approximately $400; the municipal share would be about $300. If council approves the recommendation, the association would only have to pay the $100 school-tax portion of the levy.

Ald. Ove Witt old the committee the association had done a "fantastic job." A number of groups, including Boy Scouts, Brownies and pre-school children, were planning to use the premises.

They hadn't been able up to now to use them because there was no adequate heating system, Witt said.

"But I have talked to the representative of an oil company and he has told me he would install a good furnace if the association had a five-year lease on the house," Witt said.

The association would then rent the heating equipment from the oil company, he added.

All committee members agreed that the association deserves a great deal of help and encouragement.

Meet the new '72 "TUFF" DODGE PICKUP

After almost four years of planning, engineering and testing, Dodge's new line of light duty trucks is making its debut. Models include Sweptline and Utiline pickups, stake, platform and chassis-cab, crew cabs and two and four-wheel drive vehicles, all in the half-ton, three-quarter ton and one-ton chassis.

The well appointed interiors provide passenger car-type seating and appearance.

Ride and handling have been improved with a new coil-spring independent front suspension, rear leaf springs and positive shock absorber control, combined with wide front and rear tracks and longer wheelbases.

Standard engines are the 225 cubic inch Six and the 318 V8. Optional engines are the new 360 and 400 V8's.

Plenty of Coho Remain Uncaught

Sid Alexander won the RCN Anglers' Association Coho Derby at Cowichan Bay Saturday with a 13.9-pound coho. Laurie Rhode was second with a 12.12-pounder, Bob Rogerson and John Drew tied for third with 11.14-pound coho.

Rogerson, who fishes exclusively with bucktail flies, was the only competitor to catch his limit, the 11.14-pounder and 10.0, 8.9 and 5.11-pounders.

Last weekend saw the hottest coho fishing of the year at Cowichan Bay and there is every indication coho fishing will remain good, at least until the Oct. 31 end of the King Fisherman Contest.

Coho are now mostly concentrated between Separation Point and Burial Island and off Cape Keppel on the Salt Spring Island side of the Bay. But any heavy rains would soon move them.

Latest King Fisherman entries:

BUY CANADA SAVINGS BONDS

If you're looking beyond today, plan ahead with Canada Savings Bonds. They're the go-ahead way to save for the future – without worry.

Easy to Buy: You can buy them three different ways; for cash where you work, bank or invest; on instalments through the Payroll Savings Plan where you work; or on instalments through the Monthly Savings Plan where you bank or invest.

Simple to Cash: Canada Savings Bonds are cold, hard cash – instantly. They can be redeemed anytime at their full face value plus earned interest.

Good to Keep: Canada Savings Bonds are safe. They're backed by all the resources of Canada and they pay good interest – year after year.

New Canada Savings Bonds yield an average of 7.19% a year when held to maturity. They're available in amounts from $50 up to a limit of $50,000.

Each $100 Bond begins with $5.75 interest for the first year, pays $6.75 interest for the second year, pays $7.50 interest for each of the next five years, and then pays $7.75 interest for each of the last two years.

On top of this, with Canada Savings Bonds you can earn interest on your interest and make each $100.00 grow to $187.00 in just 9 years.

8 CARDS OF THANKS

The gratitude in our hearts can never be fully expressed, but we want our friends, relatives and neighbors to know how much their kind words and expressions of sympathy have meant to us during our recent time of sorrow in the sad loss of our husband and father, Dale G. Creelman. — Mrs. Lil Creelman, son Rod and daughter Laurie.

We wish to express our sincere thanks to the staff of Third Central, Royal Jubilee Hospital, Doctors Stephenson, Hosie and Lockyer, to Reverend W. E. Greenhalgh, and all the many friends especially the Oak Bay Firemen who were so kind in our time of grief for Jack. — Germaine, Harold and Connie Hole.

9 IN MEMORIAM

JENKIN—In loving memory of our dear brother, Dick, who passed away October 22, 1969.

Like falling snow the days drift by,
But precious memories never die.
You live with us, in memories still,
Not just today, but always will.
Two years ago, we had to part,
With one we loved with all our hearts.
The wound is deep, it will not heal,
Only those who have lost, know how we feel.
Please God, forgive a silent tear,
Our silent wish that he were here.
Others are taken, yes we know,
But he was ours, and we miss him so.
Treasure him Lord, in your garden of rest,
For here on earth, he was one of the best.

—Dearly loved and sadly missed by his sisters, Helen, Katie and Dorothy.

JENKIN—In loving memory of a dear husband, father, father-in-law and grandfather, Dick Jenkin, who passed away October 22, 1969.

Nothing can ever take away,
The love a heart holds dear.
Fond memories linger every day,
Remembrance keeps him dear.

—Always in our thoughts—Martha, Merna, Miles, Richard and Lisa-Ann.

MAHON—In lasting memory of Charles, a loving husband and father, who passed away October 22, 1961.

"He left a memory time cannot wash away."

—Loved and remembered by his wife, Elsie; daughters, Joy and Marjorie; sons, Charles and Dennis, and families.

PORTEOUS—In loving memory of J. C. (Cam) Porteous, who passed away October 22, 1970.

His memory is as dear today
As in the hour he passed away.

—Always remembered by his loving family.

Bruce Lowther

I can skip over the CBC's annual report for the 1970-71 season, which has just recently come my way:

● The biggest audience for any show was for a Chicago-Montreal Stanley Cup game, with the Oscars second and then Miss Teen Canada and two Henry VIII episodes. Disney led the regulars, Rainbow County the Canadians.

● Total CBC operating expenses were $218 million, up $10 million from 1969-70. The parliamentary grant of $166 milliion was frozen and ad revenue fell 3 per cent to $47.5 million.

● The tottal of employees was 8,872, down 79 in a year. In addition, 30,000 performers were paid $21.6 million, an increase of just over $1 million. That's not much—an average of only $720 each.

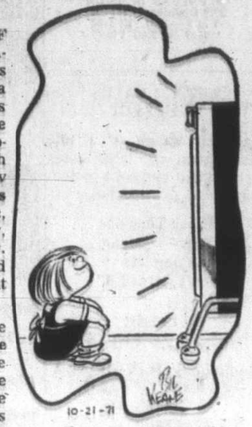
BUREAU OF USELESS INFORMATION: Thursday's answer—The basic trivia question which marks each anniversary of the bureau, including today's start of the fifth year, is name Snow White's seven dwarfs They are Bashful, Doc, Dopey, Grumpy, Happy, Sleepy and Sneezy. Someone may have tried to tell you Irving, but that's a lie.

Today's question is the last of the brief movie plots for a while. Name the movie for which the plot was, the ultimate common man discards Mickey Spillane and finds something to do tonight: marriage. Answer Saturday.



"... then we add a tablepoon of banilla dextract, and mix in a cup of grambulated thugar."

Friday Highlights

C-8:00 p.m.—Lee Grant, a most talented lady, visits Laugh-In—2, 6.

C-8:30—It's a good night for viewers of all types of shows, what with the regulars and the return of Chronolog, formerly First Tuesday—5.

● C-9:00—Best viewing of all should be Hollywood Television Theatre, with Martha Scott and Eileen Herlie in Leomonade. They play two old ladies who decide to sell lemonade on a roadside during a hot day, and talk about life. The hour play will be shown twice—9.

C-10:00—World TV Showcase starts a series of Irish stories with two by Frank O'Connor and Sean O'Faolian—2.

CABLE 10—7:00 p.m., Art Calendar: the Art Gallery and the Theatre Guild; 7:30, Ladies First, with Catherine Barker; 8:30, science series: genetics; 9:30, Project Travel.

Friday Movies

9:00 a.m.—Barbary Coast Gent (1944 Wallace Berry). Well, at least he was well named—4.

C-12:45 noon—The Rebel (1961 Tony Handcock comedy). Sorry, but I just can't laugh about him any more—6, 8.

C-3:30 p.m.—To Die in Paris (average 1968 war-underground suspense), Louis Jourdan. Goodies are ahead, but not for a while—7.

5:00—Men of San Quentin (1942 miss it)—13.

C-7:00—Bullet for a Badman (1964 Audie Murphy)—7.

C-7:30—Plymouth Adventure (1962 MGM fairytale about the pilgrims), Spencer Tracy, Van Johnson et al. Why don't you speak for yourself, John? Because Louis B. Mayer wrote the crumby script—12.

7:30—My Son the Hero (1943 Patsy Kelly wartime comedy)—13.

C-8:00—Forbin Project (so-so 1970 computer-goes-ape), Susan Clark, Eric Braeden. A good idea with bad execution—8.

● C-9:30—Goodbye Raggedy Ann (new actress-fights-Hollywood drama). Recommended because stars Hal Holbrook and Mia Farrow are talented people—7.

11:00—Operation Amsterdam (fairish 1960 war suspense), Peter Finch, Eva Bartok. It's no Dutch treat—12.

11:00—I Take This Oath (1941 loser)—3.

11:30—Behind the Mask (1932 Karloff antique). Amusing—7.

C-12:00—Forbin Project (see 8:00)—6.

C-12:00—Curse of the Swamp of the Swamp Creature (terrible 1966 horror)—8.

C-12:50—Killers Three (1968 gunmen violence), Robert Walker, Dick Clark. A bad movie in which everyone takes too long to die—2.

● 1:00 a.m.—Crisis (excellent 1950 Latin-revolt drama), Gary Grant, Jose Ferrer, Signe Hasso. Well done from start to finish—4.

1:05—Whispering Smith (1948 Alan Laddrivel)—12.

1:35—The Devil Commands (1941 Karloff chuckler)—7.

Friday Radio

9:00 p.m.—Musicscope includes a Jeunesses Musicales World Orchestra concert: Dvorak's ninth symphony, Stravinsky's Rite of Spring—CBU-FM (105.7).

9:05—Gala includes Dohnanyi's Nursery Rhyme variations, which are good fun, if not great music—CFMS (98.6).

Winning Contract

By HOWARD and BEE SCHENKEN

Reuben Pincher was too mean a person to be truly popular, but even his enemies had to admit that he was a fine cardplayer. When it came to safety plays, there was simply nobody like him, and if a hand could be made, Reuben invariably made it.

The bidding:

North	East	South	West
Pass	Pass	1 ♡	Pass
4 ♡	All pass

Opening lead: Seven of hearts.

This deal did a lot to establish Reuben's exceptional reputation. West led a trump and the onlookers immediately started laying bets among themselves that Reuben would go donw on the hand.

It would appear that the normal expert line of play would be to eliminate diamonds, draw the outstanding trump, and finesse either the nine or the queen of clubs. In this case West would return a spade to his partner's queen and East would exit with his remaining club.

Declarer would probably take another losing finesse in clubs, become sadly disillusioned with the hand, and eventually go down a trick.

Reuben, however, made the hand, and furthermore, when it was over the onlookers were forced to admit that his line of play would have succeeded against any distribution of the opponent's cards.

Reuben drew two rounds of trumps, eliminated the diamonds, and then astonished everybody by cashing the ace of clubs.

When he then crossed to dummy with a trump and led another club, the brilliance of his plan became clear. All he had to do was to cover any card that East played.

In the actual case, East's eight of clubs was covered by Reuben's nine, which lost to the ten. West did the best he could when he exited with a spade to his partner's queen, but East had no more clubs — due to Reuben's foresight in cashing the ace — and was endplayed.

East had to return a diamond or a spade, in either case causing Reuben's spade loser to disappear.

If East had been able to play a third club when he was in with the queen of spades, Reuben would have covered it, either winning the trick or establishing a long club, on which he could discard a spade from dummy. There was absolutely no doubt that Reuben had found the perfect line of play.

HOW TO WRITE

A GOOD

CLASSIFIED ACTION AD

1—IT'S BEST to start your ad with the name of the article or service you have to offer. If you have an apartment, room, etc. for rent, or property for sale; start your ad with the location.

2—BE CLEAR. Readers respond more quickly and favorably when given complete, definite information. Always include the price in your advertisement. Don't allow the reader to speculate.

3—MAKE IT EASY for the reader-prospect to reach you. Always give your telephone number or your name and address. If you do not have regular hours, state a preferred time for the prospect to get in touch with you.

4—PLAY SAFE. You get the greatest reader attention by using consecutive insertions. A six-day order is best and costs less, and you can, of course, stop your ad as soon as you get the results you want. You pay only for the days your ad appeared. Lower yearly rates are available to those who wish to keep their services or products before the public every day.

5—PLACE YOURSELF in the reader's position and ask yourself what you want to know about your offer. The answer you give will make a good Want Ad.

6—GIVE YOUR PROSPECT every inducement you can with good copy. Classified action ad readers have the money and are already interested in buying the merchandise or service you have to offer; the details and information you give are the most important.

7—WANT ADS THAT FAIL TO bring the desired results do so usually, not through a lack of readership, but because they are poorly worded or contain inadequate information.

8—TO PLACE YOUR AD, call 386-2121, your direct line number to fast Want Ad action. A courteous, efficient ad-visor will be glad to help you word and place your order. And remember, Classified Action Ads afford you the most complete coverage. Telephones are open daily, Monday through Saturday 8:00 a.m. to 8:00 p.m. for you call.

Dissent Flares Over Teacher

DUNCAN — Nearly 50 people turned up to a public meeting Thursday called by a Duncan group who want Duncan teacher Louis Trapler reinstated.

Not all those who came, however, wanted Trapler back in his teaching position at Mount Prevost junior high. He was dismissed for striking a student Jan. 26.

About 17 people left the meeting, after they had told chairman Joe Haddock that they disagreed with his plan to reinstate Trapler.

Spokesman for the group, Charmaine Rolston, declared: "We are going to fight this plan," but she refused to give details. "The press is just stirring up a lot of trouble," she added.

Haddock told the rest of the gathering that he hoped they weren't disappointed with the meeting. "I hope you didn't expect any fights or controversy, there has been enough of that already.

"We are not here to establish either the guilt or the innocence of Trapler. The fact that we do want to establish is that the punishment was excessive," Haddock added.

Residents volunteered to canvass areas in the district with a petition which is to be returned Thursday evening at the old curling rink.

A Place To Stand

Marty Maughan of Nanaimo creates quite a stir among friends on his way to Fairview public school on the city's outskirts with his pet crow Jackie. Jackie, very impartial in his landings, drew the comment "dumb bird" from his disgusted friend.

Alberni Death Mystery

PORT ALBERNI — Port Alberni RCMP continued Thursday to try to establish the identity of the body of a young man found in a culvert under a bridge near Port Alberni Saturday morning.

A spokesman for the police reported Thursday night that a number of people had inquired about the body but in no case had an identity been established.

Calls had come in from throughout the province, he said.

An autopsy report, establishing the cause of death, had not yet been completed, RCMP said.

Nanaimo Murder Trial

Walker 'Depressed'

NANAIMO — A Victoria psychiatrist told an Assize Court jury in Nanaimo Thursday that she did not feel a man accused of murder was capable of formulating intent or thinking of the consequences of the deed.

Dr. Leyda Lythgoe was testifying at the trial of Ian Walker, 46, accused of shooting his common law wife Gloria Norman at Canadian Legion Branch 10 on Wallace April 24.

Dr. Lythgoe said she formed her conclusion on the basis of an examination of Walker at Wilkinson Road jail Aug. 9 and on the fact that he had a blood alcohol reading of .22 a short time after the shooting.

At the time of the examination she said she found Walker to be a moderately depressed, very intelligent, lonely man who exhibited signs of having suffered a great loss. His depression was sufficiently notable, she said, to warrant his being given anti-depressant medication, to prevent his becoming a suicidal risk.

His relationship with Mrs. Norman meant a great deal to him, said Dr. Lythgoe, and her refusal to see him after their separation crystallized his resolve that life was not worth living.

Remarking on his blood alcohol reading, Dr. Lythgoe said, "At .22 there is no one who can formulate abstract thinking."

The blackout that Walker testified he had at the time of the shooting would have been due to passion, fear and anger as well as the high blood alcohol content, the psychiatrist said.

Walker said in court today he could recall going to the Legion Branch but he had no memory of the shooting except that he thought he heard a shot.

Walker said he had extensive knowledge of firearms, having served in all three forces.

Walker broke down on the stand when he said he and Mrs. Norman had planned to be married in July.

He and Mrs. Norman had lived together for about two years and had moved from Duncan to Nanaimo to take advantage of vocational training school courses, he said.

Lack of money and lack of entertainment began to cause tension in their relationship, he said, until late in the winter Mrs. Norman moved with her three children to an apartment.

While he testified he was visibly trembling and broke down in tears several times.

The trial continues before Mr. Justice R. Wootton and an all male jury.

Lower Taxes Urged by IWA

VANCOUVER (CP) — The International Woodworkers of America regional convention Thursday unanimously adopted a resolution calling for the federal and provincial government to establish a guaranteed annual income based on $3,000 for a single person, and $4,000 for a married couple plus $250 for each dependent.

Delegates were told that the Economic Council of Canada study showed that the poverty line is pegged at $1,800 for a single person and $3,000 for a married couple.

Along the same lines, the convention adopted a resolution calling for a reduction in income tax, to be accomplished in the lower income group by giving a basic $2,000 exemption for an individual plus $2,000 for a wife or spouse and $500 for children under 16 and $1,000 for those over.

The woodworkers also made a plea that their basic expenditure necessary to conduct their work be allowed as tax exemptions.

Browns Lose Young Coach

CLEVELAND (AP) — Howard Keyes, 36-year-old backfield coach of Cleveland Browns of the National Football League, died Thursday in Shaker Medical Centre, where he underwent an operation for a bowel obstruction last Friday.

A standout player at Oklahoma State University and later with Philadelphia Eagles of the NFL, Keyes served Calgary Stampeders of the Canadian league as assistant coach for four years starting in 1965.

Mazda 1600 Sport Coupe.
You can tell a lot about a car by the company it keeps.

Mazda 1600 Sport Coupe. This one belongs in fast company. And looks it.

Mazda styling gives you the sleek look of luxury. Mazda performance gives you the feel of freedom—a superb, smooth ride powered by Mazda's responsive overhead cam piston engine. It'll purr at freeway speeds—and still give you more than you really need for passing. And power-assisted front discs for stopping.

Look inside. Fast-handling four-speed full synchromesh transmission.* Full instrumentation. Tachometer. Ammeter. Trip meter. Centre console. And a single-lever, five-function control for wipers, dimmer, four-way flasher, windshield washer and directional signals. All built in. Not added on.

Now check the luxury. Deep, black upholstery. Wall-to-wall carpeting. Woodgrain wheel. The front seats slide a full 7 inches for long legroom. And an automatic sensing device returns the passenger seat to its pre-set position after passengers exit from the back seat: a generous back seat built for adults.

Safety comes standard on the Mazda 1600 Sport Coupe, including side window and electric rear window defrosters for all-round, all-weather visibility.

Don't just stand there admiring the look of it. Drive it and get the feel and fun of it. At your Mazda dealer. At $2699.†

Davis

Liberals, NDP Mauled

TORONTO (CP) — Premier William Davis turned the Ontario general election into a run-away triumph for the Progressive Conservative party Thursday night, but late-night snags in returning offices left one riding in doubt and reversed two others.

The result was never in doubt, however, as the Conservatives, backed by a $4 million advertising campaign, started quickly in the east and rolled across the province.

The Canadian Press reported victory for the PCs at 8:39 p.m. EDT, 39 minutes after polls closed in the eastern time zones.

With one riding to come, the Conservatives had 78 seats of the 117-seat house, easily fattening their majority in the 1967 election.

The Liberals had 20 seats late Thursday night and the New Democratic Party 18. But results were fouled by close races and missing ballot boxes.

In Nipissing, returning officers reported Conservative Merle Dickerson the winner, but a late-night check showed the Liberal, Richard Smith, won the riding.

A similar foulup occurred in Toronto Dovercourt where NDP Steve Penner was originally declared the winner. But votes from a missing ballot box gave the riding to Conservative George Nixon.

The missing riding was Ottawa Centre where NDP allegations of irregularities have necessitated a recount. The PC candidate was leading.

At dissolution Sept. 13, the Conservatives had 68 seats, the Liberals 28 and the NDP 21. There was one independent.

The two late-night changes meant the Liberals retained their position as official opposition. Earlier, it appeared there might be a tie between Liberal and NDP, something believed unprecedented in Canada.

The victory was a personal triumph for Davis, a boyish 42-year-old Brampton lawyer fighting his first election as party leader. He based his campaign on a something-for-

Canadians Beaudoin and Rose flank Gravel

MPs Picket White House For Amchitka Test Halt

WASHINGTON (CP) — Two Canadian MPs and a United States senator picketed the White House Thursday, calling on President Nixon to cancel a proposed nuclear explosion on Amchitka Island in Alaska.

For 20 minutes, bearing protest placards, the three legislators and a small group of protesters paraded in front of the presidential mansion as television and news cameras recorded the unusual event.

Mark Rose (NDP—Fraser Valley West), Lionel Beaudoin (Cred.—Richmond) and Senator Mike Gravel, Democrat from Alaska, carried signs saying "Canada Opposes Cannikin" and "Cannikin a Threat to Alaska and Canada."

The five-megaton device — equivalent to five million tons of TNT — was originally scheduled to be detonated early in October but has been delayed by court action.

The three legislators said it was the first time they had carried a picket sign in their lives.

The Canadian government has formally protested the planned explosion, and conservationists in the U.S. and abroad have opposed it because of fears it could set off an earthquake or damage wildlife.

Rose told reporters the two MPs had come at the invitation of Gravel, "otherwise I wouldn't have come." He explained that he would not be pleased to see U.S. congressmen picketing the prime minister's residence in Ottawa without being invited by a Canadian counterpart.

The NDP member said he had tried to enlist an all-party Canadian delegation to make the trip because all parties had supported the govern-

Weather Satellite Plunges to Earth

SANTA BARBARA, Calif. (AP) — A satellite designed to forecast weather for the entire world failed to go into orbit Thursday and plunged to Earth 90 minutes after its launch, officials here said.

It represented a $10-million failure. The 686-pound satellite carried four television cameras, two scanning radiometres and its two-stage Delta rocket.

The space agency said the satellite veered out of control moments after the second-stage burn of its big Delta rocket and fell blazing into Earth's atmosphere.

The satellite had been expected to circle Earth in a 900-mile-high polar orbit.

Vandals Hit Soviet Mission

From UPI, AP

NEW YORK — Two teenagers slipped into the Soviet Mission to the United Nations Thursday and committed acts of vandalism and two men saying they belonged to the Jewish Defence League tried to haul down the Soviet flag outside the United Nations.

The incident at the mission took place a few hours after Soviet Ambassador Jacob Malik blamed a Wednesday night shooting incident at the Mission on a lack of security measures by U.S. authorities.

A boy and a girl, both 15, apparently entered the mission on Manhattan's East Side without difficulty, smashed the plate glass door and sprayed black paint inside the reception room. The two, who were not identified, were captured by a patrolman stationed outside the mission. They were ordered released in custody of their parents.

Two men trying to rip down the Russian flag from the row of 131 flagpoles outside the UN were taken into custody. About a dozen other demonstrators had chained themselves to the fence along First Avenue. Police clipped the chains and arrested the demonstrators.

At the UN, several delegates expressed anger over the Wednesday night attack on the mission by a rifleman and expressed concern for the safety of all diplomats in New York.

The shooting situation halted the China representation debate in the assembly for some hours.

It started when Malik interrupted the debate on a point of order and expressed out-

13 Killed, 100 Injured In Glasgow Holocaust

GLASGOW (CP) — A mid-afternoon explosion tore through a busy shopping centre Thursday, killing at least 13 persons and injuring at least 100.

Cars from a rooftop parking lot toppled into the debris, hampering hundreds of police and firemen who clawed at the rubble to reach screaming victims.

The blask wrecked 15 stores on newly-built Busby Street in the prosperous Clarkston Toll district.

Police said first indications were that a gas main had exploded. Workmen had been in the area for two days trying to trace a leak.

A woman witness said the street was "littered with bodies."

"It is an absolute holocaust."

Thursday is pay day for many Glasgow families and Busby Street was at its busiest when the blast erupted.

One man was decapitated and his body thrown across the road.

Hours after the 3 p.m. blast, rescuers still were tearing at the rubble, calling time after time for teams of doctors and nurses to help trapped victims.

Nurses and physicians ran to the disaster scene from a health centre less than 100 yards away.

One of the nurses said: "I've never heard anything like it — just a 'whoom.' Then there were clouds of smoke and dust and I could hear people crying."

Two Named By Nixon For Court

WASHINGTON (AP) — Lewis Powell, a Richmond, Va., lawyer and former president of the American Bar Association, and William Rehnquist, an assistant attorney-general, were named by President Nixon Thursday night for the Supreme Court.

If confirmed by the Senate, the two will succeed Justices Hugo Black and John Harlan and bring the court up to full strength.

Nixon described both men as "conservatives, but only in a judicial, not a political sense."

Kosygin Pledges To Help Red Migrants to Canada

- Ethnic groups dominate Kosygin protest. Page 7

OTTAWA (CP) — Soviet Premier Alexei Kosygin has promised to intervene personally to hasten the reunification of willing Soviet citizens with families in Canada.

Prime Minister told the Commons Thursday:

"He assured me that the names were in the works now, that he would see to it personally, and that substantial advance would be made on this subject."

The prime minister was replying to questions following his talks with Kosygin in Ottawa this week.

Indications were that delays were caused by red tape rather than political considerations, Trudeau said, although the Soviet premier had added that some candidates for migration to Canada did not wish to leave, despite applications on their behalf by relatives in Canada.

Quebecer Cites 'Sell-Out' Similarities

'B.C. Needs Revolution'

VANCOUVER (CP) — British Columbia needs a revolution as much as Quebec does, Separatist leader Pierre Bourgault told 300 University of B.C. students Thursday.

"You have been defeated just as much as we have been defeated in Quebec," he said.

"You don't own your own resources and industries any more than the ordinary people in Quebec do."

Bourgault, founder of the Rassemblement Pour L'Independance Nationale, and since 1969 one of the leaders of the Parti Quebecois, was one of a series of speakers participating in "Quebec Week" on the UBC campus.

He told students that in Quebec 82 per cent of the people, the French-speaking people, own or control only 12 per cent of the economy. He said Quebec's standard of living is 28 per cent lower than in Ontario and 50 per cent lower than in the United States.

"These are the 'benefits' of collaborating with the U.S.," he said.

Bourgault said natural resources of B.C. have been "literally swallowed" by speculators.

He said Premier Bennett "sells you and yours for almost nothing — sometimes he will even pay the Americans to help them take over."

He said Canadians help Americans buy them out with Canadian money.

"On a $20 million deal, the Americans can sometimes put up $2 million in U.S. money, get some federal grants, get tax concessions and borrow the rest from Canadian banks. Then the Americans end up with control, decision making and all the proftis."

Bourgault said the Parti Quebecois is not radical enough, but that a new manifesto is being drawn up which "will go much further than people expect."

"But what would help us in Quebec more than anything else is if you start your own revolution here in B.C. Then it would be much easier for us to collaborate with you."

Dissent Flares Over Teacher

DUNCAN — Nearly 50 people turned up to a public meeting Thursday called by a Duncan group who want Duncan teacher Louis Trapler reinstated.

Not all those who came, however, wanted Trapler back in his teaching position at Mount Prevost junior high. He was dismissed for striking a student Jan. 26.

About 17 people left the meeting, after they had told chairman Joe Haddock that they disagreed with his plan to reinstate Trapler.

Spokesman for the group, Charmaine Rolston, declared: "We are going to fight this plan," but she refused to give details. "The press is just stirring up a lot of trouble," she added.

Haddock told the rest of the gathering that he hoped they weren't disappointed with the meeting. "I hope you didn't expect any fights or controversy, there has been enough of that already.

"We are not here to establish either the guilt or the innocence of Trapler. The fact that we do want to establish is that the punishment was excessive," Haddock added.

Residents volunteered to canvass areas in the district with a petition which is to be returned Thursday evening at the old curling rink.

Youth Killed In Crash

NANAIMO — A 17-year-old Nanaimo youth was killed and a 62-year-old man injured in a car-motorcycle accident in Nanaimo Thursday evening.

Nanaimo RCMP identified the dead boy as Tony Roberts of 821 Dufferin, Nanaimo, the driver of the motorcycle.

Driver of the car, Richard Kirby, also of Nanaimo, was reported in fair condition in Royal Jubilee Hospital in Victoria Thursday evening. He was transferred to Victoria from Nanaimo General Hospital.

Police said the accident occurred about 6:10 p.m. on North Terminal Street in Nanaimo, near the Terminal Park shopping centre.

Earlier Thursday highways superintendent John Morris had urged motorists to use extra caution Thursday evening because of new traffic signals at the intersection of Terminal and St. George, close to where the fatality occurred.

The new signals were put into operation Thursday, as work continued on widening the highway to four lanes.

Alberni Schools Large Enough

PORT ALBERNI (CP) — For the first time in its 25-year history, Port Alberni school board plans no school construction next year. A spokesman said Wednesday that the district does not need any more buildings at this time, and the area's student population seems to be remaining constant.

Nanaimo Murder Trial

Walker 'Depressed'

NANAIMO — A Victoria psychiatrist told an Assize Court jury in Nanaimo Thursday that she did not feel a man accused of murder was capable of formulating intent or thinking of the consequences of the deed.

Dr. Leyda Lythgoe was testifying at the trial of Ian Walker, 46, accused of shooting his common law wife Gloria Norman at Canadian Legion Branch 10 on Wallace April 24.

Dr. Lythgoe said she formed her conclusion on the basis of an examination of Walker at Wilkinson Road jail Aug. 9 and on the fact that he had a blood alcohol reading of .22 a short time after the shooting.

At the time of the examination she said she found Walker to be a moderately depressed, very intelligent, lonely man who exhibited signs of having suffered a great loss. His depression was sufficiently notable, she said, to warrant his being given anti-depressant medication, to prevent his becoming a suicidal risk.

His relationship with Mrs. Norman meant a great deal to him, said Dr. Lythgoe, and her refusal to see him after their separation crystallized his resolve that life was not worth living.

Remarking on his blood alcohol reading, Dr. Lythgoe said, "At .22 there is no one who can formulate abstract thinking."

The blackout that Walker testified he had at the time of the shooting would have been due to passion, fear and anger as well as the high blood alcohol content, the psychiatrist said.

Walker said in court today he could recall going to the Legion Branch but he had no memory of the shooting except that he thought he heard a shot.

Walker said he had extensive knowledge of firearms, having served in all three forces.

Walker broke down on the stand when he said he and Mrs. Norman had planned to be married in July.

He and Mrs. Norman had lived together for about two years and had moved from Duncan to Nanaimo to take advantage of vocational training school courses, he said.

Lack of money and lack of entertainment began to cause tension in their relationship, he said, until late in the winter Mrs. Norman moved with her three children to an apartment.

While he testified he was visibly trembling and broke down in tears several times.

Federal-Provincial Talks On Forest Policy Sought

A federal-provincial conference on forest policy, possibly at the level of the 10 premiers and the prime minister, was advocated here Thursday by a forestry authority from Nova Scotia.

Hans Akesson, who manages the 3,700,000 acres that are in Nova Scotia Pulp Ltd's wood procurement area, made the comment in an interview after he had given a paper at the annual meeting of the Canadian Institute of Forestry.

He said a federal forest policy would be the only instrument that could regulate the entry of new producers and production areas into markets. This is a principle of the national oil policy.

Until such policy is arrived at and enforced at a federal level, it is possible that one province might suddenly allow an expansion of its pulp and paper industry. The resulting avalanche of products forces down the prices for all producers.

Low world market prices might not only force closure of some mills but they could result in producers abandoning forest management programs because of cost.

In his paper to the CIF, Akesson noted the industries exploiting the primeval forest — and this appeared to be a reference to those in B.C. — enjoy a cost advantage in comparison with those harvesting second growth.

"Let us hope that governments in areas where there is an abundance of primeval forest do not give away those forests," he added.

Another threat to silviculture are "the manipulators of general opinion who could convince the public that clear-cutting is always an ecologically detrimental practice."

(Clear-cutting involves removal of all standing timber, including rotting and dying trees before the site is replanted.)

Death Ruled Accidental

LAKE COWICHAN — A coroner's jury here has ruled the death of Gary Clark, six, of Lake Cowichan, Oct. 4 was accidental. Lake Cowichan RCMP said that the jury made no recommendations, and concluded that the boy's death was the result of a blow to the base of the skull. The jury attached no blame to Norman Brooks, 32, of Lake Cowichan, driver of the car which struck the boy.

$7,500 for Treating Heroin Addicts

Drug Centre Gets Grant

NANAIMO — A grant of $7,500 for the setting up and operation of a drug treatment centre in Nanaimo is available for the period between Oct. 1, 1971 and March 31, 1972, according to a report received by the Central Vancouver Island board of health.

The Nanaimo Medical Society has already approved the setting up of a methadone treatment centre in Nanaimo regional general hospital.

This follows the resolution of provincial medical health officers that such treatment centres should be hospital-based rather than in health centres.

The treatment centre will be primarily for heroin addicts and methadone, a heroin replacement drug, would be issued. Staff such as a psychiatric nurse, male nurse and part-time pharmacist would operate the clinic and a local physician will be given the position of assuming clinical responsibility for the patients.

At a Thursday meeting, members of the health board also heard that the ratio of dentists in the area is one to every 3,200 population. The provincial ratio is one to 2,300.

Regional dental consultant Dr. T. Hicks said Nanaimo's vocational training school will graduate about 36 certified dental assistants each year.

With more of these professionally trained auxiliaries each dentist will be able to provide good dental care to more people.

Power Bloc May Use Issue

More IWA Infighting Looms Over Dues Hike

By DON COLLINS
Colonist Reporter

VANCOUVER — Rival forces within the International Woodworkers of America are expected to lock horns today over a money issue that is vital to the union's plan to conduct a raiding war against the Pulp and Paper Workers of Canada.

Delegates to the Western Canada region convention of the IWA here are to be faced with a resolution that would raise dues from $1.05 a month to $1.30.

But by Thursday night it wasn't known whether they would be asked to back the proposal or vote non-concurrence. Even the constitution committee which is bringing it forward is reportedly split on the question.

But, in order to created a program for its intended raiding on the membership of the smaller union, the IWA figures it would have to hire at least three additional organizers and two evaluators.

The suggested dues increase would just about cover this. The regional council is also in the red after overspending by about $19,000 last year.

In a badly split voice vote Wednesday, delegates authorized a policy under which the IWA would try and win jurisdiction of the eight B.C. mills now represented by the 5,000-member PPWC.

The reasoning is that the PPWC is outside the regular house of labor, is looked on as a "rebel" organization and is accused of conducting continuous raids on the IWA.

Some of the objection to the raiding policy comes from delegates who sincerely want to avoid inter-union warfare and concentrate on the serious matter of negotiations that face the industry early next year.

But there is also a healthy opposition bloc that succeeded in slowing business Monday during the first day of the convention, which ends today.

Those in the camp of regional president Jack Moore feel this bloc will try and stand in the way of a dues increase as a means of further embarrassing Moore and his executive.

The first embarrassment came earlier in the convention when the opposition managed to wipe out the executive's appointment of regional first vice-president Wyman Trineer to the international executive board.

Alternate Bill Schumacher of Kelowna was moved up in Trineer's place and when it came time to elect another alternate Thursday, it was another victory for Moore's political foes.

Doug Evans, financial secretary of the 7,000 member Vancouver local, was elected in a battle with John Squire, financial secretary from the Port Alberni local.

The big power bloc is made up mainly of the Vancouver, Victoria, New Westminster and Duncan locals, along with the Vancouver-based loggers' local.

Syd Thompson, president of the Vancouver local, is usually looked on as the key figure in the opposition. With him are local presidents Murray Drew of Victoria, Weldon Jubenville of Duncan, Gerry Stoney of New Westminster and Ernie Freer of the loggers.

Internal politics have been a big part of the IWA way of life over the years. Today, Thompson and his allies maintain that the Moore group is not giving the union the leadership it needs. An election is still a year off.

One of those who doesn't like the idea of raiding is Port Alberni delegate George McKnight, who says it is often a matter of "empire building."

Speaking on a resolution calling for support of IWA locals involved in a jurisdictional dispute with building trade unions, McKnight said:

"Empire building and all the rest of it must be brought out in the open and exposed for what it is."

Lower Taxes Urged by IWA

VANCOUVER (CP) — The International Woodworkers of America regional convention Thursday unanimously adopted a resolution calling for the federal and provincial government to establish a guaranteed annual income based on $3,000 for a single person, and $4,000 for a married couple plus $250 for each dependent.

Delegates were told that the Economic Council of Canada study showed that the poverty line is pegged at $1,800 for a single person and $3,000 for a married couple.

Along the same lines, the convention adopted a resolution calling for a reduction in income tax, to be accomplished in the lower income group by giving a basic $2,000 exemption for an individual plus $2,000 for a wife or spouse and $500 for children under 16 and $1,000 for those over.

The woodworkers also made a plea that their basic expenditure necessary to conduct their work be allowed as tax exemptions.

Increased Reforestation Needed

Forest Areas Diminishing

Resources Minister Ray Williston said Thursday the increasing alienation of B.C. forest lands for recreational and wilderness uses means foresters will have to work harder at maintaining their industry's productivity.

He spoke at a luncheon at the closing session of the Canadian Institute of Foresters' annual meeting at the Empress.

Williston said the provincial government's environment and land use committee, of which he is chairman, has noted that the demand for other uses of forest land is growing.

"Some of the strongest and most persistent demands are coming from large segments of the public which want to see major areas of forest land set aside for recreational use and wilderness areas.

"The B.C. Forest Service is working diligently to make a concurrent recreational and industrial use feasible but it is obvious there must be a diminution of the land available to industry," said Williston.

He added that he does not expect such a process will be as drastic as some fear but persons involved in forest management will have to make serious efforts to offset the losses.

In addition, said Williston, increased productivity would help solve some of the forest industry's problems with respect to labor costs, pollution control and general environmental protection.

Recognizing the need to increase the industry's productivity, the B.C. Forest Service has set up a committee to provide guidelines and leadership in intensifying forest management practices.

Williston said the province's forest industry mainly has been harvesting natural stands, or "old growth."

"Now, however, in the areas of better sites the old growth is disappearing, which means that it is imperative that we properly manage the new growth stands," he said, adding that industry is encouraged to create more managed timber stands through government incentives such as increased allowable cut and forestry cost allowances.

"This means that, on a long-term basis as natural stands are logged out, the committee is responsible for developing managed stand yield tables which will complement the natural stand yield tables we now have."

Williston also pointed out that a committee has been appointed to co-ordinate forestry research, now being done by the provincial and federal governments, the University of B.C. and industry.

Coping with Change Beyond B.C. Socreds

NANAIMO — The present Social Credit government in B.C. is now proving inadequate to deal with the rapidly changing society of the 1970s, Independent MLA Dr. Scott Wallace of Oak Bay said

Wallace, formerly Oak Bay Socred MLA, told the Nanaimo Jaycees that Premier Bennett's government had become "more concerned with things, with machines, with technology with inanimate goods than with living people."

He suggested that the reason for the government's failure could be Bennett's age — "for undoubtedly as a person grows older, his ability to adapt with the times and to change personal attitudes and philosophies" lessens.

Wallace said his dealings with the existing provincial Progressive Conservative party left him feeling he was dealing with "Alice in Wonderland."

And he described the party as "a mess."

Many people are looking for a conservative-type of party as an alternative to Social Credit but the conservatives have such a bad public image — "I doubt even the good Lord himself could correct the situation."

Wallace said he has had support for the recently-introduced idea of a new party but the support as yet has not included people active enough to take leadership roles.

He told the Jaycees that when he first got into politics it was obvious to him he was not suited for the role. But he said he is now not sure that the present context of politics is acceptable.

He said he is currently facing a personal dilemma over whether his commitment to the new party should take precedence over his almost 20-year medical career.

However, he said later in the evening: "My political role is probably over."

If in the next election his only choice would be to run as an independent, he said he probably would not run but sit back for a couple of years to see the political situation develop.

Shotgun Found Near Body

COURTENAY — A 19-year-old Comox Valley resident, Joanne Grant, was found dead in her home shortly after noon on Wednesday, RCMP in Courtenay report.

The young woman, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Grant, Campbell River highway, north of Courtenay, was found by her father. Police said a shotgun was found near the body and it is believed she died from a shotgun blast.

Miss Grant would have been 20 Sunday.

Coroner Thomas Menzies said no inquest would be held. Foul play is not suspected.

Miss Grant had recently returned from a European trip. She is survived by sisters Lynne and Gail and grandparents Mr. and Mrs. A. Grant and Mr. and Mrs. A. Cartwithen, all of Sandwick. Both grandparents are pioneers in the Comox Valley.

Former Taxi Driver Jailed, Loses Licence

NANAIMO (CP) — Karen McLarty, a former taxi driver in the Duncan area, Thursday was sentenced to six months on a charge of criminal negligence when she appeared for sentencing in British Columbia supreme court.

She was also prohibited from driving until 1981. She had pleaded guilty to the charge.

Court was told Kevin Cote, 18, of Duncan, died in an accident April 18 when Miss McLarty was driving. Her car was going 105 miles an hour when it went out of control on a bridge and hit a power pole and a house, RCMP said.

Alberni Death Mystery

PORT ALBERNI — Port Alberni RCMP continued Thursday to try to establish the identity of the body of a young man found in a culvert under a bridge near Port Alberni Saturday morning.

A spokesman for the police reported Thursday night that a number of people had inquired about the body but in no case had an identity been established.

Calls had come in from throughout the province, he said.

An autopsy report, establishing the cause of death, had not yet been completed, RCMP said.

Doug Evans, financial secretary of the 7,000 member Vancouver local, was elected in a battle with John Squire, financial secretary from the Port Alberni local.

The big power bloc is made up mainly of the Vancouver, Victoria, New Westminster and Duncan locals, along with the Vancouver-based loggers' local.

Squire has generally been a Moore supporter.

Syd Thompson, president of the Vancouver local, is usually looked on as the key figure in the opposition. With him are local presidents Murray Drew of Victoria, Weldon Jubenville of Duncan, Gerry Stoney of New Westminster and Ernie Freer of the loggers.

Internal politics have been a big part of the IWA way of life over the years. Today, Thompson and his allies maintain that the Moore group is not giving the union the leadership it needs. An election is still a year off.

One of those who doesn't like the idea of raiding is Port Alberni delegate George McKnight, who says it is often a matter of "empire building."

Speaking on a resolution calling for support of IWA locals involved in a jurisdictional dispute with building trade unions, McKnight said:

Nanaimo Businessmen Stress Costs

Tourist Bureau Fate Hangs in Balance

NANAIMO — Comments by Nanaimo Mayor Frank Ney and aldermen indicate that the annual approaches of Nanaimo Chamber of Commerce officials about financial difficulties in the operation of the tourist bureau have fallen on deaf ears, according to chamber president Dave Hart.

Hart made the remark at a special meeting called to discuss the fate of the operation of the tourist bureau Wednesday.

Even with all conceivable economies the bureau cannot be run without an annual deficit or a substantial increase in chamber dues, Hart said.

The minimum amount of money needed for the operation of the bureau in 1972 would be almost $13,000 it was disclosed in a financial statement circulated at the meeting. The chamber last year received $8,000 for the main bureau and an extra $1,000 for the satellite office at Northbrook shopping mall.

"Both the mayor and city council have commented on their alleged ignorance of the fact that the chamber of commerce has been forced into a deficit financing position as a result of subsidizing the operation of the travel bureau," Hart said.

"I wish to state categorically that this is false," he said.

Hart said he attended a February meeting between Council and the chamber's tourist committee.

"I took the trouble to ask to appear personally before council on that particular occasion to ensure that the importance of our message got across."

However, he said that press reports indicated that one alderman did not listen on that occasion and that Ney," does not even recollect my appearing."

Hart emphasized that it is not the chamber's intention to simply abandon the operation of the bureau.

"We will continue to operate the tourist bureau but within the financial limits of the city grant," he said.

Nanaimo chamber member Don Cunliffe said there was no argument about the value of the tourist industry to the country and especially to the Nanaimo area — "It is one of the most valuable industries we have."

The problem is the mechanics of operation, he said.

Hart said the chamber faces three alternatives:

- City operation of the bureau;
- Regional district operation;
- Or giving the operation of the bureau to the tourist committee as a one-year project completely divorced from chamber or commerce operation.

Currently the tourist bureau and the chamber of commerce work from the same office above the centennial museum.

Tourist committee chairman David Freeland said financial difficulties would be lessened if the city followed the Municipalities Aid Act and handed over the full amount of a one dollar per capita grant intended for tourist promotion. This would be in the neighborhood of $16,000.

"We are not receiving the support which has been set down by the provincial Legislature," Freeland claimed.

Members agreed to adjourn for three weeks to give time for discussion of alternatives.

Scout Hut Damaged

GOLD RIVER — Gold River scoutmaster John Arnold discovered a scene of devastation when making a routine check on the scout hut located at the edge of a small lake about a mile out of town.

The hut had been broken into and a built-in bunk wrecked. Outside there was filth, refuse and empty food cans strewn all over the place.

Also, the wharf on the lake had been wrecked and sunk and the scouts' rowboat was missing.

Speculation was that the boat had probably been cast adrift and not stolen. Two packsacks were at the campsite and transients later admitted to camping there but claimed they had not caused any damage. They left the campsite quietly, when requested to do so.

Arnold bought a new padlock and secured the door to the hut. However, on returning next day he found a window had been forced open and the large heating stove had been taken.

Sunday a work party of scouts led by Arnold proceeded to restore order to the campsite. After clearing away all the refuse they set about painting the hut, inside and out. When the first coat of paint had been applied, the boys then proceeded to tar and gravel the roof.

Another scout work party on Thursday led by scoutmasters Dave Dakin and John Arnold continued with the renovating work.

The scout hut is used by Gold River cubs and scouts for outdoor activities. The campsite is easily accessible by a gravel road but the cubs and scouts frequently use a special trail from town through the woods.

Tories Triumph in Ontario

Liberals, NDP Mauled

Davis
. . . 'feel very humble'

TORONTO (CP) — Premier William Davis turned the Ontario general election into a run-away triumph for the Progressive Conservative party Thursday night, but late-night snags in returning offices left one riding in doubt and reversed two others.

The result was never in doubt, however, as the Conservatives, backed by a $4 million advertising campaign, started quickly in the east and rolled across the province.

The Canadian Press reported victory for the Tories at 8:39 p.m. EDT, 39 minutes after polls closed in the eastern time zones.

With one riding to come, the Conservatives had 78 seats of the 117-seat house, easily fattening their majority in the 1967 election.

The Liberals had 20 seats late Thursday night and the New Democratic Party 18. But results were fouled by close races and missing ballot boxes.

In Nipissing, returning officers reported Conservative Merle Dickerson the winner, but a late-night check showed the Liberal, Richard Smith, won the riding.

A similar foulup occurred in Toronto Dovercourt where NDP Steve Penner was originally declared the winner. But votes from a missing ballot box gave the riding to Conservative George Nixon.

The missing riding was Ottawa Centre where NDP allegations of irregularities have necessitated a recount. The Tory candidate was leading.

At dissolution Sept. 13, the Conservatives had 68 seats, the Liberals 28 and the NDP 21. There was one independent.

The two late-night changes meant the Liberals retained their position as official opposition. Earlier, it appeared there might be a tie between Liberal and NDP, something believed unprecedented in Canada.

The victory was a personal triumph for Davis, a boyish 42-year-old Brampton lawyer fighting his first election as party leader. He based his campaign on a something-for-

MPs Picket White House For Amchitka Test Halt

WASHINGTON (CP) — Two Canadian MPs and a United States senator picketed the White House Thursday, calling on President Nixon to cancel a proposed nuclear explosion on Amchitka Island in Alaska.

For 20 minutes, bearing protest placards, the three legislators and a small group of protesters paraded in front of the presidential mansion as television and news cameras recorded the unusual event.

Mark Rose (NDP—Fraser Valley West), Lionel Beaudoin (Cred.—Richmond) and Senator Mike Gravel, Democrat from Alaska, carried signs saying "Canada Opposes Cannikin" and "Cannikin a Threat to Alaska and Canada."

The five-megaton device — equivalent to five million tons of TNT — was originally scheduled to be detonated early in October but has been delayed by court action.

The three legislators said it was the first time they had carried a picket sign in their lives.

The Canadian government has formally protested the planned explosion, and conservationists in the U.S. and abroad have opposed it because of fears it could set off an earthquake or damage wildlife.

Rose told reporters the two MPs had come at the invitation of Gravel, "otherwise I wouldn't have come." He explained that he would not be pleased to see U.S. congressmen picketing the prime minister's residence in Ottawa without being invited by a Canadian counterpart.

The NDP member said he had tried to enlist an all-party Canadian delegation to make the trip because all parties had supported the govern-

Weather Satellite Plunges to Earth

SANTA BARBARA, Calif. (AP). — A satellite designed to forecast weather for the entire world failed to go into orbit Thursday and plunged to Earth 90 minutes after its launch, officials here said.

It represented a $10-million failure. The 686-pound satellite carried four television cameras, two scanning radiometres and its two-stage Delta rocket.

The space agency said the satellite veered out of control moments after the second-stage burn of its big Delta rocket and fell blazing into Earth's atmosphere.

The satellite had been expected to circle Earth in a 900-mile-high polar orbit.

Vandals Hit Soviet Mission

From UPI, AP

NEW YORK — Two teenagers slipped into the Soviet Mission to the United Nations Thursday and committed acts of vandalism and two men saying they belonged to the Jewish Defence League tried to haul down the Soviet flag outside the United Nations.

The incident at the mission took place a few hours after Soviet Ambassador Jacob Malik blamed a Wednesday night shooting incident at the Mission on a lack of security measures by U.S. authorities.

A boy and a girl, both 15, apparently entered the mission on Manhattan's East Side without difficulty, smashed the plate glass door and sprayed black paint inside the reception room. The two, who were not identified, were captured by a patrolman stationed outside the mission. They were ordered released in custody of their parents.

Two men trying to rip down the Russian flag from the row of 131 flagpoles outside the UN were taken into custody. About a dozen other demonstrators had chained themselves to the fence along First Avenue. Police clipped the chains and arrested the demonstrators.

At the UN, several delegates expressed anger over the Wednesday night attack on the mission by a rifleman and expressed concern for the safety of all diplomats in New York.

The shooting situation halted the China representation debate in the assembly for some hours.

It started when Malik interrupted the debate on a point of order and expressed out-

13 Killed, 100 Injured In Glasgow Holocaust

GLASGOW (CP) — A mid-afternoon explosion tore through a busy shopping centre Thursday, killing at least 13 persons and injuring at least 100.

Cars from a rooftop parking lot toppled into the debris, hampering hundreds of police and firemen who clawed at the rubble to reach screaming victims.

The blast wrecked 15 stores on newly-built Busby Street in the prosperous Clarkston Toll district.

Police said first indications were that a gas main had exploded. Workmen had been in the area for two days trying to trace a leak.

A woman witness said the street was "littered with bodies."

"It is an absolute holocaust."

Thursday is pay day for many Glasgow families and Busby Street was at its busiest when the blast erupted.

One man was decapitated and his body thrown across the road.

Hours after the 3 p.m. blast, rescuers still were tearing at the rubble, calling time after time for teams of doctors and nurses to help trapped victims.

Nurses and physicians ran to the disaster scene from a health centre less than 100 yards away.

One of the nurses said: "I've never heard anything like it — just a 'whoom.' Then there were clouds of smoke and dust and I could hear people crying."

Two Named By Nixon For Court

WASHINGTON (AP). — Lewis Powell, a Richmond, Va., lawyer and former president of the American Bar Association, and William Rehnquist, an assistant attorney-general, were named by President Nixon Thursday night for the Supreme Court.

If confirmed by the Senate, the two will succeed Justices Hugo Black and John Harlan and bring the court up to full strength.

Nixon described both men as "conservatives, but only in a judicial, not a political sense."

Kosygin Pledges To Help Red Migrants to Canada

- Ethnic groups dominate Kosygin protest. Page 7.

OTTAWA (CP) — Soviet Premier Alexei Kosygin has promised to intervene personnally to hasten the reunification of willing Soviet citizens with families in Canada.

Prime Minister told the Commons Thursday:

"He assured me that the names were in the works now, that he would see to it personally, and that substantial advance would be made on this subject."

The prime minister was replying to questions following his talks with Kosygin in Ottawa this week.

Indications were that delays were caused by red tape rather than political considerations, Trudeau said, although the Soviet premier had added that some candidates for migration to Canada did not wish to leave, despite applications on their behalf by relatives in Canada.

'B.C. Needs Revolution'

Bourgault
. . . 'defeated like us'

VANCOUVER (CP) — British Columbia needs a revolution as much as Quebec does, Separatist leader Pierre Bourgault told 300 University of B.C. students Thursday.

"You have been defeated just as much as we have been defeated in Quebec," he said.

"You don't own your own resources and industries any more than the ordinary people in Quebec do."

Bourgault, founder of the Rassemblement Pour L'Independance Nationale, and since 1969 one of the leaders of the Parti Quebecois, was one of a series of speakers participating in "Quebec Week" on the UBC campus.

He told students that in Quebec 82 per cent of the people, the French-speaking people, own or control only 12 per cent of the economy. He said Quebec's standard of living is 28 per cent lower than in Ontario and 50 per cent lower than in the United States.

"These are the 'benefits' of collaborating with the U.S.," he said.

Bourgault said natural resources of B.C. have been "literally swallowed" by speculators.

He said Premier Bennett "sells you and yours for almost nothing — sometimes he will even pay the Americans to help them take over."

He said Canadians help Americans buy them out with Canadian money.

"On a $20 million deal, the Americans can sometimes put up $2 million in U.S. money, get some federal grants, get tax concessions and borrow the rest from Canadian banks. Then the Americans end up with control, decision-making and all the proftis."

Bourgault said the Parti Quebecois is not radical enough, but that a new manifesto is being drawn up which "will go much further than people expect."

"But what would help us in Quebec more than anything else is if you start your own revolution here in B.C. Then it would be much easier for us to collaborate with you."

Gazette or in a newspaper, or where service is required within 30 days of the serving of a copy of the application, file with the Director an objection in writing to the granting of a permit stating the manner in which he is affected; those who do not so qualify may file with the Pollution Control Board an objection in writing under Section 13 (6) in the same manner and time period as described above.

Acupunctured Writer Very Relaxed

By DON GAIN
Colonist Reporter

You sit down beside the pleasant-faced Chinese woman — Dr. Wu Shiu Wan — and she takes your pulse, first the left wrist, then in the right.

You tell the interpreter, Dr. Lai David Chuen-Yan, Fellow of Craigdarroch College and assistant professor of geography at the University of Victoria, that you have a tendency toward high blood pressure.

He passed the message along as the doctor seems to be measuring your pulse several times. She says something in Chinese to Dr. Lai.

"Your blood pressure is not very high," he says, but goes on to say that there is some alimentary irregularity. "She will treat you for both."

Dr. Wu requests that the tongue be extended. There is conversation between her and Dr. Lai.

"We have a saying in Chinese, that you feel that way when you eat too many peanuts," Dr. Lai says. "Your mouth gets dry."

Dr. Wu asks that trousers be rolled up and shoes removed.

She sterilizes an area on the left shin and, after exploratory pressure with her fingers, chooses a spot and inserts a very fine steel needle as thin as thread.

There is no sensation until the two-inch needle is pushed in about one inch and then it is only a momentary twinge. The same procedure is followed on the right shin.

After a minute the doctor rotates the needles and, at the end of five minutes, she removes them. The treatment is over.

And how did the patient feel? He felt very relaxed, as if his blood pressure were lower. He didn't clearly understand what was meant by the discussion about the alimentary condition. His mouth was very dry.

The treatment was done by acupuncture, an ancient Chinese art which dates back to neolithic times, according to Dr. Wu. In those times sharp stones were used, she said.

The doctor is an acupuncturist from Hong Kong who is visiting Canada and the U.S. She gave demonstrations at the Chinese Consolidated Benevolent Association Sunday night and again Wednesday night at UVic's Craigdarroch College. She treated this reporter Wednesday afternoon.

A graduate of Wah Kiu College in Hong Kong, Mrs. Wu is a medical doctor as is her husband, who also teaches medicine. At 45 she has been practising for 20 years in addition to raising a family of four children.

Dr. Wu with acupuncture needle

She uses her art to treat many ailments and diseases, although some, like diabetes, she says can be treated more quickly and effectively with medicine.

There are meridians or internal energy pathways in the body, she says, and needles are inserted at various points along these pathways.

The treatment has been used for thousands of years on painful, chronic ailments such as arthritis and rheumatism.

The Chinese believe that illness and disease are caused by an imbalance in the body due to interruptions in the flow of universal energy and balance is restored by stimulation of the body with needles. Dr. Wu says they range in length from one-half inch to seven inches.

One theory is that acupuncture was discovered when soldiers wounded by arrows found that ailments mysteriously disappeared.

It's a highly respected method of treatment in China, where, in the last three years, it has been used as an anesthetic in 400,000 operations, including open-heart surgery. It has been widely used in Germany and France as well.

Browns Lose Young Coach

CLEVELAND (AP) — Howard Keyes, 36-year-old backfield coach of Cleveland Browns of the National Football League, died Thursday in Shaker Medical Centre, where he underwent an operation for a bowel obstruction last Friday.

A standout player at Oklahoma State University and later with Philadelphia Eagles of the NFL, Keyes served Calgary Stampeders of the Canadian league as assistant coach for four years starting in 1965.

Labor Chides Unionist

The Victoria Labor Council moved a unanimous criticism of the statement by fellow labor union member Ed Callan recently, that the Sandringham Private Hospital strike was dead.

The council, in answer to a letter from carpenters' union member Jim Sawyer, voted to reprimand Callan, international representative of the operating engineers' union, and to take the Canadian Union of Public Employees to task for not reacting to Callan's published remark.

"I don't know if I concur with the implied criticism of CUPE," Neil Hindle, business agent of the boilermakers' union said. "I would take the council executive to task for not reacting."

"I don't think the strike is dead," Hindle said, speaking of the year-long strike of the hospital workers to negotiate its first union contract. "If it is, the rest of us are in serious trouble."

"It is not a question of judgment within the house of labor," council vice-president John Schibli said. "It is a matter of principle you don't criticize another union in a labor fight."

Council president Jack Groves said the council executive had contacted top officials of CUPE after the story appeared in the papers, and had been assured they would make a statement.

Groves said he had talked to Callan, and he "had no apologies . . . In fact, he offered to come before the council, and to speak to the girls at Sandringham, but we didn't want to give him more headlines."

Oil in Harbor Costs $1000

The first conviction in Victoria under the federal oil pollution prevention regulations of 1968 was recorded Tuesday in Victoria Provincial Court and the penalty was a fine of $1,000.

Neil David Clarke, second engineer of the Liberian cruise ship West Star, was fined by Judge William Ostler after pleading guilty to a charge of discharging an oil or oily mixture into Victoria's Inner Harbor "on or about" Oct. 6.

Prosecutor Dermod Owen-Flood said the penalty clause in the pollution regulations contained a maximum of $5,000 or six months and no minimum, and added the crown would be satisfied with a $750 fine.

But Ostler said it was "a matter of utmost gravity" to discharge oil into the Inner Harbor, an area well known as a place for many boats and much marine life and an area where much damage could be caused.

Robert Baird, a steamship inspector for the federal transport department, said a complaint of oil was lodged Oct. 7 by an official of the Undersea Gardens. He said the oil patch was about 750 feet long and 70 feet wide.

Baird said Clarke, senior engineer on the West Star, was "most co-operative" and explained the bilges had been pumped the evening of Oct. 6. He said Clarke told him there had been "an unusual amount of oil on top of the bilges and some of the oil must have been discharged with the bilgewater."

The inspector said the ship's crew "mopped up" oil around the vessel and added that divers from the Undersea Gardens first noted the oil.

At his request, Clarke was given one week to pay the $1,000 fine after Ostler noted that, without the co-operation, "the penalty would justifiably have been severe."

It was the second prosecution in the Victoria court under the 1968 regulations. Ostler dismissed the first on Oct. 1 on grounds someone must be found responsible for a discharge before criminal blame can be laid to a master or owner.

'Mainly a Matter of Conscience'

By GEORGE INGLIS
Colonist Reporter

Thirty-five slightly bemused high school students sat through citizenship ceremonies for 24 new Canadians Thursday, conducted by Judge Norman Oreck, President of the courts of Canadian Citizenship for B.C.

The students, the second such group to witness the monthly citizenship proceedings, were Grade XI social studies students from Victoria high school — there by mutual agreement of the Victoria Citizenship Council, Men's Canadian Club, and the school board.

Their impressions were candid:

"The speech was long and hard to understand," Alan Bisson, 17, said of Oreck's address on the civil liberties the new citizens would enjoy.

Stephen Rithwell, 16, said he thought the speech was good, getting across the basic ideas of what the new citizens would be entitled to, "but I am not sure whether they really understood it," he said, referring to the fact many of the new citizens spoke broken English.

Danny St. Pierre, 16, a native Victorian, said he felt the government should begin to look toward placing restrictions on skilled labor import and should stop unskilled laborers from coming to Canada, "the way unemployment is now."

St. Pierre approved of Oreck's speech saying, "He didn't say too much, or too little."

Wendy McCaughey, 17, said she would be interested in learning more of the mechanics of immigration, "I don't know what the screening process is, how they decide whether they should become citizens or not."

Robert Holliston, 16, said he felt the ceremony was impressive to the individual. A native Victorian, he said proudly, "I wouldn't take any other citizenship."

Dugald Nasmith, 16, said he liked the personal touch employed by Oreck (in relating personal circumstances in connection with some of the candidates); and added he felt Canada should get tougher on immigrant selection and should stress the importance of those living in the country taking up citizenship.

'He didn't say too much or too little'

'Speech was long and hard to understand'

"Look at all those people from the U.S. living here," Nasmith said. "When the crunch comes between us and the U.S., which side will they choose?"

Oreck had cautioned the new citizens against becoming disillusioned if they did not find some of the freedoms available in actual practice.

"These are ideals," he said, "and citizens must work to maintain them.

"Mainly, however, citizenship is a matter of conscience," Oreck told the new citizens, "and most Canadians take their rights for granted, because they have known nothing else."

Oreck's preamble included the information that two candidates who should have been processed at Courtenay, Mr. and Mrs. John Colter, formerly from the U.S., had joined the 22 candidates originally scheduled for the ceremony so they could go through with their son Craig, a student at University of Victoria, who plans to become a teacher.

The senior citizen in the ceremony was Mrs. Rhoda Oliver, 81, from the U.S., whose chief interest was in hospitals, of which she said, "The nice thing about hospitals, they take anyone regardless or race, creed or color."

The most unusual occupation among the new Canadians was that of Scottish immigrant Mrs. Elsie Power, who helps her husband construct crossword puzzles.

Aside from those mentioned above, the countries and citizens were:

China, Mrs. Gim Hoy Mar, Mrs. Thick May Ng, Mrs. Joan King Wong, Mrs. Chun Kam Yee.

Czechoslovakia, Rudolph Eberle and his wife Susanna from Poland; Greece, Ioannis Kalliakoudas; Hungary, Istvan Kovacs; U.S., Paul Olson, and Philippines, Ninfa Batilaran.

Williston

Increasing Reforestation Key to Shrinking Stands

Resources Minister Ray Williston said Thursday the increasing alienation of B.C. forest lands for recreational and wilderness uses means foresters will have to work harder at maintaining their industry's productivity.

He spoke at a luncheon at the closing session of the Canadian Institute of Foresters' annual meeting at the Empress.

Williston said the provincial government's environment and land use committee, of which he is chairman, has noted that the demand for other uses of forest land is growing.

"Some of the strongest and most persistent demands are coming from large segments of the public which want to see major areas of forest land set aside for recreational use and wilderness areas.

"The B.C. Forest Service is working diligently to make a concurrent recreational and industrial use feasible but it is obvious there must be a diminution of the land available to industry," said Williston.

He added that he does not expect such a process will be as drastic as some fear but persons involved in forest management will have to make serious efforts to offset the losses.

In addition, said Williston, increased productivity would help solve some of the forest industry's problems with respect to labor costs, pollution control and general environmental protection.

Recognizing the need to increase the industry's productivity, the B.C. Forest Service has set up a committee to provide guidelines and leadership in intensifying forest management practices.

Williston said the province's forest industry mainly has been harvesting natural stands, or "old growth."

"Now, however, in the areas of better sites the old growth is disappearing, which means that it is imperative that we properly manage the new growth stands," he said, adding that industry is encouraged to create more managed timber stands through government incentives such as increased allowable cut and forestry cost allowances.

"This means that, on a long-term basis as natural stands are logged out, the committee is responsible for developing managed stand yield tables which will complement the natural stand yield tables we now have."

Williston also pointed out that a committee has been appointed to co-ordinate forestry research, now being done by the provincial and federal governments, the University of B.C. and industry.

Recreational Centre

Saanich Groups Eye Work Plan

A federal make-work plan to boost construction of multi-purpose exhibition buildings has spurred hope for a Saanich peninsula recreation centre.

Two separate organizations expressed interest in the plan Thursday night after details were released in Ottawa by the agriculture department.

One, the Saanich Peninsula Agricultural and Recreational Association, has been working for some time to obtain a recreational and athletic centre for the peninsula.

The other, the North and South Saanich Agricultural Society, is mainly concerned with the exhibition side of the plan but a spokesman said any building the society built could well be a multi-purpose one.

Under the terms of the plan a total of $10 million now and about $90 million more within 15 years will be made available to exhibition boards and commissions for building construction and improvements.

But the department noted that although the buildings will be associated with exhibition activities, they must be the type that can be used for "community meetings, entertainment, sports and so on" to qualify for loans.

This multi-purpose building is exactly the sort which SPARA has been seeking throughout the year.

And for that reason, spokesman Al Storey told the Colonist Thursday night, as soon as the outline of the plan was announced by Finance Minister Edgar Benson last week, the organization sent a telegram to its MP, David Anderson, asking how it could apply for some of the money.

SPARA's difficulty in obtaining the money will likely be that it is not an exhibition board and basically, according to Storey, has no interest in running exhibitions. However, the group is officially an agricultural association.

The organization hoped the centre could also be used for community meetings, for entertainment, and even for small conventions, he said.

The North and South Saanich Agricultural Society's main concern is in running the Saanichton fairgrounds, and in holding a large agricultural fair on the Labor Day weekend each year.

It has never been concerned with the problem of obtaining more recreation facilities for the peninsula.

But president Bud Micheil said in a separate interview Thursday that if the sort of building required was a multi-purpose one, then the society might well be able to build one.

Informed of the program by the Colonist, he said he was certain the society would try to obtain some of the federal money, possibly for this winter's program.

Exact details of the application, including the amount to be asked for and what sort of structure would be built, would have to be worked out by the society board, he said.

Storey said he saw no possibility of the two societies combining to construct a building under the plan.

He said their aims were too divergent for them to cooperate in such a venture.

But for the same reason, he said, he did not think the two would be in competition for the funds.

"We want a recreation centre, but we don't want to tread on anyone's toes to get one," he said.

Breathalyser Accuracy Court Test

The Borkenstein Breathalyser machine which has become part of Canada's system of justice since laws against drinking drivers were toughened in 1969 is coming under severe attack in a case that is due to continue Nov. 12 in Victoria Provincial Court.

Dermod Owen-Flood, defence lawyer for Ralph Pashley, 51, of 3946 Cedar Hill Cross Road, is claiming the machine is inadequate for its present purpose — to give an accurate reading of the alcohol content in the blood of an accused person.

Many sittings of the court's traffic section Wednesday and Thursday were occupied by the trial of Pashley on a Victoria charge of impaired driving April 2.

Highlight of the testimony to date has been evidence by Dr. Kenneth Thornton, a leading B.C. pathologist and head of pathology at Royal Jubilee Hospital.

In brief, Thornton said the Breathalyser was subject to certain "random errors" and the medical condition of an accused person could also affect the machine — in Pashley's case, a diabetic condition.

He said one reading alone from the machine was "useless," from a scientific view, and Owen-Flood explained both the law and police practice growing out of it contain no provision for a second reading.

The trial, before Judge E. F. N. Robinson, was adjourned Thursday to Nov. 12 when prosecutor Peter Birkett will call Victoria police identification officer Bernard Brennan in rebuttal to Thornton's testimony.

Owen-Flood also said he will conduct the defence in another impaired-driving case due the same day, in which the conditions were "almost the same" and the Breathalyser would be under attack again.

University Elections On Again

On-again, off-again student elections at the University of Victoria are on again.

A special meeting of the student Representative Assembly held Wednesday night ratified a decision taken at a Sunday meeting of the RA to invalidate the Oct. 12 elections and hold new ones Nov. 1.

Wednesday's special meeting was called by student president Ian McKinnon who had claimed a quorum of 16 was not present at Sunday's meeting and therefore the decision taken was not binding.

A quorum of 16 plus three was reached at Wednesday's meeting.

At Highest Level

Federal-Provincial Parley Urged on Forest Policy

A federal-provincial conference on forest policy, possibly at the level of the 10 premiers and the prime minister, was advocated here Thursday by a forestry authority from Nova Scotia.

Hans Akesson, who manages the 3,700,000 acres that are in Nova Scotia Pulp Ltd's wood procurement area, made the comment in an interview after he had given a paper at the annual meeting of the Canadian Institute of Forestry.

He said a federal forest policy would be the only instrument that could regulate the entry of new producers and production areas into markets. This is a principle of the national oil policy.

Until such policy is arrived at and enforced at a federal level, it is possible that one province might suddenly allow an expansion of its pulp and paper industry. The resulting avalanche of products forces down the prices for all producers.

Low world market prices might not only force closure of some mills but they could result in producers abandoning forest management programs because of cost.

In his paper to the CIF, Akesson noted the industries exploiting the primeval forest — and this appeared to be a reference to those in B.C. — enjoy a cost advantage in comparison with those harvesting second growth.

"Let us hope that governments in areas where there is an abundance of primeval forest do not give away those forests," he added.

Another threat to silviculture is "the manipulators of general opinion who could convince the public that clear-cutting is always an ecologically detrimental practice."

(Clear-cutting involves removal of all standing timber, including rotting and dying trees before the site is replanted.)

Child Injured In Accident

A two-year-old Langford girl, Charyl Bryce, of 2818 Leigh Road, was reported in fairly good condition in St. Joseph's Hospital Thursday night after she was run over by a car in the parking lot of the Langford Lake Store. Colwood RCMP identified the driver of the car as Mrs. Loretta Brighton, of 2849 Lake End Road, and said the girl was apparently lying behind the Brighton car when the accident occurred.

Triple Crash Injures One

Jack Rossiter, 46, of 2392 Mount St. Michael Drive, Central Saanich, was released from St. Joseph's Hospital Monday night. He had been treated for minor injuries received earlier in the evening when the car he was driving was involved in a three-car crash at 4967 Patricia Bay Highway, Saanich police reported. Police said drivers of the other two cars were Mark Aitken, 25, of 2603 Prior and Peter Caleb, 38, of 1950 Nicholas, Central Saanich.
